College Of Marin Faces Big Job In Decade Ahead

According to announcements at the time his hiring was approved a couple of weeks ago, the educator chosen to succeed Ward Austin as College of Marin president is due to arrive at the college this week to begin consultations with Austin, faculty members and the administrative staff.

He is Dr. Stephen E. Epler, a Nebraska-born educator who served most recently as president of Reedley Junior College in Fresno County. He recently was named administrative assistant to Austin with the understanding that he would succeed to the presidency upon Austin's scheduled retirement next year.

Dr. Epler's arrival here ought to be a signal event. It should mark a turning point in the history of the college.

Ward Austin carried out the desires, aims and goals of the founders with whom he was pretty closely acquainted personally. Thus the influence of the founders has pretty much always been the guide for the college.

With the retirement of Austin next year, just about the last direct connection with the beginning will be severed.

Progress marches on. Times change. We expect now that the whole viewpoint of the college may change, too. And it probably should change if the college is to serve our community adequately in these changed and changing times.

In the years immediately ahead, the surge of World War II "war babies" will be crowding our colleges, a prelude to the post war population explosion that will be felt at the college level just a few more years ahead.

Established universities and colleges are already jammed nearly to capacity. It will fall to our local institutions like College of Marin to provide for the post-high school education of an evergrowing number of our young people.

Fortunately, College of Marin has a good start on the physical facilities and —not the least important—it is debt free.

We can foresee the need for vast expansions; and being debt free we can see that necessary expansion is not unfeasible.

It will be up to Dr. Epler and board members—present and future—to "put the pieces together" so College of Marin can do the job that will need doing here in the decades ahead.

The Golden Hills

There is one sure way to tell a newcomer from a 100 per cent true-blue, contented Marinite. It is in his reaction to the dry grass which adorns Marin's hills and dales during the summer and autumn dry season.

If, for example, he says, "The hills are turning brown," he is obviously an alien—a stranger in Paradise. This unfortunate fellow may find himself the object of hostility and condescending pity. He may be hurt and bewildered, for to his undiscerning eyes the hills are indeed turning brown.

Perhaps some person with compassion in his heart will place a hand upon the innocent's shoulder and tell him as gently as possible, "In Marin we never say brown, we say golden!"

Our advice to newcomers to the county is simple. To give the impression of being wise, witty and sophisticated refer to our "golden hills" and pretend "brown" is a dirty word.

Anyway, they really are golden, you know.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

DOOMED, YET THEY SURVIVE

There commercial fishermen from Brooklyn, N. Y., survived a 3½-day ordeal in the storm-tossed North Atlantic when their 55-foot boat became disabled.

Upon seeing signs of a storm brewing shortly after midnight they pulled in their nets and prepared to head back to port. With their battery dead and their auxiliary generator out of commission, they could not send out a distress signal on their radio.

Winds hit gale force. Waves 15 to 20 feet high beat down on the deck. The sail they tried to hoist to steady the boat was whipped away by the angry storm.

The men felt they were doomed, but they continued to "pray every inch of the way." On the third day they were washed ashore on a tiny island north of Atlantic City.

No matter what trials and tribulations you must endure, let each of them serve as an opportunity to show your abiding trust in God. Your faith will not be in vain.

"None that trust in Him shall fail in strength." (1 Machabees 2:61)

In You alone do we put complete trust, O Lord.

Don't Let Pipe Smokers Fool You; All That Silence Is Baloney

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that they have eradicated bubonic plague, dance marathons and the mosquitoes in the Jersey meadows, it's high time some high minded crusader took out after pipe smokers.

For centuries these peripatetic chimneys have gone unpunished while carelessly stewing hot ashes on the hearthstone of humanity.

The forgotten hero who dumped a bucket of water on Sir Walter Raleigh's initial attempt to introduce pipe smoking to Europe deserves better of history. He failed, but he had the right idea.

Mortal man seldom looks more ridiculous than when sucking on a noisome blazing bowl or groping feverishly in an oil silk sack for the fuel to feed a ludicrous habit that he cannot kick.

Yet it is the pipe smoker, rather than the man with the cigarette or cigar, who frequently is taken for an intellectual—a classic case of mistaking conflagration for cerebration.

The smug chap pursing his lips on a pipe stem may give the impression of mulling over some problem in nuclear fission or pondering some sticky point in Aristoelian logic. Actually, all his physical and mental contortions are concentrated on keeping the absurd boiler beneath his nose going full blast. The fires within have been banked too long.

His thoughts at their deepest concern such titanic issues as whether to tamp down the tobacco tighter or fluff it up looser, and whether to reach into his pocket for a cotton reaming rod to scrape out his nicotine sewer in public.

THE FACT THAT the average pipe smoker can keep his counsel in a heated discussion doesn't mean that he is any more prudent, tolerant or worldly wise than the rest of us. It simply means that he is too busy playing stoker.

PEOPLE IN ALL walks of life, from tweedy college professors to seedy skidrow deadbeats, have been hiding behind a haze of hypocrisy for years, with nothing more on their minds than whether to puff hard or puff easy. An impatient world invariably mistakes their reticence for sagacity.

But not everyone is fooled.

FIGHT NIGHT FROM L. A. ARENA

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

What Qualities Would Be Most Needed By Next U.S. President?

While the politicians are weighing the electability of the candidates, wouldn't this be a good time to consider the qualifications most needed by the next President during the uncertain four to eight years he will serve?

I am not presuming to suggest what President, but rather what kind of President the nation requires.

Obviously everybody's job specification for the next President will not be the same. But it would be well to fix in mind, before the campaign begins, a bill of particulars which we believe the next President should be able to meet.

ON THE assumption that the Communist challenge will not grow less formidable and that the battle for a free world is going to be harder and more exacting until it is won, it seems to me that the foremost qualifications and qualities of the kind of President we need, are:

1—The ability to lead, a quality hard to define but always visible when present, as with Theodore Roosevelt and F. D. R. It is the ability to mobilize a national opinion behind what needs to be done.

2—The capacity for initiative—the determination, willingness, even eagerness to use the vast powers of the Presidency to achieve the national purposes. All the strong Presidents—Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Wilson, and the two Roosevelts—expended the prestige of their office, did not hoard it.

3—The quality of vision and decisiveness. Walter Lippman put it well in his television interview when he said that the vision that is most needed is the "ability to see what it is. He must be able to see through the excitement of daily events. He must be able to see through the headlines to what is permanent and enduring. This ability—this second-sight—is, to my mind, the quality of great leaders."

In my judgment two preeminent examples of decisiveness were President Truman's bold and precedent-shattering action to aid Greece and Turkey after Britain had expanded its strength, and his instant response to the aggression in Korea. As Gerald W. Johnson put it in his article on "The U. S. Presidency" in the "Saturday Evening Post": "It is better to do any intelligent thing than to lose time searching for the perfect move."

4—An understanding and respect for politics. Politics needs to be better esteemed, not condemned. The art of politics is the art of operating democratic government. President Eisenhower has accomplished much without having experience, interest, or even a taste for politics, but his disinterest and distaste have been a limitation. We need a man in the White House who is more than a politician but we also can well use a politician who will be the active, energetic leader of his party in order that his party may be an effective instrument of his leadership.

5—The quality of integrity—intellectual, moral, and personal. The nation needs a President most Americans will, regardless of partisan and policy differences, feel is a man who embodies the great decencies, a man of honor and goodwill.

I AM QUITE AWARE that I have listed the qualifications Which historically have been most exemplified by the strong Presidents of the past. Some will say—and they will be right—that there is a danger in overly strong national government, that strong government, as Washington and other founder of the republic warned, could become master, rather than servant, of the people, could seriously upset the balance of powers in our Federal system.

That is a danger. It is well to see it and face it. But as we confront the threat to freedom and survival which surrounds us today, I cannot escape the conviction that the consequences of weak, indecisive government are far more dangerous than the consequences of strong, dynamic government.

These qualifications for the kind of President we need are offered, not as a model, but as an incentive to draw up your own. Then you can measure the fitness of the nominees by your own standards for the kind of President you believe the nation urgently requires, 1960 to 1964.

"I suppose the reason we pretend to be what we aren't is because we are displeased with what we are."

10 YEARS AGO

Directors of North Marin Water District indicated intention to let a contract for construction of Novato creek dam on a basis of a $327,987 bid, more than $150,000 under the engineering estimate.

Enraged commuters were disappointed when Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted 9-3 to keep commute rates unchanged, save that a five-cent fare for extra passengers was eliminated. Single trips were reduced to 40 cents, compared with a former 50 cents.

20 YEARS AGO

Pacific Greyhound Co. was named by the California Railroad Commission as substitute for Northwestern Pacific Railroad as carrier for Marin County traffic, also allowing Greyhound a franchise to operate in Mill Valley as competitor for the intended municipal utility district.

Marin County supervisors received requests for general boosts in pay of chief deputies, clerks, copyists and secretaries, but declined to take any action on the ground that "this is no time to seek salary raises."

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

"It's a fine how-de-do," mourned a garment manufacturer. "Here I'm ready to pay top wages for a private secretary, and I can't find anybody who'll take the job." "Calm yourself," soothed a friend, "I've got just the girl for you —a real beauty, too. I'll send her in tomorrow.

The next evening it was an aggrieved garmenteer who phoned his friend. "A fine private secretary you sent me," he jeered. "She can't even wrap a bundle or handle a mop!"

A beggar had such a sad tale to unfold, that the grocer broke down and gave him a bag full of the best victuals. The beggar eyed it askance and then demanded petulantly, "Well? Where are my tradin' stamps?"

Herman Levin, producer of "My Fair Lady," attempted a daring experiment this spring. He crossed a racehorse with a giraffe. The foal can't run very fast, but he's unbeatable in a neck-to-neck finish.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By RANDALL GOULD

Scribe Pauses for Philosophic Glance At Marin After One Year

ONE YEAR AGO I sneaked into the I-J to work for "one or two weeks." The management carelessly took its eye off me and here I still am.

This I submit to confuse all believers in justice, a planned universe and the laws of gravity. Must be pretty embarrassing, too, for the folks who think they are running this paper in an orderly way.

During the year just past I have met a man from the moon, seen life coughed out in the gas chamber, kept pace for three minutes with two fast walkers New York bound, worn the seats out of four pairs of britches covering planner-supervisor meetings, and created a local boom in typewriter ribbons.

NIGHT BEFORE LAST, 16 quail (two big, 14 little) scampered across our patch of Mill Valley grass while toasts were offered to the new generation.

For this last, and such jobs as photographing stray deer callers, I didn't get paid by the paper. But it was all part of the joyful job of newspapering in Marin, because the best thing is that here nobody is ever wholly off duty; and being on duty usually is, as they say in the Navy, no sweat.

Here is the biggest single fact I've learned in my year: That nothing happening in the whole of lovely Marin County is totally without interest.

Probably a real live wire feels that way any place you drop him. But Marin gets to you even after you've grown a nice hard protective insulating shell against the rest of the world.

One reason is that Marin has not only its own grass roots, but bits of all other places too. And often in Marin you can learn something of those other places.

IN SHANGHAI, in Manila, and in Havana, for instance, I've watched Basques play the bullet-fast game of hai jalai.

Basques are from the Pyrenees region on the Bay of Biscay, says the dictionary. Starting out as kids batting a ball against a shed, the males play hai jalai so well they have a world monopoly. Many get fat contracts any place that gamblers need something new. (Others herd sheep.)

That disposes of the male Basques. I never knew there were any females till I came to Marin and found a lovely young lady Basque waiting on me in a delightful French restaurant.

She hasn't learned much English yet, maybe because the Basques speak (according to Webster) "a unique agglutinative language" in which her mind prefers to stay stuck. But I can see she likes Marin.

WHO DOESN'T?

Mighty few if any. But some of us aren't at all times quite up to our wonderful surroundings. I was shocked at the atmosphere of some sectors of our recent election. Seemed stuffy, if not worse.

Nobody can be blamed for wanting lower taxes. But there can be an effort to maintain liberality of spirit, in keeping with surroundings better than most of us deserve.

My hunch is that few of us keep really alert as to how well off we are.

Mighty seldom, I suspect, does anybody in Marin County get so hungry it hurts. Not many here have lived under a totalitarian rule such as Communism or the like.

It's unfortunate but true that we learn little in happiness, but start to catch on when the going is rough.

You don't have to suffer. But sometimes it helps. 'Most any kind of suffering can humanize. The trick is to see it doesn't brutalize.

It seldom hurts anybody to take a long trip for a look around. In case Marin County gets a surplus in General Fund, rather unlikely I'll grant, we might try deporting a few selected cases.

Not me; I want to stay. And I'll try hard to be good.

It Isn't Easy To Say Just Why Kennedy Has It All Wrapped Up

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A victory for Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts—who seemed to have the presidential nomination sewed up before the Democratic convention opened — will bring a gush of explanations, some too glib, some too pat, and some with only temporary significance.

Kennedy, for instance, beat the bushes all year looking for delegates, ran in the primaries, and visited most states while his closest rivals, Sens. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Stuart Symington of Missouri, ran in no primaries, met far fewer people, relied more on contacts with professional politicians.

BUT IT DOESN'T follow that would-be presidents in 1964 will have to imitate Kennedy in the belief the more people they meet and the more publicity they get the better their chances. You don't have to look further than Adlai E. Stevenson for a recent contrary example.

In 1952 he was governor of Illinois, admired by some important politicians, did no campaigning, didn't want the nomination, was known to very few convention delegates, and hardly at all by most Americans. Nevertheless, he wound up with the nomination handed to him.

This year there seemed no doubt he yearned for a third chance, but as the convention opened he looked like a sad also-ran. He was by then a two-time loser in the presidential race, and the delegates were reluctant to take a chance on him again. He said he wouldn't ask them to.

It just happened that in 1952 there were no outstanding candidates. In that kind of vacuum the eloquent Stevenson looked like a natural. This year none of the Democratic candidates could be called a dominant figure.

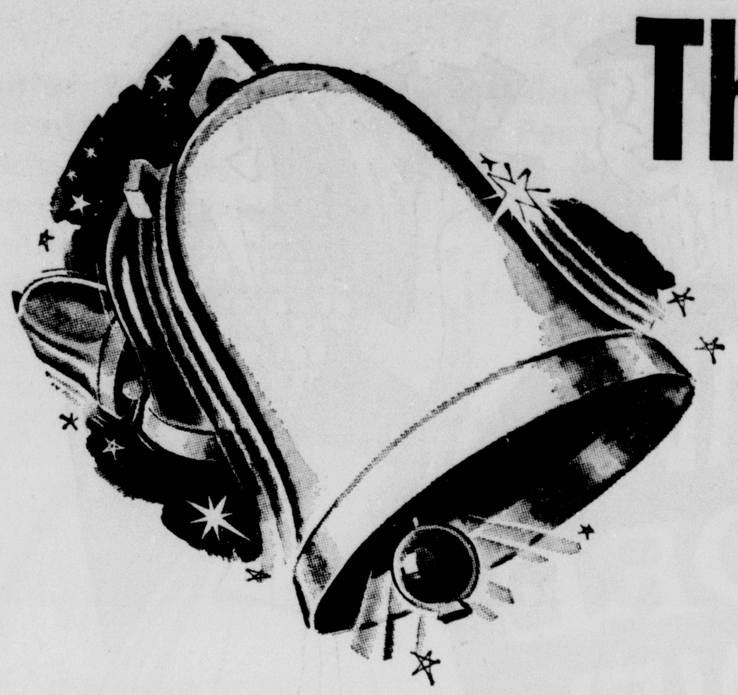

PERHAPS WHEN THAT is the case in the future hard work will pay off for some other candidate as it appeared to do this year for Kennedy. But the memory of the unwilling Stevenson of 1952 says this idea isn't necessarily so.

The fact that all the announced candidates this year were senators does not prove that the nation in the future will look more towards Congress for its presidents and less toward other public men, particularly governors who were more or less in political eclipse this year.

For example: On the Republican side New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would have been a standout — no Republican senator is close to him in prestige or public awareness of him—if Vice President Richard M. Nixon hadn't built himself up through performance and contacts as the No. 1 man.

Johnson indicated on TV last week he felt an obligation, as Democratic leader of the Senate, to stay close to his job. Therefore, he couldn't tear around the country, as Kennedy did, trying to line up delegates.

Instead he seemed to rely on the power of fellow senators and Democratic House members to rally support for him in a big way. This will look like a mistake in strategy if Kennedy wins the nomination.

FAR NORTH ROUNDUP

LASSOING LAPP. With perfect aim, a Lapp herdsman snares a reindeer during annual roundup.

PROUD LAPP. Standing in the midst of his reindeer herd, a Lapp herdsman holds a young reindeer by the antlers.

Reindeer are the cattle of Lapland, the bleak, barren land that stretches across the northern part of Norway, Sweden and Finland. From them the Lapp gets his tent, his blanket, part of his clothing, and his food.

Some of the reindeer wander wild, but others are herded like cattle on our western plains. They feed on mosses and lichens that cling to rocks and trees, visible above the snow that blankets the land for most of the year.

For the Lapps the most exciting time of the year is when they round up the reindeer from the snowy mountain pastures for the annual redivision among their owners. The big roundup is called the "Vendemia." It is a lasso-swinging operation in a setting of glistening white. The herdsmen sing as they work.

Not only do the short, sturdy Lapps separate their respective herds into work animals and those destined for slaughter, but they also make this the occasion for their annual reunion with friends and relatives after long isolation in the snowy wastes some 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Bunching and running together, these reindeer are being driven into an enclosure after roundup.

A reindeer calf is held for ear-marking. Each herd owner has his own ear markings.

Roundup time is happy occasion for reunion of friends and relatives after long isolation in the snowy wastes.

Hallinan Says He Will Seek New Trial For Police Slayer

Vincent Hallinan, Ross attorney, yesterday said he will seek a new trial for Alexander Robillard, 19, convicted killer of a Hillsborough policeman.

Hallinan, appointed by the California Supreme Court to handle Robillard's automatic appeal, said he will file his appeal brief with the high court July 20 and move for a new trial.

The attorney said he will base his plea on the claim that Robillard was given faulty advice by trial attorneys, whom the youth subsequently released from the case.

Robillard pleaded guilty to the pistol slaying of Patrolman Gene Doran. A San Mateo County Superior Court jury found Robillard guilty of first degree murder and decided on death, the first death sentence imposed in San Mateo County this century.

Hallinan said Robillard's attorneys advised him he could be convicted of nothing more than second degree murder if he pleaded guilty.

Former Marinite Wins Gold Star In Lieu Of Merit Award

Navy Lt. Cmdr. John A. Davis Jr., former San Rafael resident, recently was awarded a gold star in lieu of a second award of the Legion of Merit for performance of a mission "of great value" to the United States government.

The award was made aboard the submarine Greenfish in a formal ceremony at Pearl Harbor. Davis relinquished his command of the Greenfish after the ceremony.

The commander and Mrs. Davis, the former Agnes Dollar Barr of San Rafael, and their three children are now in San Rafael and will leave Aug. 1 for the Naval War College in Newport, R. I.

Shirley Is Confusing

MEMPHIS (AP)—All is confusion in the Shirley O. Sisk residence when the telephone caller asks to speak with "Shirley."

And a letter addressed simply to "Shirley Sisk" is just as befuddling. Sisk's wife also is named Shirley. So is their 13-year-old daughter.

Some Tips On Helping Children To Develop Proper Eating Habits

Do your children fight at mealtime? Do they argue over cosmic questions like who got the biggest piece of pie? And do they make faces when you serve new foods?

Mealtime isn't easy. Right?

We want our children to develope good eating habits. We want them to enjoy each other's companionship. Our goals are good, but we don't reach them.

Here are nine suggestions I've found to be helpful:

1. Treat each child fairly. No mealtime favorites, ever.

2. Give small servings so they'll ask for more.

3. Introduce new foods very slowly. Be satisfied with a mouthful or two. Children don't take to strange tastes easily.

4. Don't demand a clean plate. If a child slights his food, all right. Just be sure he does not snack afterward. He'll be hungry for the next meal.

5. Try not to expect skills which are beyond them. They are sure to overturn their glasses of milk occasionally. They will not be able to handle their knives and forks gracefully until they're nearly grown.

6. Now and then get them to help select, buy and prepare a meal.

7. Usually confine the conversation to matters of interest to them. Listen when they talk and respond reasonably.

8. When fights appear, send the aggressor from the table quickly. Don't let squabbles drag on.

9. Try to relax and enjoy your food. Set a good example.

READER'S FORUM

(Q) "My husband wants our children to eat in the kitchen while we eat in the dining room. Is this wise?"

L.T.

(A) Probably not. Your children are important members of the family, not second raters. They need to be close to you, and to learn from you. They need your supervision. Normally, it is better for families to eat together.

Clubs Hold Session On County Budget

The Marin Federation of Improvement Clubs held a second session to study the 1960-61 county budget Monday night, but reached no conclusions, chairman Gilbert Darroch of Strawberry reported.

Another meeting will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the courthouse. "Probably one or two more meetings and then we'll have some recommendations," Darroch said.

Lark Theater Resumes Policy Of Featuring Local Artists

The Lark Theater in Larkspur has resumed its policy of featuring paintings by well known Marin County artists in the theater lobby.

The newest exhibit includes seven watercolors and casein paintings by Othello Michetti of San Anselmo.

Born in Italy, in the small town of Allano, not far from Rome, Michetti came to this country in 1906. He studied art at the Art Students League of New York City for several years. In 1929 he came to California on a vacation and has remained here ever since. In the same year he became associated with Stecher-Traug Lithograph Corp., and is still firm's art director.

Michetti paints outdoors mostly in watercolor and in his studio in San Anselmo, in oil and casein.

Mr. and Mrs. Michetti recently returned from a trip to Mexico.

San Anselmo School Board Passes $779,330 Budget

The San Anselmo School District board Monday night approved a $779,330 preliminary budget for 1960-61 — about $34,000 more than last year's total.

A public hearing will be held on the budget at 8 p.m. Aug. 4 in Isabel Cook multi-use room.

Supt. Stephen L. Parodi said the general purpose tax rate was expected to remain at the maximum, $1.45 per $100 of assessed valuation. Override taxes for loan repayment, retirement, and community services are expected to remain about 40 cents or go up a few cents.

The new budget includes a provision for one additional teacher next year. Of the total, $409,465 is for instructional salaries, including teacher and principals and substitutes. The capital outlay allocation totals $15,686, mostly for equipment and some improvements to buildings and grounds.

Philip Bundschu was elected president of the board and Mrs. Mary Hedin clerk. Mrs. Rose Eiserich was named trustee representative and Parodi was designated secretary to the board. Meetings will continue to be held the second Monday of the month at 8 p.m. in the Cook multi-use room.

Six new teachers were appointed: Mrs. Katharine Chatalas, fifth grade, Sleepy Hollow; Miss Jeanne Hancock, first grade, Wade Thomas; Miss Naomi Hauge, sixth grade, Cook; Miss Bette Reese, seventh grade, Brookside; Mrs. Carmen Roberts, kindergarten, Cook, and Dale Parker, instrumental and vocal music at the schools.

Parodi reported that all positions for next year have been filled. A total of 19 new teachers have been hired.

Summer school principal Donald Kirkpatrick reported that enrollment is about 558. The school, which ends July 22, has 15 teachers.

Hollywood Land Sold To Settle Estate

Sunset Boulevard property (not 77 Sunset Strip) was sold in Marin Superior Court Monday for $58,250 as part of the liquidation of the estate of a former Mill Valley man who died in September, 1958.

The late Frederic Stoughton Merriman, former Mill Valley city councilman in the 1930's, lived with his wife Frances at 9 Carmelita Avenue, Mill Valley, until his death. He owned a store building and land at 6648, 6650, and 6652 Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood.

San Rafael attorney Thomas C. Nelson, representing executors of the estate, appeared before Judge Thomas F. Keating yesterday to report that the best offer received thus far for the Sunset Boulevard property was $55,000. He asked the judge to confirm the sale at that price.

Judge Keating asked if anyone in the courtroom wanted to offer a better price. Two persons stood up and offered $58,250. The property went for that price to Salvadore and Dorene Camarata.

Attorney Nelson said he does not know who the Camaratas are, but they probably come from Southern California and are acquainted with the property.

Blaze Threatens Piles Of Lumber

A San Rafael police officer spotted a fire blazing on Canal Street about 5 a.m. yesterday, in time for firemen to prevent the flames from igniting large lumber piles nearby.

Officer Charles Hickey noticed the flames in a lot beside the new Marina Landing Apartments going up on Canal Street. Firemen confined the blaze to about 20 square feet. Hickey reported it could easily have ignited piles of dry lumber nearby.

Firemen said they had seen a laborer burning pieces of wood and rubbish yesterday, and the embers from the trash fire may have been rekindled by winds.

Traffic Rise Shows Need For Transit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A survey by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District shows a spectacular increase in traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge — almost twice as many cars crossing it yesterday as five years ago.

Traffic from the San Francisco Peninsula has increased 54 per cent in the last five years and San Francisco-bound traffic on the Bay Bridge is up 34 per cent.

Five years ago, there were 4,066 cars a day crossing from Marin County. Now the average is 8,010 daily—an increase of 97 per cent.

"It undescores the very urgent need for a new rapid transit system," concludes the survey.

Driving Offense Brings $158 Fine

Elton Strealy, 49, of 11 Merrydale Road, San Rafael, drew $158 fine and lost his driving privilege for 90 days because of his first drunken driving offense.

He was sentenced yesterday by Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Muncipal Court. Strealy must remain on probation for four months.

New Executive Director Appointed To Marin Tuberculosis, Health Unit

Resignation of Mrs. Belva Bamberg as executive director of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn., and appointment of Mrs. Geneva (Genny) Berry as her successor were announced today by Mrs. Helen Hoxie of Ross, president.

Mrs. Hoxie also announced addition of the "and Health" to the name of the organization, a change voted by the board of directors.

The new name, she said, "more clearly states the purposes, objectives and work of the association. For 29 years, a group of volunteer citizens in Marin County have striven for good general health practices toward the control of tuberculosis. In the control of TB, a communicable disease, all phases of sanitation, health education, air pollution, as well as all respiratory conditions are of concern to this agency."

Mrs. Bamberg, who has resided in Marin County for nine years, has resigned to move with her family to Van Nuys. She has been associated with the local tuberculosis association for five and one-half years.

Mrs. Berry assumed her new duties July 1, at the association's offices in San Rafael.

A former resident of Georgia, where she was active in voluntary community activities, Mrs. Berry received her education at the University of Georgia. For the past four years, she has been seal sale and public information director for the Contra Costa Tuberculosis and Health Assn. She has served as public relations director for the California Tuberculosis and Health Assn. for two months

Mrs. Berry and her husband, James L., and their two children, Jane and Philip, will move from Martinez to a new home on Montecito Drive in Corte Madera this month.

Bicycle Crash Hurts Man, 56

Alexander Albuquerque, 56, maintenance man at Olive School in Novato, thought he was completely safe from traffic accidents inside the school. But a 7-year-old boy on a bicycle proved him wrong.

Sheriff's deputies said Albuquerque, working at the school Monday noon, stepped out of one of the classrooms into the corridor. Ronald Tobin, 7, of 626 Olive Street came riding down the corridor on his bicycle. He crashed into Albuquerque, knocking him to the floor.

The victim lost consciousness several times, but doctors at San Rafael General Hospital found no injuries, although he was shaken up. He was released to his home at 1934 Center Road, Novato.

Target Shooter Wounds Self During Practice

A student from Rutgers University, working at a Marin County ranch during summer vacation, shot himself in the right foot Monday night while target shooting with a buddy.

Doctors at Marin General Hospital removed the bullet from the shattered right foot of Peter J. Unterweger, 20, who lives at Princeton, N.J. He and Peter Oppenheimer, also from New Jersey, and a third student are living in a tent on the Green Gulch Ranch near Muir Beach.

Unterweger told Deputy Sheriff Newall Snyder he was shooting at some cans on a fence with a .22 caliber pistol about 8 p.m. He said he cocked the gun and began aiming but changed his mind and lowered the gun. It fired, the bullet hitting him on his right foot, shattering a bone.

TV Hookups Are Due Soon In Marin City

Construction of Marin City's master television antenna and television outlet installations will commence this week and tenants may be able to hook up their TV sets within a month.

This was reported by Bert Klahn, executive director, to the Marin County Housing Authority Monday. Klahn said the installation will provide service to all tenants on a voluntary basis. The cost will be $4.75 per outlet per month.

The Authority also:

1. Approved a contract with the Mill Valley Garbage Co. to take over garbage collection for the Authority at charges to tenants of $1.90 per month per unit for twice weekly service in the low-rent housing and $1.60 per month per unit for the old temporary units.
2. Heard from Klahn that the Authority has received court approval to extend the Hilarita sewer contract with Belvedere to March, 1962, also that the Authority has the right to make arrangements with the Tiburon Sanitary District at a cost of between $25,000 and $30,000 to connect with its sewer system.
3. Heard that 651 families are now living at Marin City, five fewer than last month.

Station Attendant Pinned Against Pump As Auto Hits

A car with a 16-year-old girl at the wheel struck a service station island at MAC Department Store in San Rafael Monday night, pinning an attendant against one of the gas pumps.

The attendant, Airman 2/c Jose Angel Bernal, 23, of 78th Hospital, at Hamilton Air Force Base, suffered a bruised right leg and dropped to the ground. Officials at the air base hospital reported today that Bernal is under observation for leg injuries, but he suffered no bone fracture.

Police Officer John J. Kingston said the mishap occurred shortly before 8 o'clock last night when Rosemary Ruth Barkhurst, 16, of 7 Knight Drive, San Rafael, drove up to the gas pumps and her car struck the island where Bernal was standing.

SAFETY EDUCATION

San Diego Helps Amateur Boaters

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The rapid growth of boating as an American pastime has created so many amateur sailors that authorities throughout the country are devising new safety rules and guides to save lives.

One such program is getting the full sponsorship of officials at the Port of San Diego. They have launched a campaign to keep amateurs in boats out of trouble and to help in their rescue if they do come to grief.

"Our job is chiefly one of education," said port warden Richard W. Emrich. "Most persons do not deliberately fail to use common sense, it's just that they don't think or don't know."

As part of this educational campaign, the port has printed several small booklets laying down basic roles for weekend sailors. These are distributed through whatever means possible.

"We have established a system of checking vessels in and out of the port," Emrich said." While there is no law that requires anyone to register we're trying to convince sailors and fishermen it's for their own protection. We've tried to make it easy for them.

"Telephones have been set along San Diego Bay at small boat launching ramps. We are asking persons who plan to leave the harbor to call a number and we'll log him out. We ask him about what time he will return and if he hasn't checked in within a couple of hours of that time we notify the Coast Guard."

Emrich said port police keep an hourly check on cars parked near launching ramps after normal hours. He said that if a car is parked for too long a period an effort is made to contact the owner's home.

"Sometimes we learn that the party had planned to go to someplace like Newport or Ensenada and would not return that night," Emrich said. "If we had known this it would have saved a lot of trouble.

"On other occasions the phone is answered by a frantic wife who says her husband should have been back six hours ago but she didn't know who to call."

Emrich said that in either of these cases the port warden's office sends the party a set of the booklets with a polite note urging his cooperation.

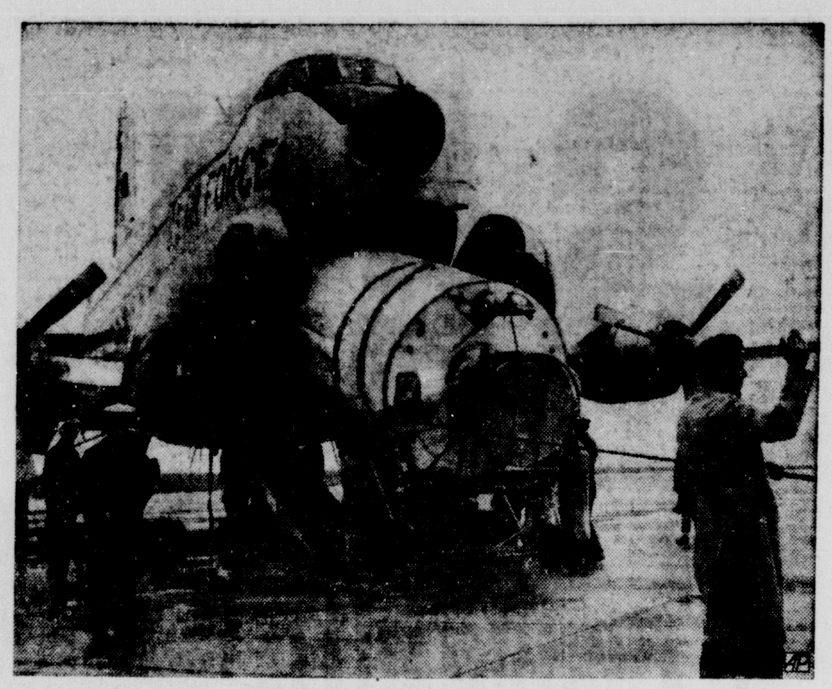

One of the booklets is entitled "So You're Going Fishing." It gives tips on the best fishing locations and on general courtesy among boat and ship operators.

A booklet entitled "Now Hear This" sums up boating procedure with this:

"Courtesy afloat is merely a matter of the Golden Rule. Sharing the harbor and boat channels with courteous consideration for the rules of the road will make for a well-regulated harbor and a safe one.

"Professional sailors are usually proficient in rules of the road and seamanship. However, it should be the ambition of week-end sailors and hobbyists to sail like professionals.

"Let common sense govern your speed. Excessive speed without regard to the proximity of shore installations and other boating is the most frequent, the most offensive, and the most damaging of all boating practices."

Installment Financing Aids School Busses

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some state school systems are using installment financing to help solve the problem of school bus transportation.

Pupil transportation is one of the critical problems facing the U.S. educational system. In 1929, some 1.9 million children, were being carried to school at public expense. By 1958, 10.5 million youngsters were using public school transportation at a cost of $384 million annually.

School boards have been caught in the squeeze of increased transportation demands and under-financing. Each year they are required to fight harder for a slice of the tax dollar. And many are hampered by state legislation that prohibits buying school buses on an installment basis.

But some states have found a gleam of hope in a program drawn up and offered by the Divco-Wayne Sales Financial Corp., a financing organization established to spur sales for the company's Wayne Works Bus Division in Richmond, Ind.

In Michigan, for example, where the legislature has given school boards more flexibility than in most other states, the financing group offered a solution in one area where banks were unwilling to extend long-term credit for needed buses to school boards already in debt.

After noting how much the Tinconning Area School Board was spending to maintain old equipment, the financing corporation convinced the school superintendent that it would be more economical to buy new ones.

Yank Bride Describes Marriage In Russia

MAPLEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — A young American couple who fell in love in Russia discovered that wedding ceremonies in the Soviet Union are all rubles and no romance.

It seemed logical for Dennis C'Connor, 24, and Mary Lou McMahon, 22, to want a Russian ceremony even though both are from New Jersey.

The two met at Middlebury College in Vermont, where they had pledged to speak only Russian while studying the language. They fell in love and became engaged. True to their promise, they spoke Russian only.

The couple decided to marry at a Russian ceremony in Moscow, where Dennis later was to study international law. The wedding came off as scheduled —but wasn't anything like what they expected.

Back home again, the new Mrs. O'Connor told about their experience.

"Dennis had to work so hard with the American Embassy to arrange a church wedding for us," she said. "Weddings in church have become rare in Russia."

Finally, a Polish priest was allowed to conduct the ceremony at St. Louis Roman Catholic Church in Moscow.

"People crowded around outside the church as we got married," Mrs. O'Connor said. "There were a lot of elderly women in shawls who seemed to remember the old-time weddings, and who cried. But the younger people just seemed aghast, as though they never had seen anything like it."

In deference to Soviet custom, the couple was married again 10 days later in real Russian style—with a bureaucratic civil ceremony.

The heart of the ceremony consisted of plunking down 15 rubles, or $1.50, before a plump woman office worker. Then the couple signed a register and had their passports stamped.

The office worker asked Mary Lou whether she wanted to keep her own name or take her husband's, since in Russia the woman can arrange it either way. The bride said she preferred to be Mrs. O'Connor.

"Then it was all over," said the bride. "I wouldn't say there was much romance involved."

The Russian press widely played up the civil ceremony—but completely ignored the church wedding, she said.

"They were so anxious to suppress all news of the church marriage that I had the impression someone was outside the church shooing people away as we got married," she said.

New Language

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A laughing mynah bird named Tiong is learning to talk in a special cage in the offices of the St. Louis Zoo.

Tiong already has a rich vocabulary in Malayan, punctuated by loud, mocking laughter. The idea is to teach him English.

So far it's slow going, although Tiong learned his new name immediately and can repeat it in soprano, alto or bass.

Zoo officials are optimistic, though, and predict Tiong will be on display, talking English, in the children's area of the zoo next year.

Garages For Satellites Envisioned

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Garages where earth satellites can get service while whirling around in space are visualized by two engineers at Convair-Astronautics.

David Meister and R. B. Wilson said giant space craft repair stations, possibly manned by robot mechanics, may be necessary to service future earth satellites.

Satellites with non-vital missions may not require maintenance, but others, such as early warning ballistic missile detection systems, would be so important they would need to be kept in constant operation, the two men said.

Meister and Wilson visualize a space garage which would carry a supply of spare parts, chase the satellites and make necessary replacements of worn equipment.

The engineers believe that most satellites will be unmanned for the next 15 years, but could call for help by radio.

They suggested that it is conceivable that a visual and motor link can be developed between a robot in space and man on earth.

They said such a system would use a combination of television feedback and arm movements translated into electrical signals. With such a system, the scientists said, a man standing on earth viewing the satellite by a television picture could perform lever manipulations which would control the robot repairman in the space garages.

Medical Society Says Inner Change Needed To Help Alcoholic Reform

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Suppose you have a friend or relative who is clearly drifting into alcoholism.

How do you deal with him? What can you say, or do, to help him?

Some good advice is at hand for the millions of Americans who are wrestling with these difficult questions.

It comes from a group of doctors, members of the Genesee County Medical Society of Flint, Mich., who have carefully studied alcoholism, and the way its victims react to various types of treatment by well-meaning friends and relatives.

In a little booklet which deserves much wider circulation, they emphasize that alcoholism is a disease, and those who are stricken with it cannot simply "will it away." They noted:

"You cannot persuade an alcoholic not to want alcohol, nor can he persuade himself not to want it, any more than a tubercular could persuade himself not to cough. The desire to drink will remain with him until an inner change takes place. This change may take place early or late in the disease. It has more chance of occurring when all conditions make the desire for sobriety outweigh the need for intoxication.

"When the alcoholic feels that drinking isn't worth the struggle, gives up, and is willing to do anything for sobriety, he is on the road to recovery and release from the need of drink."

The doctors pointed out that friends and relatives, by their behavior, "can either delay or advance the alcoholic's progress toward this point."

You delay his progress when you "add to the advantages of drinking for the alcoholic by babying him, protecting him and making him the center of your attention."

As long as other people are covering up for him, carrying his responsibilities, protecting him from the natural responsibilities of his acts, the alcoholic sees no urgent reason why he should quit drinking.

Another way to delay his progress is to nag, scold, threaten, hide his liquor supply, and lecture him on how he is making others suffer. Such tactics, the doctor said, will merely heighten his feelings of guilt, resentment and fear, and therefore "increase his desire and need to drink."

The way to advance an alcoholic's progress toward the point of turn-about, the doctors said, is to "treat him like an adult . . . let him 'do it himself' for better or worse."

"Accept his drinking as a symptom of a disease over which you have no control. Don't feel guilty about it. You didn't cause his alcoholism and you can't cure it. Relax and place responsibility for his recovery on him."

Never talk to him about his drinking while he is drunk. But "when he has a hangover, or when he is sober and brings up the subject," you can talk to him in a "kindly and sympathetic" way, not scaring him or criticizing him, but assuring him that "you know where he can get help if he wants it."

Be sure you're prepared to make good on that assurance if he ever takes you up. Locate a good doctor who understands alcoholism. Get in touch with the local group of Alcoholics Anonymous (you can find them through the telephone directory, or by writing to P. O. Box 459, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N. Y.).

Civil War Trousers Hard To Locate

ORANGE (UPI)—Better put that World War II uniform away in storage—especially the trousers. Some day, if what happened to relics of the Civil War is any example, those pants will be the most sought-after prize of souvenir collectors.

Sam Fowler has found that to be true. He has blouses, coats, overcoats, hats, even boots from the Civil War—but no trousers—in his vast collection of items from the War Between the States.

He also has a Rigdom and Ansley revolver marked "CSA" which he bought from a family in Savannah, Ga., and which may be the most valuable single souvenir in his possession.

Fowler said anything of Confederate origin is difficult to acquire and that (outside of the trousers, of course) a real Confederate flag is toughest of all.

Even in 1930, when Civil War clothing and firearms were still being sold as war surplus, a Confederate flag was listed in the catalog of a well-known dealer at a price of $1,000.

Fowler does have a Confederate guidon, a sort of flag that was carried by the calvary leader into battle. He also has a Confederate Proclamation issued by H. E. Read, a candidate from Kentucky for the Congress of the Confederate States of America.

Among Fowler's many souvenirs of the Union Military Forces is a brass-framed Henry rifle which bears the inscription "Presented to John Fox, recruit of Co. C 58th Regiment of Indiana Volunteers, Feb. 14, 1864."

A medal of honor issued to Private Lorenzo J. Lowego with Company-K of Maine Volunteers is thought by the collector to be among the first medals of honor ever issued.

A song sheet which was used by soldiers of the Union Army contains such old favorites as "Just Before the Battle Mother" and the less familiar "Hail Ulysses." These song sheets, being of perishable nature, are nearly as rare as military trousers.

For the budding Civil War collector, Fowler believes that original photographs of persons wearing Civil War uniforms is a good way to start. He himself has an old photograph album with the pictures of 100 Union generals.

Other items, not too difficult to find or expensive to buy, are badges of Civil War Encampments, the first of which was held in Indianapolis in 1866. Other good items are books about the Civil War printed while it was going on and newspapers published during the conflict. Fowler has more than 300 such newspapers.

Placing ads in newspapers or buying through reputable dealers is the easiest way to collect Civil War mementos, Fowler said, and putting away your own and your relatives' World War II souvenirs is an excellent way to start a collection that will be valuable 50 years from now.

Briefcases Are Marks Of Status In Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—If you want to get ahead in Germany, get a briefcase.

It doesn't really matter what you put in it — a pack of sandwiches, the day's racing form, a spare pair of shoes, even a newspaper. But the carrying of a brown leather briefcase has become a true symbol of success in post-war West Germany.

Almost everybody carries one. A streetcar driver, jumping from his vehicle after work, picks up his briefcase and strolls off. A policeman, going off duty, trades in his revolver and nightstick for a briefcase.

School children yearn for the day when they are old enough to trade their shoulder-satchels for the more adult briefcase. Teen-agers only feel they are "accepted" by their friends when they carry one.

Girls as well as boys carry them. In many cases, German girls would rather carry a briefcase than a pocketbook.

What Germans stuff into their briefcases is a major mystery to foreigners. Only about one in ten actually uses the article for the purpose for which is was intended—carrying business papers.

Husbands take home the shopping in them. Bachelors take their dirty shirts to the laundry in them. Garage mechanics carry spare parts in them. And thousands of office-workers arrive importantly at work in the morning with a briefcase containing sandwiches, some fruit and a beer bottle full of cold tea.

The briefcase has become such a social symbol here that Germans won't part with theirs. Traveling on a train, the commuter clutches his briefcase tightly while he opens his newspaper. Lunching downtown he leans it carefully against the leg of the restaurant table.

Sometimes, briefcases contain surprises. A Frankfurt businessman raised eyebrows recently by stopping, in the middle of a sudden shower, to take a folding umbrella from his briefcase.

So many briefcases are now appearing on city streets that wisecrackers are claiming the best way to get a job is to buy a new one—even if you don't put anything in it.

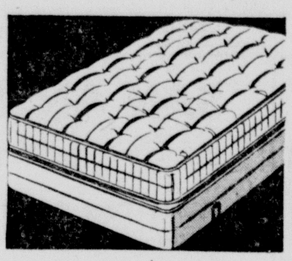

The Circus Museum at Baraboo, Wis., once was the site of the winter headquarters for the Ringling Brothers Circus.

Found: One Sidewalk

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — City officials were surprised when Dalton Carroll called and said he had found a sidewalk. There wasn't one where he said it was, the city officials objected. Then they started digging, and under a thin layer of dirt and a healthy growth of weeds, they found it. Crews went to work to clear it for use again.

'MERELY FOLKS'

Museum Collects Cowboy Artifacts

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — What was so special about the old time cowboy?

That question was put to Texas ranchers by the State Memorial Museum recently. One answered:

"Cowboys were merely folks, just plain, every-day bow-legged humans."

To keep alive fact rather than fancy surrounding the American cowboy, the museum is putting together a series of public exhibits. Such tools of the cowboy's trade as saddles, bridles, bits, spurs, branding irons and other equipment will be displayed.

"It was his occupation and not his character that standardized the cowboy," said W. W. Newcomb Jr., editor of the museum's magazine.

"His work was remote, sometimes dangerous, often solitary, and consequently, ideal fodder for romantics," Newcomb said.

Newcomb contends the real life cowboy — "trailing along in a fog of dust behind 100 slow-moving drags" — could hardly be called exciting.

And despite efforts of movies and television to keep alive the exploits of these wandering heroes, the fact remains that the cowboy of yesteryear almost has become extinct.

No longer do the riders of the open plains drive large herds of Longhorns north along the famous trails to markets where the going price for a steer was $40, compared with the $6 a head paid in Texas.

There still are a great many men who work cows, but their heyday faded with the turn of the century, according to Newcomb.

"In fact," he said, "the golden age of cow punching lasted little more than 50 years."

"It was brought on," he explained, "by the vast herds of Longhorn cattle that had grown up wild in Texas and were there for enterprising men to round up and burn brands on."

The Longhorns were a strain of Spanish cattle first brought to this continent by the conquistadores in 1521. The herds grew fast on Texas' vast open prairies, but the first big cattle fortunes were not made until the Civil War.

"As the Texas cowboys went up the trails," Newcomb said, "they carried their traditions with them. They had learned to rope, brand and herd cattle, and borrowed their clothing from the Mexican vaqueros—and they passed all of these on to the whole West.

"For 20 years or so Texas cowboys whooped it up in Dodge City and Abilene, cementing the tradition that has been going strong for 100 years," he said.

The decline of the trail-driving cowboy began in the 1880's, when the open range was broken up and fenced off by barbed wire. The railroads moved into the range, and the cattle drives were shortened.

A few mixed Longhorn herds survive today, kept by nostalgic ranchers.

"Their day is gone," Newcomb said, "They belong to the past. But their story is basic to Texas history."

Arthritis Sufferers Spend Millions Of Dollars On Fake Diets, Devices

NEW YORK (UPI) — The patient in the arthritis clinic wore a copper bracelet around his sore wrist.

"I know it's ridiculous, but I'm so desperate, I'll try anything," he said.

But the bracelet, offered as a surefire way to relieve arthritic pain, wasn't helping him. It was just one more piece of quackery peddled by ruthless gyps trying to cash in on the suffering of the nation's 11 million arthritics.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation estimates that nearly half of these people are victimized by these con-men. The bill for quackery in arthritis is estimated at 250 million dollars a year.

The money is wasted—and so are hopes, the foundation charges in a report on the "infinite variety" of drugs, treatments and devices used to bilk arthritics.

Quackery cited by the report includes:

1. Diets and dietary supplements said to cure arthritis. Diet can neither cause nor cure arthritis, but arthritics spend $10 million a year for just such alleged cures.

2. Nostrums, including liniments and lotions, claimed to give long-lasting relief. Pure fraud for the most part.

3. Vibrators are used by 14 out of every 100 arthritics out of a belief that they will furnish relief. A vibrating pillow costs $15. For a chair or couch, the price ranges up to $600 or more.

4. "Uranitoria" or abandoned uranium mines are claimed by the bilkers to give off radiation allegedly helpful to arthritics. Thousands of persons have spent up to $10 apiece for the right to sit in the mines.

5. Devices such as the copper band worn by the patient in the arthritis clinic. Other devices include metal plates to set up electronic waves which allegedly dissolve calcium deposits in joints, and a mitt lined with uranium ore.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation says wild claims usually are a tip-off. If you don't know — or if you doubt — the truth of any "arthritis cure," get in touch with your local ARF chapter or the Better Business Bureau.

"Don't waste your money," says the foundation — "and your hope."

Cape Hunting Dogs Are Not Man's Best Friend

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When you think of an affectionate, loyal pet, the first word that probably comes to your mind is "dog."

But there are a couple of pups recently born at the Washington National Zoo you certainly wouldn't want around YOUR house.

They are called Cape Hunting dogs. Zoo officials are keeping their fingers crossed. These snarling, snapping youngsters rarely survive in captivity.

The reason: their mother—whose disposition is none too good—usually kills her young. In fact, full-grown Cape Hunting dogs will kill anything they can get their fangs into.

While zoo officials theorize that mom may have become a bit less barbarous in her Washington surroundings, the surly-eyed pups seem to have retained all the instincts of their forefathers. Keepers say they prefer to stay away from the black, white-breasted dogs. "They look at me like I'm steak and mushrooms," said one keeper.

These anti-social animals are natives of South Africa. Even on that continent of killer animals, Cape Dogs are regarded among the best—and most efficient—killers.

Ranchers say they're the greatest menace to sheep and cattle. But their killer instinct don't stop there. Cape dogs will attack anything—including lions.

They work in packs, with sometimes more than 100 in a pack. When in packs, they're the most efficient hunters known to man. Here's why:

When the dogs pick up the scent, lead dogs go out to pace the chase. As the leaders tire, dogs at the rear take their place. This goes on in relays. Finally, the prey worn out, the pack closes in and forms a circle around the exhausted quarry.

One dog steps out of the pack and takes the first lunge at the cornered animal. The yapping killers follow.

A fully-grown Cape Hunting dog is about five feet long—a foot-and-a-half of that tail.

Handy Kitty

Newest pet for a desk looks like a kitten. But the tail is a pen, the body is a letter rack and the front paws hold a stamp moistener.

Vampire Bats Still Are Source Of Destruction

ATLANTA (UPI) — Vampire bats, gruesome bloodsuckers of the living, still are a scourge in many parts of the world in fact, not just in horror fiction.

For example, more than 100 human deaths have been caused by vampire bats in Central America and the Caribbean in the past 30 years.

In South America, more than a million head of livestock was lost in 1956 to vampire bats infected with rabies. Rabies infection from bat bites is one of the world's most serious health problems, affecting areas in which control programs are difficult and inadequate.

Vampire bats are winged mammals — flying rodents. They are secretive by day and usually strike their victim at night when it is asleep or drowsy.

The "hot spots" for rabies-infected bats in the western hemisphere include parts of the Caribbean area, Mexico, Central and South America. Economic loss from livestock deaths each year in this area is heavy. Human deaths from rabies transmitted by vampire bats have been reported most frequently in Trinidad, Mexico and British Guiana.

Rabies in animals is found in almost every country of the world and, according to the U.S. Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center here, occurs at rates dependent mainly upon control programs.

World statistics on rabies incidence, however, are not complete or exact because of a lack of diagnostic and reporting facilities in underdeveloped countries and areas in which rabies apparently is still widespread.

In the United States, rabies in dogs is being brought under control with marked success. For example, in 1946 the United States had 10,872 reported cases of animal rabies of which 8,384 were in dogs. In 1958, the United States reported 4,814 cases of animal rabies and only 1,643 cases in dogs.

Rabies in wild animals apparently is increasing in the United States.

Available Communicable Disease Center reports indicate that the Philippines, India and Thailand are hot spots for animal rabies, but that Japan and Malaya are relatively free of "mad" animals.

Sailors Learn To Fight Subs On Dry Land

SAN DIEGO, Calif (UPI)—The Navy is practicing and perfecting its techniques of anti-submarine warfare tactics without going to sea.

Officers and enlisted me at the Fleet Sonar School here are learning their lessons in land-locked combat information centers (CIC's) mocked up to resemble those of destroyers protecting convoys miles at sea.

To accomplish this ingenious classroom realism the Navy is utilizing a device known as an Action Speed Tactical Trainer which was developed by the military electronics division of Daystrom, Inc., with the U.S. Naval Training Device Center at Port Washington, N.Y.

The device is a simulator which combines electronics, electrical circuitry and electro-mechanical instruments with such simple things as home movie-type projectors and grease pencils.

The simulator presents and develops a problem, and finally recapitulates it for review and discussion.

The trainees taking part in the exercise may number as many as 100. As a preliminary, they meet in the school's auditorium where they are briefed by an instructor on factors controlling the simulated engagement—weather, time, tide, sunrise, sunset, etc.

That done, "commanders" of the anti-sub teams and their members move into cubicles which are equipped with the simulators.

The officer acting as OTC, officer in tactical command, uses one of these mock CIC's as his command bridge. From this position he maneuvers and directs his force as necessary to counter or repel any threatening enemy submarines.

In the cubicles, simulated radar repeaters — cathode ray tubes similar to the picture tubes on home TV receivers—are the focal points of attention. The positions of all task force elements—air, sea and undersea—are shown on their screens.

In the problem control room, the instructor can view the action on a semi-opaque glass screen, nine feet square, which represents 100 square miles of ocean. On this screen he scans the entire battle area as it would be seen from both the OTC's command bridge and from an enemy periscope.

On the instructor's console are instruments which permit him to monitor all phases of the operation. He can insert "enemy submarines" in the cathode ray tubes of all cubicles in the areas he wants the intruders to be operating.

The unit commanders attempt to solve the anti-submarine problem confronting them from information they learn from the repeater screens in front of them and simulated radio telephone reports.

The movements of all ships and planes as controlled by their various commanders are reflected as dots of light on the instructor's semi-opaque screen. Plotters behind it trace all the action on the back of the glass with colored grease pencils.

The most important movements of the principal units are retraced on the front of the screen in fluorescent chalk. This chalk, when subjected to ultra-violet light, enables examination of the entire problem in the projection room after the exercise is completed.

Tavern Names Rapped

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Alderman Clarence A. Heiden says he thinks Milwaukee is getting too many "crazy names" on taverns.

"We once had a tavern called the Snake Pit," Heiden told the Common Council's license committee. "I don't like those names. They deteriorate a residential neighborhood and attract undesirables."

At his suggestion, a tavern operator who had planned to call his establishment "The Rag Doll" agreed to change the name.

Stealing The Barn Door

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (UPI)—"I've heard everything," Judge Samuel R. Searing said as he sentenced John Dietz, 20, to 15 days in the Niagara County Jail.

Asked why he stole a set of hubcap locks from an auto supply store, Dietz had replied, "I was afraid someone would steal my hubcaps."

Traffic Laws Becoming Universal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It's getting to the point where you can drive through almost any state in the nation reasonably certain that the basic traffic laws are pretty much the same as the ones you learned back home.

This is a recent development.

Take stopping for school buses. Present law says traffic must stop in both directions when a school bus unloads its unpredictable cargo on a two or three-lane highway. When there are four or more lanes, traffic in back of the bus stops, but cars going in the opposite lanes do not.

But until this year, Florida police reaped a bonanza from vacationers because of the bus law in their state. In Florida, you were supposed to stop in either direction no matter how wide the highway. It wasn't until 1959 that the Sunshine State fell in line with the rest of the country.

The movement to standardize traffic laws is almost as old as the automobile itself.

In the early 1920s, Herbert Hoover—then secretary of commerce—set up a National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances. Ever since then, this group has been prodding state officials to adopt a uniform traffic code.

It hasn't been easy, as witness the matter of automobile inspection.

In 35 states, there's no inspection set-up at all. The other 15 demand periodic checks. States are reluctant to adopt the inspection system because of the complicated legislative and bureaucratic processes involved.

The committee puts out what it considers the ideal traffic code each year. It contains more than 400 provisions covering everything from streetcar regulations to accident reports.

Many states — especially in the Northeast — are adopting large sections of the code.

One particular section, dealing with speed limits, is gaining the widest acceptance. This one calls for a 60-mile-per-hour speed limit for daytime driving, 55 at night and 30 in urban areas.

More states are adopting these provisions each year. Someday you will have one less excuse when the police flag you down—in a strange state.

Importance Of Sitters

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — A University of Vermont human relations specialist said parents should think of a baby sitter as a substitute parent rather than as someone who just sits.

Dr. Dalton Vernon said "a sitter must be reliable, responsible and able to take charge when alone in the home. Treat your sitter with respect and courtesy, pay her the agreed-upon rate and see that she gets home safely."

Disorder In Court

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Charles T. John, 40, just didn't know when he was well off.

John was in court to face a charge of disturbing the peace. While waiting for his case to be called, he got into an argument with his wife, Zonie.

John settled the argument by slugging his wife on the jaw. Police and court officials separated the two and then held John on a more serious charge of aggravated assault.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, July 13, the 195th day of the year, with 171 more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1787, Congress passed the Northwest Ordinance of 1787, thus setting up the first organized government west of the original 13 states.

In 1832, the Senate failed to pass a bill rechartering the Bank of the U. S. after President Andrew Jackson's veto.

In 1865, Horace Greeley used the phrase, "Go west, young man go west," in an editorial in the New York Tribune. He later admitted he had read it first in an article written by J. L. Soule in 1851 in the Terre Haute, Ind., Express.

In 1878, the Russo-Turkish War ended.

A thought for today: U. S. reformer Wendell Phillips said: "The best use of laws is to teach men to trample bad laws under their feet."

Termites Eating More Homes Today

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Termite hordes seem to be gorging themselves on floor joists and door stoops in a constantly widening area of North America, a University of Missouri entomologist reported.

But whether there has actually been a population explosion among the wood-eaters remains a matter of debate. Some scientists believe reported damage has increased only because there are more houses to eat and because householders have become termite conscious.

Whatever the reason, the voracious insects with a taste for lumber now are eating their way through the homes of millions of Americans, according to Dr. Philip Stone, University of Missouri entomologist.

Stone said one large commercial organization estimated after a detailed survey that termites each year invade about two million houses in which their dining produces enough damage to send the owner in quest of professional aid.

How many marauders escape detection, or haven't yet reached the stage where their depredations produce a call for help, is anybody's guess, Stone said.

In any event, the winged insects now are found in all continental states except Alaska. Alaska is believed to be free of them, but Stone said that might be only because there has been no intensive study there.

Termites, which love warm, moist places, now are found even in such semi-arid regions as Arizona and New Mexica, Stone said.

Modern building practices tend to help support the invaders. Stone said homes built on concrete slabs not only provide a cozy winter residence for termites but permit them to eat the year around, instead of just during the summer months. Protected and insulated crawl spaces provide just the right environment, he said.

The trend to suburbia also is suspect, since man is moving to the natural domain of the termite, who got to this earth ahead of him by several million years. Unlike man, the termite has come down through the eons little changed from his ancestors.

While there are many species of termites, Stone has one rule of thumb to distinguish them from the flying ant, which looks pretty similar.

The villain has a boat-shaped body and four wings of equal length. The ant has four wings of unequal length, attached to and hour-glass figure.

Planes Become Link In Industrial System In Flights From Factories

NEW YORK (UPI) — Airplanes are becoming a link in the nation's industrial system.

They are being used as part of the assembly line and as flying warehouses, carrying finished products directly to dealers in shipping containers loaded at the ends of production lines.

Cargo pods filled at factories can be attached to the bellies of some airliners, eliminating completely the middle men in shipping.

Since World War II, air freight traffic has increased sharply. But airline officials say the sharpest increase is yet to come, with the use of jet freighters, cargo holds on jet passenger planes and the conversion of some propeller-driven sky giants to flying moving vans.

Industries that now maintain their own fleets of executive aircraft for transporting company officials are looking into the possibility of buying their own cargo planes as well.

Pan American World Airways has set up a system with Aero Mayflower, a nationwide moving company, and American Express, for loading household goods into huge containers, trucking them to airports, loading them on cargo planes and flying them almost anywhere in the world.

American Airlines is regarded as a link in the production line of a Boston optical company. Eyeglasses, frames and other products are boxed at the plant, taken to Logan Airport and put on planes that distribute them across the country.

A Chicago wallpaper retailer has eliminated the need for a high-cost inventory by keeping only a sample book on hand. When a customer decides what he wants, the retailer gets in touch with the Boston manufacturer who rushes the paper to Chicago by airplane.

Gloves cut in a plant near Boston are flown to Puerto Rico for final stitching. Produce farmers in California's San Joaquin valley by-pass big city markets by having their quality strawberries, asparagus, peaches and other crops flown across the country for consumption the day after they are picked.

A pen manufacturer makes parts in California and Illinois and flies them by Pan American to Puerto Rico for assembly. The pens are packaged in display boxes and flown to distribution points.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, chairman of the board of Eastern Airlines, is convinced that cargo operations are the greatest untapped area for potential airline development.

Eventually, he says, the transport of cargo will be more important and greater in volume than the carriage of passengers. That is what happened on the railroads, he said, and it will happen on airlines.

Eastern is planning to convert several of its large propeller-driven planes to all-cargo service as soon as its jet fleet is well under way. Meanwhile, it is using canoe-shaped containers fastened to the bottoms of Constellations. Each of these "speedpaks" carries 8,200 pounds of cargo and has wheels on which it can be rolled away three minutes after a plane pulls to a halt.

United Airlines operates seven pressurized DC-6A cargoliners and is starting to carry 24,000 pounds of cargo on each of its new DC-8 jet mainliners.

American Airlines, which flew two million ton-miles in its first year of cargo flights in 1944, expects to break 100 million ton-miles easily this year with the help of a new fleet of converted DC-7 passenger planes and its new jet passenger planes.

Pan American reports that in 10 years, it more than tripled its cargo ton-miles, passing the 100 million mark in 1958. Shipments last year included household goods, fresh foods, tropical fish in water-filled plastic bags, baby chicks, horses and even 19 Indian tepees for the Brussels World's Fair.

Some airlines are so busy handling cargo that their customers reserve space for crates the way they reserve seats for themselves.

Branding Irons Become West's Sign Language

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Cattle brands have become the sign language of the Southwest.

Cattlemen attending the recent convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Austin pointed out that a good cowhand at roundup time might possibly know as many as 50 of the brands on sight, and could figure out 100 more.

Historians say branding is more than 4,000 years old, but its fame and ingenuity reached a peak on the plains of the American West.

The first brands in Texas, when it was still a part of Mexico, were simple crosses burned into the flanks of longhorns by vaqueros.

Later, letters and numerals were added for good measure, and reading the brands might be compared to reading hieroglyphics.

An example of the left to right brands is the "2-FAT," adopted by a rancher who was disillusioned with his own waistline. Rancher Pete Coffin adopted an outside-in brand, marking his livestock with a "p" enclosed in the outline of a coffin. An example of the top to bottom brand is the top of a "y" running into a "j," for the "Yes Jennie" brand. The rancher said the brand reflected his vocabulary with his wife.

At first, cattle were branded with a "running brand." That was simply an iron bar just long enough to be carried on the open range. But rustlers could also use a running brand to make changes and many states passed laws outlawing this type of iron.

"Stamp" brands took their place, and cattle barons developed the individual brands that were more distinctive than a signature.

Sometimes a well-known brand on a herd of cattle has been proof of identity, as when the foreman of the South Texas King Ranch showed a Cheyenne, Wyo., banker a herd with the famous "Running W" in 1884 and cashed a check to pay off some cowhands.

Another famous Texas brand was the "XIT" which was the trademark of a ranch covering 10 counties. The brand stood for "Ten in Texas."

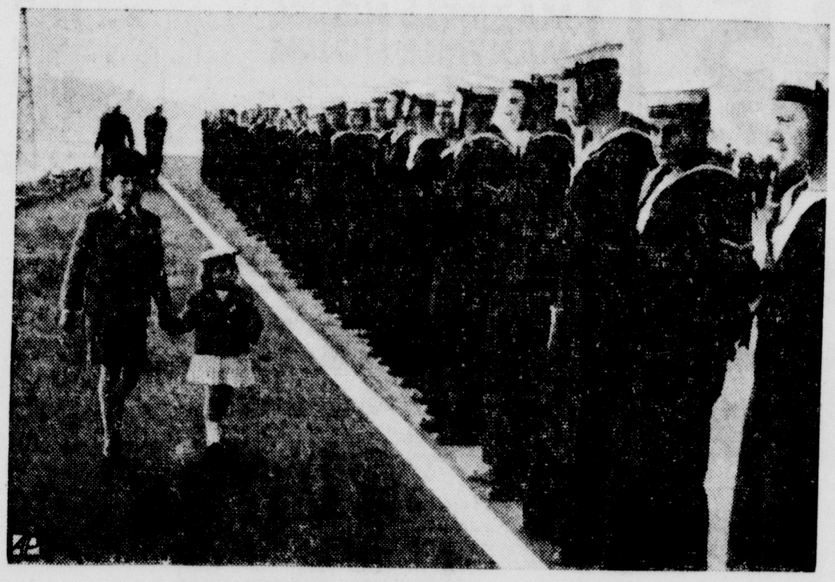

Cattle owned by the state of Texas are still branded with a "Lone Star."

National Stars Win Again As Mathews, Mays Shine

Musial Also A Hero In 6-0 Victory

NEW YORK (UPI)—Eddie Mathews, Willie Mays, Stan Musial and Ken Boyer supplied the power today with home runs to pace the National League to a 6-0 victory over the American League in the second and last of 1960's All-Star games.

It was the second straight triumph for the National League. It had beat the American Leaguers, 5-3, in Kansas City on Monday in the first of the All-Star games.

The big blow today was Mathews' homer. It came in the second inning with his Milwaukee Braves teammate, Joe Adcock, on first base.

It turned out that blow was enough.

But the National League added to its margin when Willie Mays of the Giants led off the third inning with a home run. Before that, Willie had singled and later he added another single to his All-Star performance, giving him 14 hits in the 38 times he has been to bat in All-Star competition.

Stan the Man Musial came up as a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning and drove a pitch by Gerry Staley into the right field stands.

WILLIE IN TROUBLE — The San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays runs into a little difficulty in today's game. He is being tagged out by American League third baseman Frank Malzone in the first inning. Assisting is catcher Yogi Berra. The umpire is Tom Gorman. (AP Wirephoto)

School Tax Vote Looms In Larkspur

Money—to be raised through a tax rate election—appeared last night to be the only solution to the problems of the Larkspur School District.

Although no date was set for an election and no definite increase decided upon, trustees indicated the voters would be asked to up the present rate of $1.75 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.50 sometime before the general election in November.

The increased figure, as well as the present $1.75, includes both the general tax rate ($1.35) and special taxes which finance, among other things, retirement funds for district employees.

The present low tax rate, trustees said, has made it necessary to drop the athletic program, the district psychologist and possibly the school bus transportation system.

Appearing before the board last night were representatives of the Hillview Gardens and Mariners Cove subdivisions to discuss the threat of no transportation for their children.

Cancellation of transportation may be necessary, they were told, if the assessed valu-

Tears Flow As Carmel Quits Council

With tears pouring from her eyes, Carmel Booth resigned from the San Anselmo City Council last night at 10:52 o'clock.

But even as she withdrew from San Anselmo politics "for keeps," to move with her husband James E. Booth to Lake County, Mrs. Booth served notice she'll be watching, and may pop in from Lake County any moment.

HER PROMISE

"If something goes wrong in the city in which I still hold an interest, I'll be back," she promised. "Meanwhile, God bless you all."

The remaining councilmen, by 3-to-1 vote, immediately named Robert E. Rouse, 32, market planning manager for Hexcel Products Co. of Berkeley, to succeed Mrs. Booth. Rouse missed election to the council by two votes in last April's balloting. Arthur W. Smith voted "no" because he said he wants to look around for other likely candidates.

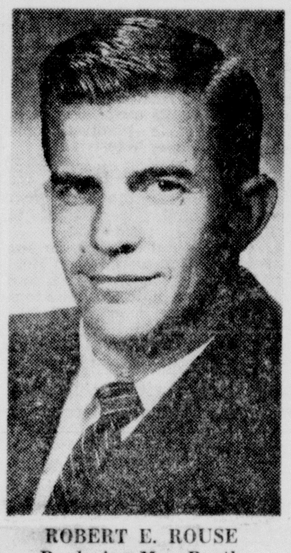

Swearing in of Rouse is set for 7:45 o'clock tonight in the city hall. However, if there is no quorum tonight, the ceremony will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

U.C. GRADUATE

Rouse, a graduate of University of California in Berkeley, lives with his family at 83 Jordan Avenue. He lived in Belvedere before moving to San Anselmo in 1955.

Mayor William Franchini opened the meeting last night by presenting Mrs. Booth a gift —a transistor radio — which her four colleagues bought for her just before the meeting.

Bond Election Set Sept. 13 In Lagunitas

The Lagunitas School District board last night called for a bond election Sept. 13 to finance additions to the school.

The amount of the bond issue and the size of the additions will be decided by the board at 8 p.m. today.

The board conferred last night with Mill Valley architect J. Martin Rosse on various proposals for the additions, but made no decisions, Mrs. Georgette H. Vilas, clerk-secretary, reported.

Rudolph Kupfer, assistant county superintendent in charge of business administration, will be asked to attend tonight's meeting to give information on the district's bonding capacity.

Mrs. Vilas said the school is "bursting at the seams." Enrollment was nearly 400 at the close of school. In September four grades will be on double sessions.

Court Refuses To Issue Writ

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The State Supreme Court today denied a writ of mandate sought by dissident California delegates to the Democratic National Convention to prevent Gov. Edmund G. Brown from releasing the delegation before it cast a "favorite son" vote for him.

The court did not comment.

McCollister Auto Plate Prestige Cut

Assemblyman Richard H. McCollister (R-San Rafael) is a man with the prestige of two cars.

As of today he's also a man with the prestige of two kinds of special car licenses.

Driving car A, a sporty white Thunderbird sedan, he goes abroad as a legislator distinguished by a plate with green "A7"—for Assemblyman, Seventh District.

Driving car B, a duplicate of car A which up to yesterday even had duplicate A-7 license plates, he isn't identified as an assemblyman now but he still has whatever privileges may be accorded a ham radio operator. Often this slips you through fire lines, for instance.

Just where this leaves his wife Iris, who usually drives one car or the other, isn't clear as she is neither assemblyman nor ham operator.

But McCollister will be an ex-assemblyman himself as of next Dec. 31, and there's suspicion that he has been an exham operator for a whole lot longer than that.

"When he came in for a 'ham' permit yesterday and gave his call letters as 'W6BNK,' I knew they must have been issued years ago," said F. J. Watson, assistant registration chief at the California Department of Motor Vehicles office in Sacramento.

"I commented that it looked to be an old number and he told me it was issued when he was in high school."

McCollister is 52 with high school days some while back. He attended Mt. Tamalpais

Truman Silent On Parley Trip

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI)—Speculation that former president Harry S. Truman would reverse his field and attend the Democratic national convention after all ran high today, but Truman's office steadfastly maintained a mysterious silence.

Early today, Truman said he had "nothing to say" when asked if he would respond to the convention's urgent invitation for him to come to Los Angeles.

HUMPHREY COMES OUT FOR ADLAI

Senator Jackson Picks Up Backing For Second Spot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy stormed up above the 761 publicly committed delegate votes required for the Democratic presidential nomination today as the New Jersey delegation which voted to swing 31½ of its 41 votes to him.

COMBINED AP and UPI

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Democrats moved into the big business of picking their presidential nominee today in a flurry of last-minute sidechoosing swirling about John F. Kennedy's high-rolling vote crest.

Backers of the youthful Massachusetts senator confidently talked of a first ballot victory. (See also stories on pages 4, and 10.)

TO NAME KENNEDY

Minnesota's leaders split. Gov. Orville Freeman announced he had been chosen to put Kennedy's name before the convention, an announcement confirmed — later by Kennedy's headquarters.

But Sen. Hubert Humphrey came out for Adlai E. Stevenson. He said he had come to Los Angeles intending to vote for Kennedy but changed his mind.

ANOTHER VOTE

Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota said he would vote for Stevenson.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington today won the support of Sen. Mike Mansfield and 17 other Midwestern and Western party leaders for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Jackson is one of five figures being considered for his running-mate by Kennedy.

Kennedy also is considering Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri—whose campaign manager said Kennedy's "Boston blitz" for the Democratic nomination has been blunted.

"It was blunted by the galleries," Rep. Charles Brown (Mo.) said, referring to the tumultuous 22-minute convention demonstration given Adlai E. Stevenson last night on the convention floor.

Tax Decrease Predicted In Mill Valley

Mill Valley can expect a 23-cent cut in the city tax rate for 1960-61, City Manager A. E. Almcrants said today.

Almcrants said County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel's "abnormal assessment figures, which are excessively high" should enable the city to cut its tax rate to $1.86 per $100 assessed valuation. Last year, Mill Valley levied $2.09—highest city tax rate in Marin County.

The city manager and city councilmen discussed the 1960-61 budget at a "work session" last night. However, although he predicted the tax rate, Almcrants declined to say on what total budget his prediction was predicated.

Belgians Smash Congolese Troops

U.N. Called To Meet On Crisis

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Belgian shock troops smashed into Congo Army strongholds today in a major offensive to safeguard whites in the chaotic Congo. The Belgians wrested Leopoldville Airport from African troops and then seized the capital city itself.

The Congolese government announced it had appealed urgently to its sister African republic of Ghana for troops to restore order "because of the long delay before U. N. troops could become available."

While the commandoes fought Congolese troops in the streets of Leopoldville, the Belgian ambassador told newsmen that Belgium would reassume command of its former colony if there were no other way to restore law and order to the nation.

LIGHTNING ACTION

Heavily armed Belgian paratroopers spearheaded the lightning action as Information Minister Anicet Kashamura told the Congolese Parliament that Belgium and this newly-independent nation were virtually in a "state of war."

Russia accused the West of "colonial oppression" in the Congo today and asked the U. N. to take immediate steps to end this "armed aggression."

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold summoned the U. N.'s Security Council into extraordinary session tonight at its New York headquarters to discuss the Congo crisis.

REQUEST SIGNED

Hammarskjold, who had thought to avoid a council debate through exercise of his favorite "quiet" diplomacy took the initiative in convoking the council for an 8:30 p.m. EDT session.

His action came after he circulated to U. N. members a request signed by Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba and President Joseph Kasa Vubu of the Republic of the Congo for a U. N. military force to put down the fighting that has ravaged the country since its attainment of independence two weeks ago.

White House vacillation on whether the United States would send troops to such a U. N. unit lent support to speculation that Hammarskjold had such a contingent in mind.

President Eisenhower yesterday opposed a request from the Congolese cabinet for 3,000 American troops, but was reported undecided today on the question of joining a U. N. force.

NEW ADMINISTRATOR—Dr. Stephen E. Epler (left), Nebraska-born educator who was selected from among 90 applicants to become administrative assistant at College of Marin, discusses his new position with President Ward H. Austin.

Marin College Facilities Impress Future Prexy

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

Dr. Stephen E. Epler, the man most likely to succeed Ward H. Austin as head of College of Marin, dropped in for a look at his new place of business yesterday.

He liked what he saw.

"You have everything here to make a fine junior college," he said. "Population, location, climate — there is no reason why we should not have a great future."

The tall, lean educator, who was chosen from among 90 applicants for the $15,000 a year job as administrative assistant and future president of the college, will remain in Marin through today. During his brief preview of the school, he will have discussed educational and administrative problems with President Austin and members of his staff.

Last night he and his wife, Ferne, were guests of honor at an informal dinner at the Sausalito home of Trustee Rupert H. Kempf, which was attended by president and Mrs. Austin and the other four trustees.

During the two-day whirlwind visit to Marin, Mrs. Epler occupied herself with househunting. As of this morning she said she had not found a suitable home for her family.

Epler said he was disappointed that the students are not on the campus at this time of year so that at least a brief meeting with student body representatives could have been arranged.

"After all, the whole purpose of the college is for the students," he said. "I am a great believer in drawing them into the administration of the school to as great a degree as possible."

The 50-year-old educator, who was president of Reedley Junior College in Fresno County when he applied for the local position, is a graduate of Cotner College in Lincoln, Neb. He earned his Master's Degree in school administration from

Petitions Started To Annex All Of Terra Linda To City

Proponents of annexing all of Terra Linda to San Rafael today published legal notice of intention to circulate annexation petitions.

Heading the annexation drive are Anton Monich, Alfred O'Brien, J. T. Shipman and Robert Stewart.

Monich and others some months ago asked the San Rafael City Council to annex part of Terra Linda. Councilmen took the position that it should be "all or nothing." The city would then take over assets of the Terra Linda Community Services District, which would go out of existence. There would be sufficient, City Manager Dan E. Andersen told the council, to eliminate any need for charging an annexation petition circulation, the four fee to Terra Linda property owners.

In announcing the start of leaders today pointed out that the tax rates of the Terra Linda Community Services District and the City of San Rafael, as proposed for 1960-61, are identical: 96 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

They expressed hope for a fall election on the annexation.

"The community services district form of government has done an outstanding job in the past but has now reached the maturity of its growth, and is no longer able to serve the needs of the residents," they declared in a prepared statement.

Little Hope Held For Freeing Fliers

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. officials hold little hope of winning freedom for two air force officers held in the Soviet Union after the shooting down of an American reconnaissance bomber on July 1.

The expectation here is that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will put the two men on trial on charges of espionage in order to promote his campaign against American bases in Allied countries.

The United States formally demanded release of the two officers yesterday in a note delivered to the Soviet Foreign Ministry by the embassy in Moscow.

The note rejected Soviet charges that the aircraft was on a spy mission similar to that of the U-2 high-altitude jet which went down in the Ural Mountains May 1. It was that incident which preceded the breakup of the summit conference and the development of bitter new cold war conflict between Washington and Moscow.

The RB-47 which was accused by the Soviet government of violating its air space on July 1 in the arctic region of the Kola Peninsula actually was never closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast, the U. S. note declared.

WANTON ATTACK

"It is therefore evident," the note said, "that pursuant to instructions of the Soviet government, airplanes of the Soviet air force wantonly attacked the American airplane over international waters with the admitted loss of that aircraft and of the life of at least one of the members of the crew.

"Two other members of the crew have, according to the Soviet note, been taken into custody without any legal basis and are to be subjected to trial under what is called 'full severity of Soviet law.' The three other members of the crew remain unaccounted for."

The United States demanded the release of 1st Lt. John R. McKone, 28, of Tonganoxie, Kan., the navigator, and 1st Lt. F. B. Olmstead, 24, of Elmira, N. Y., the co-pilot.

The return of the body of the pilot, which the Russians claimed to have recovered from a life raft, also was demanded. He has been identified as Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39, of Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Britain May Ask Warnings On U.S. Flights

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is expected to ask President Eisenhower for assurance that the British government will be consulted before American planes fly any missions other than local training flights from bases in Brtitain.

Qualified informants said Macmillan wants to make the Attlee-Truman agreement of 1951—under which U. S. bases operate in Britain—more effective, more secure, and more precise.

The prime minister told the House of Commons yesterday: "I am taking up with President Eisenhower the question whether there should be any modifications or improvements of these arrangements."

Macmillan's statement came in reply to a barrage of Laborite questions on the downing by the Russians of an RM47 reconnaissance plane that flew from a U. S. base in Britain.

Urgent consultation between London and Washington already has begun. But it was authoritatively denied that Macmillan has any intention of flying to the United States for personal talks with the President.

The original understanding between the U. S. and British governments on bases was reached by Prime Minister Clement Attlee and President Truman in October, 1951.

4 Arrested In Sausalito Disturbances

Three men were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace early today at the Kettle Restaurant in Sausalito — just 24 hours after it took two police to quell another disturber at the same place.

Sgt. David Cooper booked Cecil E. Cooney, 27, of 13 Lodge Lane, and Michael McNally, 31, of 5 Lodge Lane, both San Rafael, and Thomas C. Patton, 31, of 15 Central Avenue, Sausalito in the county jail after their arrest at 2:25 a.m. at the Kettle on Bridgeway Boulevard.

Just 24 hours earlier, it took combined efforts of Officers Peter Lampros and John J. Higgins to arrest Lawrence L. Hortsmann, 23, of 703 Bridgeway, at the same place. Hortsmann kicked Lampros and was charged with — among other things — assault with a deadly weapon (his foot).

Sergeant Cooper said today's ruckus started when Cooney and McNally entered the restaurant and started to shout at waiter Allen Wong for service. Patton intervened on Wong's behalf and a fight started.

Planner To Work In 50th State During Vacation

An unromantic but useful Hawaiian holiday is contemplated by principal planner B. D. Dobbs of the Marin County Planning Commission staff.

He sought and obtained county supervisors' permission yesterday to take an accrued vacation plus some saved-up time from July 18 to Aug. 22 during which period he will be in the new state of Hawaii serving as a special consultant on zoning matters.

The supervisors were advised also that Andrei Rogers, a junior planner, has quit the planning staff to continue his studies.

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Thousands of students shouting "Cuba yes, Yankee no" marched past the U.S. embassy last night and burned an American flag in front of the presidential palace before being dispersed by riot police armed with tear gas.

At least seven persons were arrested in the demonstration called to protest alleged U.S. "intervention" in Mexican affairs and to show sympathy for Premier Fidel Castro.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Funeral services were pending today for slain beauty Nina Thoeren, 19, a college coed and daughter of the late screen writer Robert Thoeren.

Missiles Parley

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Negotiators, reporting progress, returned to the bargaining table today in an effort to end the nearly month-old machinists strike against Lockheed's missile and space division.

Talks have been underway here since Monday when they were moved from San Francisco where bargaining attempts met with repeated failures.

Rotary Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A dapper young king and his exquisite queen found San Francisco enchanting today.

And for San Franciscans welcoming King Phumiphol Adulidet and Queen Sirikit of Thailand, the feeling was mutual.

The royal couple arrived late yesterday, and were to tour the International Business Machines plant in San Jose and visit Stanford University.

Shriners Parade

DENVER (AP) — Denver's first version of a ticker tape reception scattered thousands of bits of telephone directory pages over 12,000 Shriners who paraded for six hours yesterday through the downtown district.

About 200,000 spectators turned out for the parade.

Storm In Texas

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Accompanied by a spectacular electrical storm, cloudbursts clubbed the south plains of west Texas again yesterday with up to seven inches of rain.

Ike Signs Money Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower has signed a $994,855,000 money bill to finance military construction projects during the next 12 months.

Japan Election

TOKYO (AP) — Fractional rivalries within the ruling Liberal-Democratic party-t oday postponed election of Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's successor at least 24 hours, but Huyato Ikeda was still considered likely to win tomorrow.

Cutter Liable

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The State District Court of Appeal has ruled Cutter Laboratories is liable for $147,300 in damages for two children crippled by its Salk polio vaccine in 1955.

The court yesterday held Cutter was liable under a breach of implied warranty because the vaccine caused the disease it was intended to prevent.

The firm said an appeal on the question of implied warranty would be made to the State Supreme Court.

Final Map Approved For 209 Marin Bay Homesites

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved the final map of the first 209 homesites in the Marin Bay development near McNear's Ranch, but imposed conditions that the contractors must meet

The commissioners unanimously voted for approval hinging on five conditions. Latipac-Perini Co. must obtain approval of the San Rafael Sanitary District on sanitary connections; dedicate a right of way for eventual widening of San Pedro Road; dedicate certain slope easements, improve a road running to the west side of the proposed church site leading into the first unit—and change the name of the street, Via Capri.

Dan Coleman, engineer for Latipac-Perini Co., told the commissioners that his company "would willingly agree to what the city engineer showed on setback line" for sewage.

The commission demanded the change of the name of "Via Capri," noting that it easily might be confused with Capri Court by the fire department and post office.

The commissioners also approved a portion of a tentative map of unit two of the Marin Professional Center near the Terra Linda intersection. The parcel contains seven lots in an unclassified district.

The commission set for Aug. 9 and 23 two public hearings on the rezoning from single family to duplex residential land use of lots at Reservoir Road and Mira Mar Avenue and three lots at Woods Street off Ross Street. The hearings will be held in the city hall at 7:30 p.m.

Fire Destroys Quentin Hay

Hay caught fire in a San Quentin Prison dairy farm last night, and $1,500 of it was destroyed before the blaze was doused.

A farm inmate discovered the fire at 9:30 p.m., reported Associate Warden Dale B. Frady. While two trucks of the prison fire department, under Chief Jack Brennan, sprayed water on the burning cattle food, 52 prison inmates dragged 30 tons of hay from the barn.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. The dairy farm is just outside the main prison compound.

Apartment Plans Pass Second Try

Plans for a 12-unit apartment building for Woodland Avenue between Irwin and Dubois Streets submitted for the second time by contractor James B. Williams, were approved by the San Rafael Planning Commission last night.

Williams, who was castigated by the commission last month for building apartments that were a discredit to the city, returned last night with altered plans and an architect. Williams has hired architect Gordon Phillips to handle his plans, reported Joan Castrillon, planning commission secretary.

The commission's approval is subject to the department of public works' passing of the construction over a culvert, and a go-ahead from the city building inspector.

City Engineer Dominic J. Selmi pointed out that the proposed building would pass over the culvert "in two places."

Williams requested a 10-foot front setback (15-foot is required) and the commissioners voted to approve the setback as long as it was not less than the setback of the Capri Apartments on the east.

The commission also granted architectural approval for a five-unit 2-building apartment at 534 Canal Street to be built by Audre Easterday. But first architects Hall and Hoffman must submit an elevation plan for the building.

The commission also:

1. Set July 26 as last hearing on rezoning of California Division of Highways surplus property on Francisco Boulevard and Frontage Road from heavy commercial and manufacturing to planned commercial and light industrial.
2. Set for July 26 second hearing on rezoning of the Forrest Clark residence at 519 Belle Avenue from duplex residential to multiple family residential.
3. Granted a use permit for one year with option to renew to Herbert Saxton, Belvedere Street, and Bellam Boulevard, to stockpile topsoil and garden supplies.

San Francisco's Union Square is constructed on land given to the city by its first postmaster, John W. Geary.

Rezoning Request Triggers Dispute

A vocal free-for-all broke out at last night's San Rafael Planning Commission meeting when a resident asked to have his single family residential zoning changed to multiple family.

Eugene O'Conner of 43 Marquard Avenue told the commissioners that he and M. F. Schieser of 45 Marquard Avenue wished the zoning changed because if fire should destroy part of the three units that now stand on the property, the city would not give permission to rebuild.

O'Connor's son, Planning Commissioner Eugene F. O'Connor, leaned back in his chair and said nothing.

Secretary Joan Castrillon read four letters protesting the rezoning because of a "hazardous" traffic problem on the narrow street.

O'Connor Sr. answered the rebuffs. He told the commissioners he had been a resident of the neighborhood for 54 years and had "given the right of way for people on Fremont Street to come through Marquard Avenue. . . . I never see congestion, but the people on Fremont come down the hill 40 or 50 miles an hour."

(Many of the members of the delegation on hand to protest were from Fremont Avenue, which is two blocks above Marquard Avenue.)

Charles Marelli of 28 Marquard Avenue protested the streets are "jammed to the gills."

The battling O'Connor shot back that Marelli had "infringed on" 10 to 15 feet of city property by planting grass."

Marelli said he was not worried about O'Connor's building additional units but of some "ambitious buyer."

Commissioner Orlando Conti asked O'Connor if he would be satisfied with a zoning for a triplex. O'Connor nodded.

"Why change it?," boomed Marelli.

"The man wants protection," retorted Conti.

O'Connor announced he was going to give notice to the police that speeders were coming down the hill at 40 miles an hour.

Virginia Borland of 15 Marquard Avenue read a letter she submitted to Secretary Castrillon moments before the meeting began.

"In most places, Marquard Avenue is a narrow road, crowded, congested. . . . Even an archaeologist, used to the mountainous, hazardous trails of Thessaly, termed it a one-way street and refused to drive up it a second time, preferring to walk," the letter said.

Miss Borland closed her letter saying, "This area was once a park. Let's not turn it into a slum."

O'Connor retorted, "Some people don't come here with clean hands," as the commission postponed the hearing until July 26.

When the delegation from Marquard Avenue filed out of the chambers, loud voices boomed through the hall. The debate continued on the city hall steps.

Sounding Board To Air Conditions At Juvenile Hall

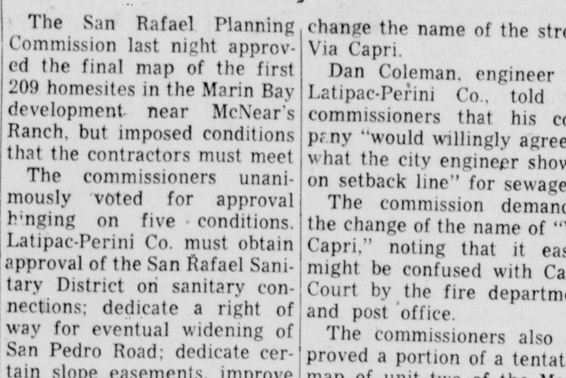

Conditions at the Lucas Valley juvenile hall will be aired tomorrow from 9 to 10 a.m. on radio KTIM's Marin Sounding Board moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer.

Panelists will be Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, county health officer who recently critized sanitary conditions at juvenile hall; County Supervisor Vera L. Schultz, David Fogel, superintendent of juvenile hall, and Walter Busher, county probation officer.

Questions telephoned by listeners will be answered during tomorrow's broadcast. The program will be re-broadcast by tape recording at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Adlai Gains As State Demos Split

STEVENSON GREETED — Adlai Stevenson, first of the aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination to visit the convention floor, waves amid mob that disrupted convention proceedings yesterday. (AP Wirephoto)

By CHAPIN A. DAY

LOS ANGELES — The bitterest battle of the 1960 Democratic National Convention took place not on the convention floor, but in the caucus of the California delegation yesterday afternoon.

Supporters of Adlai Stevenson rebelled against their Kennedy-oriented delegation leaders and turned a caucus designed to hear talks by the principal candidates into a battleground.

Before the three hour session in a National Broadcasting Co. studio was completed, these things had happened:

1. Gov. Edmund G. Brown had released the delegation from its pledge to vote for him on the first ballot this afternoon.

2. A motion by Assemblyman Jesse Unruh of Los Angeles to poll the delegation was lifted from the table where it had been placed Sunday.

3. Roger Kent of Kent Woodlands proposed a substitute motion that the delegation be polled at 10 a.m. today.

4. Rep. Cecil King of Inglewood offered an amendment to Kent's motion, calling for an immediate roll.

5. Unruh took the floor and moved the meeting be adjourned.

6. Chairman Clair M. Engle called for a voice vote and, although the no's appeared to be much louder than the ayes, ruled the motion had carried and the meeting was adjourned.

7. Bedlam resulted. In the hubbub, Brown whispered to Engle, the chairman banged his gavel and declared, "The chair rules the no's have it and the motion is defeated."

8. Unruh demanded that the ayes and the nays be counted. In a standing vote, the clerks counted 58 ayes and stopped counting when they got to 64 no's.

9. A roll-call vote on the amendment to poll the delegation immediately, passed by an 80-to-77 vote, with all four Marin county delegates voting no.

10. In the roll call which followed, supporters of Stevenson won a clear-cut victory by topping Kennedy's vote, although Brown had claimed "a good majority" of the state's votes for Kennedy. With one delegate present but refusing to vote, this was the division: Stevenson 63, Kennedy 61, Stuart Symington 18, Lyndon Johnson 13, Brown 5, Chester Bowles 1.

Marin's delegation went for Kennedy 3 to 1, with Kent,, Elizabeth Smith and Nancy Swadesh voting for the Massachusetts senator, and William M. Roth voting for Stevenson.

11. The delegates were about an hour and a half late in getting to yesterday afternoon's session of the convention.

The vote taken yesterday was to be presented to the whole convention this afternoon unless any individual wants to change his vote. The number of votes to be recorded for the candidates this afternoon will be just half the totals indicated in the poll. There are twice as many delegates as there are votes.

All of this action came after speeches by candidates and reports of the delegation's committee representatives

Sen. Stuart Symington opened the session with a talk in which he asked the California delegates' support and pointed the way to winning the election by "presenting the Eisenhower-Nixon record. If we can present the record, there is no doubt we can win."

Kennedy told the Californians he was glad he had not entered the state's primary against Brown. He said he believes that because he didn't, the state "can maintain a democratic legislature" while at the same time swing behind his candidacy. He said the Democrats plan to "bring the brightest intellects of the party to bear" on the nation's problems.

Connecticut's Chester Bowles took the microphone briefly to tell of "the new principles for a new age" which had been incorporated into the party's platform. He called Kennedy "just the man to run on that platform."

After brief reports from the credentials and rules committees, Mrs. Swadesh and Rep. Chet Holifield of Montebello, California's two delegates on the platform committee, continued from where Bowles left off.

Holifield, who gave most of the report, called it an "inspirational document," a credit to chairman Bowles' writing style. He heaped praise on Mrs. Swadesh, whom he called "a tower of strength at all times" with "constant attendance, intellectual abilities, constant perseverence for what we thought good principles in this document."

Mrs. Swadesh said the platform had "real depth and real meaning," was unique in that it was "written in some detail and not in the usual platitudes." She urged the delegation to "give us all the help you can when we get into a floor fight."

The delegation voted unanimously to support the platform as proposed, but they got no chance to give more than nominal support. When the platform came to the floor of the convention last night, the south's objections to the civil rights plank were shouted down and the platform was passed by voice vote—although some of these in the audience thought the nays equaled if not exceeded the ayes.

Border Station Traffic Drops

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Traffic passing California's border stations during June showed an unexpected dip under the previous year, the state Department of Agriculture reported.

Automobiles entering the state from other states apparently were carrying more persons, the Department figures showed. There were fewer out-of-state automobiles during June—233,386 in 1960, as compared to 237,079 a year ago—but the passengers in the out-of-state vehicles totaled 673,564. This was compared to only 671,251 persons in such vehicles a year ago.

Auto Parts Firm Asks Incorporation

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced San Anselmo Auto Parts, a wholesale and retail auto parts company, has filed articles of incorporation with his office, to be capitalized at $25,000 in $10 par shares.

Directors of the company were listed as Robert C. Wendt, 14 Corrillo Drive, and Leslie A. Southwick, 554 Woodbine Southwick, 554 Woodbine Drive, San Rafael, and Frank A. Buchanan, 532 Silverado Drive, Tiburon.

Religion Issue Hangs Over Convention

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The issue raised by Sen. John F. Kennedy's religion hung over the Democratic convention today as the moment neared for balloting on a presidential candidate.

Kennedy is a Roman Catholic. That will both help him and hurt him, as he himself analyzes it. He says the two reactions will cancel each other. But the issue is there.

Telegrams urging delegates not to vote for him, because of his religion, have reached several state delegations.

Three Baptist clergymen are trying to put before the convention a petition—with 500,000 signatures, they say—opposing any Catholic for president or vice president.

Several speakers have alluded publicly to Kennedy's religion.

Perle's Party For Johnson Was Mostest

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Guess who gave this party yesterday.

More than 7,000 Democratic convention delegates, officials and guests consumed 700 gallons of coffee, 350 pounds of sausage, 1,100 dozen eggs, 1,500 gallons of fruit juice—and 264 bottles of liquor.

For a further hint: guest of honor of Lyndon Johnson.

Yep, it was Perle Mesta, the hostess with the mostest, who shook hands personally with every delegate—and made no secret of her choice for president. The band played "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

Current needs for medical and psychiatric social workers total about 3,600 annually in the United States.

Here's Thumbnail Sketch Of Democratic Platform

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's a thumbnail sketch of the major planks of the platform adopted last night by the Democratic National Convention:

FOREIGN POLICY—Restore the nation's military, political, economic and moral strength so that it might more effectively lead the free world in its search for a stable peace and an expanding world economy.

NATIONAL DEFENSE—Recast the nation's military capacity in order to provide forces and a diversity of weapons sufficient to deter limited or general aggressions.

WORLD TRADE — Press for reduction of foreign barriers to U.S. products.

ECONOMIC GROWTH — Pledges policies to speed rate of economic growth. These would include an end of what was called the tight money policy of the Republicans, control of inflation, aid to economically depressed areas, broadening of minimum wage benefits, and planning for industrial automation.

AGRICULTURE—Raise price supports, use government payments, food stamp program and expanded program of foreign distribution to boost farm prices and income.

HOUSING — Expand federal aid to encourage building of two million homes a year.

MEDICAL CARE — Expand the social security tax system to provide funds for extending medical care to the aged.

EDUCATION — Extend federal financial aid for school construction and employment of teachers.

NATURAL RESOURCES — Develop and conserve natural resources for this and future generations. The plank says the present administration is permitting them to waste or go to selfish interests.

URBAN PROBLEMS—Establish a federal department to aid cities with problems of slum clearance, urban renewal, water supply, transportation, recreation, health and other problems.

CIVIL RIGHTS — Pledge full use of powers of the federal government to end racial discrimination in voting, education, housing, employment, transportation and other fields.

MINIMUM WAGE — Pledges to raise minimum wage rate from $1 an hour to $1.25 and to extend coverage to several million additional workers.

FISCAL POLICY — Pledges a balanced federal budget except in periods of emergency or recession.

TAXES — Raise taxes if necessary to meet unfolding demands at home and abroad. But it holds that an expanding economy plus better tax collection policies should provide sufficient funds to meet most government needs.

Novato Tables Pool-Park Study Request

Novato city councilmen last night cast a fiscal eye at a request for $500 for a swimming pool-park study.

Now in the middle of the first-ever budget study for the new city, councilmen informally tabled the proposal. Novato has no city park.

More than 1,000 residents have signed petitions urging that a swimming pool and park facilities be constructed, Mrs. Peter Yarish told the council. She heads a group circulating the petitions.

Mrs. Yarish asked that $500 be placed in the budget for a recreation area study and asked appointment of a committee to study recreational needs, find a site, investigate costs, and outline proposals by next spring.

Just such a study would be undertaken by the now under consideration citizen study committee on Novato problems, Mayor Wayne Womack noted.

"It's wonderful to get that many signatures that easy. By the same token, if each one gave $10, you'd have $10,000," Councilman M. E. (Babe) Silva commented. He added, "Don't get me wrong, I'm not against recreation."

Public ownership is necessary if the pool project is to "work," Mrs. Yarish said.

The signatures were obtained, Mrs. Yarish said, with the understanding that residents would be willing to support a pool-recreation area program with tax money.

Of the 1,013 signatures, less than 200 were obtained by door to door solicitation, she said. Soliciting was carried out to sample opinion, she said, with petition carriers finding that about 5 per cent of those approached were opposed to the pool.

The petitions were circulated "to indicate to the city council how great an interest there is in a city swimming pool and park," said Mrs. Yarish.

RESERVISTS DON FATIGUES AGAIN

Capt. Fred S. Peters of Mill Valley checks supply records with Pfc. Michael Hayden of San Francisco on 91st Division active duty at Camp Roberts. The reserve division opened two weeks of training today. Captain Peters is commanding officer of Company H, 363rd Regiment. Fifty weeks out of the year, he's proprietor of Bennet's Variety Store in Mill Valley.

Novato's Center Street Remains 1-Way; Legal Opinion Blocks Vote

Center Road in Novato still is a one-way street, as city councilmen last night found they could not legally vote on a proposal to open up a section of the street to two-way traffic.

The weeks-long debate on whether the stretch of road between Diablo and Tamalpais Avenues should be returned to two-way traffic ended with a "well now" from councilmen who settled back to listen to a legal opinion as to why they could not vote on a resolution already prepared.

The resolution was drawn up after a 3-2 council vote requesting it at the June 28 meeting.

City Atty. Clark M. Palmer told the council last night that such a resolution must specify that engineering studies and traffic surveys have shown the necessity for the change. No such studies or surveys have been made.

The section was designated one-way for the safety of school children walking along the narrow street, which has deep ditches at the sides.

Some residents have requested a return to two-way traffic, backing councilman Charles R. Johnson, who said last night that the one-way street is no "guarantee" of safety.

Others, including Mayor Wayne Womack, oppose two-way traffic until the street can be widened.

At least three Parent-Teacher Assn. representatives were among the 12 persons at last night's council meeting who came to hear the discussion and decision. One P-TA representative said she could have brought 700 interested persons with her—and brought a "bless you" from the councilman for not doing so.

Mrs. Louis Graxiola, representing the North Marin Council of Parents and Teachers, opposed return to two-way traffic, saying, "It's impossible for even one-way traffic."

Russell Patterson, 1670 Center Road, showed councilmen petitions with 35 signatures of area residents favoring two-way traffic; seven for the one-way status.

"We'll peddle hot dogs from our front window" if the street is widened to the required 60 feet, Patterson said. But 60-foot width actually means a roadway approximately 40-foot wide, the rest going for curb, sidewalk, and parking strip for grass or trees, Robert O. Bailey, city administrative consultant, explained.

The question was tabled at least until Oct. 1, when the city will take over public functions from the county. Councilmen urged residents to consider forming an assessment district to pay for curbs and gutters in front of their homes, promising the city would supply street paving.

SUCCEEDS WORLUND

Tiburon Man Takes Over Marin County GOP Reins

David Winslow, Tiburon manufacturer's representative, was elected chairman of the Marin County Republican Central Committee last night, succeeding Elmer S. Worlund of San Anselmo.

Worlund told the committee at its organization meeting in the courthouse last night that he could no longer continue in the office. He had served five and one-half years.

Other officers elected are Gerald E. Misner, Mill Valley, vice chairman; Mrs. Robert D. Irwin, San Rafael, women's vice chairman; Mrs. Virginia Wickersham, Mill Valley, secretary, and Matt A. Graham, San Anselmo, treasurer. Mrs. LaVerne Ruttledge, Mill Valley, was named as associate member and assistant secretary.

A new finance committee was elected, including Worlund as chairman: Mesdames Irwin and Wickersham; William MacKay of Kentfield; Abbott E. Stinchcomb Jr. of San Rafael; William B. Scrimgeour of Mill Valley, and Clarence M. Kretchmer of Belvedere. It was also decided to invite a Marin Republican Council representative to serve on the finance committee.

N. B. Livermore, finance chairman for Fred G. Dupuis, the GOP nominee for Congress, discussed the Dupuis campaign and urged the committee to help raise funds.

Herbert Hanson of Kentfield told of the progress of the newly-formed Marin Republican Council.

The next regular meeting will be held July 26.

Reno, Nev., was founded in 1886.

Long Budget Session Seen For Novato

Novato city councilmen will settle down Monday for what is expected to be another long discussion of the city's first budget.

Beginning at 8 p.m., councilmen will consider preliminary figures submitted by Robert O. Bailey, city administrative consultant, for a budget totalling somewhere between $200,000 and $250,000

Councilmen last night specifically designated the meeting a "study session," not an official adjourned meeting.

In other business last night, the Novato council:

1. Hired Arthur Alberelli as city street sweeper at $87 monthly pending a legal check of the proposed contract.

2. Appointed Robert Stockbine to replace plants in the Monte Maria subdivision divider strips. The city has taken over functions of the area's community services district.

3. Set Aug. 2 as the hearing date for appeal from a Planning Commission decision by Lawrence Ravetz and Gus Ploughman. The commission turned down a rezoning request which would have made it possible for the two men to construct a 120-place trailer court in the city.

5. Approved a franchise agreement with Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to supply gas to electric franchise agreement with the same company.

MP Shoots Attacker Of Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three blasts from an Army MP's pistol cut down a Pacifica man who was attacking a pretty secretary with a hammer yesterday.

Pfc. Jewell Hicks shot Joseph Carpenter, 30.

The woman, Lois DeAndrade, 32, private secretary in a large advertising firm and daughter of A. J. DeAndrade, president of the International Pressmen's and Assistants Union, suffered a fractured skull.

She was reported in satisfactory condition at Franklin Hospital.

Asst. U.S. Atty. James B. Schnake said a charge of assault with intent to commit murder would be filed against Carpenter.

Miss DeAndrade told Presidio of San Francisco MP's she had known Carpenter and his wife for about a year and accepted a ride from him while waiting for a bus.

Pvt. Hicks, cruising the Presidio in his patrol car, said he saw the attack.

Hicks fired, striking Carpenter in the stomach and thigh.

Hub City Library Trustees Meet

Leo Dwyer, newly appointed member of the San Anselmo Library Board, attended his first meeting Monday night. No action was taken by the board in the absence of two members, Miss Grace Cornwall and Fred Hines, reported Valerie M. Ansel, chairman.

Board members will consider granting a 5 per cent salary increase to the library staff at a meeting scheduled for Aug. 8 at 7:30 p.m., Miss Ansel said. The increase is included in the 1960-61 budget already approved by the San Anselmo City Council.

The city of Shreveport, La., was named for Henry Shreve, a designer of passenger-cargo boats.

Library Board Names President

Mrs. William Peavey has been elected president of the Mill Valley Library Board. She replaces Robert Jenkins, who served in the post three years.

Elected as secretary was Robert Randolph, who is president of the Marin County Board of Education. Other members include Benjamin Draper, newly appointed member; Jenkins and Mrs. G. Donald Schlemmer.

Mrs. Peavey has asked a subcommittee to report at the August meeting on the forming of a Friends of the Library group.

The board has submitted a revised annual budget of $49,012 to the city council.

Walt Whitman was the second of nine children.

Hub Bypasses State Exams For Firemen

San Anselmo will bypass the standard state examinations in selecting a list of eligible new fire men and use instead a new type of examination provided by "some eastern firm," the city council decided by a 3-to-2 vote last night.

Mayor William Franchini and Councilman Carleton G. E. Little saw no reason to deviate from the regular state examinations. But Councilman Carmel Booth, Arthur W. Smith and John M. Reichmuth outvoted them in favor of Chief Nello Marcucci's recommendation.

Marcucci said that all the volunteer firemen who took the last state examination, given about four years ago, flunked. For this reason, he does not want to use the state examination to pick two new firemen needed right away.

Mrs. Booth referred to the state examination papers as a "bunch of phony forms" administered by "autocrats."

"We want firefighters and smoke-eaters, not pencil pushers," said Mrs. Booth.

OUTSTANDING—Pvt. James F. McGuire, 23, son of Mrs. Ada Bottini of 41 Jewell Street, San Rafael, was awarded a citation Sunday as outstanding trainee of Company B, Seventh Battle Group, Third Brigade, at Fort Ord.

Planners In Mill Valley Approve Drainage Plan

A general drainage plan for part one of the Sutton Manor branch area was approved last night by the Mill Valley Planning Commission.

The plan, to cost $138,800 or $210 an acre, was made by City Engineer Stanley M. Bala. It will integrate drainage to serve the whole watershed of Scott Valley and hillside areas.

Not all the watershed is in Mill Valley. The commission suggested that the county and Corte Madera be contacted for approval.

Of the 660 acres affected, 320 are in the county, 300 in Mill Valley and 40 in Corte Madera.

Ernest L. Friberg, vice president of Goheen Construction Co., said his company has 39.3 per cent of the total 660 acres.

A letter from the Sutton Manor Improvement Assn. was read by chairman A. A. Hemmerling stating it approved of the drainage plan but felt Sutton Manor should not be assessed for the new addition.

Dr. Logan T. Miles was appointed principal of Tamalpais Valley and Marin Terrace Schools for the 1960-61 school year last night by the Mill Valley School District board. Miles was formerly principal of Edna Maguire School.

Dominic Bobbio was appointed principal of the Edna Maguire School. He was formerly vice principal.

Esther Hessel, seventh grade teacher, was appointed vice principal of Edna Maguire. Mrs. Carol E. Wolcott was employed as seventh grade teacher to replace Miss Hessel. Mrs. Wolcott came to California recently from Michigan.

Robert Davidson, half-time guidance consultant for the past year, was appointed full-time director of pupil personnel services.

Garden Hills Rezoning Decision Awaits Report

The Mill Valley Planning Commission last night continued for two weeks the matter of rezoning of Garden Hills, to await a staff report.

A portion of Garden Hills, owned by Manuel Gomez, was denied rezoning last week by the city council on the basis the lots were too small for the hillside area. Gomez, appearing before the commission last night, said he has had a new map made which raises the smaller lots from 12,200 to 19,000 square feet.

The commission also:

1. Continued a public hearing on subdivision of the unsubdivided portion of Scott Unit 1 annex. Ernest L. Friberg, representing Goheen Construction Co., asked for 20,000 square foot lots. The commission favored one-acre sites. Friberg said he would bring in a new map.

2. Denied a variance to E. O. Easterday Sr. agent for Eadun Co., to construct homes on two adjoining sub-standard lots at 305 and 311 Cascade Drive.

3. Set a public hearing for Aug. 16 to discuss Project 17 with members of the city council, parks and recreation commission, library board and Recon. The county planning commission has finished a plan for the portion of the marshland area.

Accused Slayer Of Six Wounded; High Living Hungarian Refugee

MICHAEL FEKECS
Near Death

UNION, N. J. (AP) — Michael Fekecs, a Hungarian refugee accused of murdering six persons, lay in a coma on a hospital bed today, a policeman's bullet lodged in the base of his skull.

The end of one of the most intense manhunts in the state's history came last night when Fekecs tried to shoot it out with two policemen.

He fired a volley of wild shots before being brought down by a bullet fired by Patrolman Walter Lezmy.

Fekecs, 25, a lover of sports cars, formal clothes, and jazz records, was being sought by police for questioning in connection with the slaying of two policemen in Highland Park last Sunday.

The search gathered momentum yesterday after Middlesex County Prosecutor Edward J. Dolan said that Fekecs had killed the two policemen and had slain four other persons on a North Brunswick estate last January.

Fekecs was picked up Sunday for driving with a revoked operator's license. The two arresting Franklin Township patrolmen, George Dunham 31, and John Lebed, 30, took him to his apartment so he could get $250 for bail.

The policemen later were found slain on the floor of the one-room apartment.

ROYALTY BOWS AFTER TAKING WRONG SEATS

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip went to the theater last night but had to change seats because the ones they took belonged to someone else.

The royal couple arrived at the Haymarket Theater 10 minutes early to see the play "Ross," about Lawrence of Arabia. A woman usher told them they were in the wrong seats.

"Righto," Philip responded with a smile.

"I'll bet that usher is the only woman who has asked the prince to change seats," a theater official said later.

Bagley Spent $3,871, Wilson $4,456 In Assembly Battle

William Thompson Bagley of San Rafael spent $3,871 in the June primary election to win the Republican nomination for state assemblyman, according to an expense statement filed with the county clerk yesterday.

Joseph G. Wilson of San Rafael, who was nosed out by Everett A. Matzen of Sonoma in the Democratic race for the Assembly post, spent $4,456. Wilson received $3,598 from his backers and put up $858 himself.

Bagley got $2,835 in contributions and dug $1,036 from his own pocket. Bagley will run against Matzen in November.

J. Walter Blair of Mill Valley used $2,589, all in contributions, to defeat Mrs. Vera L. Schultz for supervisor. Mrs. Schultz' campaign cost $2,501.

Fred G. Dupuis of Tiburon received $5,306 in contributions from his backers but spent only $2,963 of that for primary election, in which he was unopposed for the Republican nomination for Congress. Dupuis will oppose Democratic Rep. Clement W. Miller in the November election. Miller's June campaign cost him $12,852.

William S. Christensen, incumbent constable in the Northwest Judicial District of Marin County, spent nothing in the June election. He was unopposed.

U.S. Military Plane Crashes In Ecuador

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Two rescue parties struggled up 15,423-foot-high Mt. Pichincha today, trying to reach the wreckage of a U. S. military transport in which it was feared 18 persons died.

Air searchers spotted the wreckage 14,000 feet up the mountain yesterday, and reported they saw no sign of life. Headed by Lt. Col. James E. Sever, U. S. air attache in Bogota, Colombia, the party of six American military men, two Ecuadorean diplomats, four wives and six children were flying to Quito for presentation of the U. S. Legion of Merit to the head of the Ecuador's air force.

Four U. S. officers and 12 Ecuadorean soldiers and doctors were climbing the peak in one group today, and an Ecuadorean officer and 30 soldiers were trying another route to the plane.

The C-47 took off from Bogota Monday morning, made it safely through perilous San Antonio Pass, then crashed only 10 minutes away from Quito.

CLOSE HARMONY WITH AN ADDED SOMETHING

The Jazzabelles, recognized San Francisco area champions of the Sweet Adelines — female barbershop quartets — will be out to steal the show from male singers at the Marin Barbershop Harmony Festival Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in San Rafael High School Auditorium. Reading clockwise from top, the San Franciscans are Pat Ruff, "bass"; Gloria Cabezas, "baritone"; Marie Disher, "tenor," and Reet Meyers, lead.

School Budgets Win Approval In San Rafael

The San Rafael Board of Education last night approved publication budgets of $1,861,572 for the elementary district and $1,623,112 for the high school district.

It set Aug. 2 at 7:30 p.m. as the time for a public hearing on the budgets. The totals reflect some changes from the preliminary budgets as a result of final figures on assessed valuations received July 1.

Wright Carlson of Fresno, superintendent of the 600-pupil Kerman High School District near that city, was appointed vice principal of Davidson School.

Carlson has a bachelor's degree from Iowa State Teachers College and a master's degree plus additional graduate credits from the University of Iowa. He has taught in Iowa and Colorado.

The board accepted the $2,697.79 low bid of Lee Mac Paving Co. of Corte Madera for construction of a portion of Nova Albion Road adjacent to Terra Linda High School. Five bids were received, ranging up to $3,241.97.

Bids also were accepted for about $10,000 worth of music instruments and $3,500 worth of miscellaneous hand shop tools for Terra Linda High School.

The board discussed with contractor Ray Johnson the progress of construction of Terra Linda High School and considered the possibility of hiring skilled craftsmen on an overtime basis. It made no decision, however, pending further study on the problems of occupying the building with some of the work still in progress.

A $999 contract was approved with Raisch Co. of Black Point to provide a sewer connection for Terra Linda High.

The board assessed a $3,000 penalty on Gorman Hodges, contractor for construction of the locker and shower building at Santa Venetia School, because of failure to complete the work on time. The contractor may receive a $250 rebate on completion of all the requirements of the sanitary district.

Scheduled completion date for the project was March 5. It was not completed until May 24.

In other business, the board:

1. Reaffirmed its position opposing any plan for Highway 101 construction that would adversely affect Coleman School.
2. Appointed acting Supt. Raymond Simpson as acting secretary of the board.
3. Called for bids on additional equipment for Terra Linda High, including cafeteria, office, homemaking and science items; for the replacement of instructional typewriters for San Rafael High, and for kitchen units for development of a homemaking room at Davidson School.
4. Approved appointments of Charles Freeman, librarian in the junior highs; Ellen Connelly, elementary district teacher; Mrs. Bettie Htuchison, adult education at Terra Linda nursery school; Larry Lack, science teacher at San Rafael High; Ferol Egan, English teacher at San Rafael High, and Bradley Squires, social studies at San Rafael High.
5. Approved appointment of Mrs. Barbara Hughes as invoice clerk and accepted the resignation of Mrs. Iantha Adams as clerk at San Pedro School.
6. Noted that the architect for Dominican College and the city engineer have approved plans for the storm drain at Coleman School. Bids will be called for July 26.
7. Noted that the city is interested in use of basement space at E Street School and asked Simpson to discuss the matter with city officials.
8. Reappointed Rex Silvernale trustee representative to the county committee on school district organization.

FIGURE'S FINE BUT DATE'S A LITTLE OLD

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Barney Conlon, a janitor, found a check for one million dollars on the floor of the California Academy of Sciences. Being a conscientious man, he turned it in at the office.

It was written on the Fannin State Bank of Houston, Tex., and made out to the academy.

The academy, always short of money, hasn't tried to cash it. The signature didn't look just right. It was signed Jack Dallas Houston Beaumont. And it was a little old —dated July 4, 1776.

2 Consulting Firms Eyed By Hub City

San Anselmo will interview two engineering consulting firms on Aug. 20 to see what they can offer in the way of a detailed master plan for development of the downtown area.

City councilmen last night decided that one company will be interviewed at 8 p.m. and the other at 9:30 p.m. on the night of Aug. 30.

The two companies are (1) Charles S. McCandless & Co. and Hahn, Wise and Babber Inc. of Menlo Park and (2) Wilsey and Ham and Blair of Millbrae.

City Administrator Douglas Flautt announced he had contacted a dozen firms and received three responses. One of the three offered to do the work for $15,000 to $20,000, which is more than San Anselmo can afford, he said.

Of the two under consideration, McCandless offers to complete the job in four months for $9,500. Wilsey and Ham and Blair did not quote a price.

Councilman Carmel Booth expressed doubts that any firm can do the entire job in four months for $9,500. "For $9,500, they can't deliver what they say they will," she declared. She pointed out the master plan calls for detailed recommendations on streets, lighting, traffic flow, shopping habits, traffic count, and business development. The job is too big for four months and at that price, she declared, "we'll get a snow job!"

City fathers decided to meet with the representatives of the two companies and pin them down to particulars on what they can produce.

Businessman Kills Three Negro Hands

MONROE, La (UPI)—A white businessman with a shotgun shot down five of his Negro employees today so fast it "sounded like firecrackers" when they attacked him with knives.

Authorities said Robert Fuller, 40, killed three of the Negroes and critically wounded two others. The Negroes were mad because Fuller struck one of them yesterday.

Fuller told Sheriff Bailey Grant that the Negroes had tried to break into his house last night when his 16-year-old daughter, one of nine children, was alone. But her screams apparently drove them off.

He said he had his double-barrell shotgun in his truck and pockets full of buckshot shells because he was expecting more trouble.

When the five Negroes drove up and blocked his truck in his driveway today, Fuller said, his children were outside playing. The Negroes called to him to come out, saying, "Come down the road. We want to talk to you. We don't like what you did to Gibson."

Willie Charley Gibson, one of the Negroes, reportedly cursed Fuller yesterday and Fuller struck him.

OBITUARIES

Grandson Of Early-Day California Leader Dies

Thomas T. Pacheco, grandson of the late Ignacio Pacheco, early California settled, died in Ignacio today after a long illness in the same ranch where he was born. He was 79.

Pacheco was born in the old Pacheco family home at Rancho San Jose. The year of his birth, the family home had been rebuilt.

His grandfather established the ranch on a 6,600-acre land grant from the Mexican government in 1838. Ignacio Pacheco was the first "alcalde" or ruler of the San Rafael Mission area. His son, the late Gunesindo Pacheco, was the father of Thomas Pacheco.

Thomas Pacheco grew up on the Rancho San Jose part of which is now Ignacio, named after Thomas Pacheco's grandfather.

As a young man Thomas Pacheco was for several years a custodial officer at San Quentin Prison. In 1917 he was employed by the late Leon C. Douglass of the Victor Phonograph Co., as a chauffeur. He stayed with Douglass for 10 years.

He and his wife, Mrs. Marie C. Pacheco, married in San Francisco in 1927. They lived in San Rafael until 1933, when Pacheco bought a concession at the Boyes Springs resort in Sonoma County. They moved from the resort to the Pacheco family home at the ranch in Ignacio in 1943. Pacheco retired two years later.

He is survived by his wife and a sister, Mrs. Gail Rowland, both of the family home.

A Requiem High Mass will be offered Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, with the funeral cortege leaving Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael at 9:15 a.m. The Rosary will be recited at the mortuary at 8 p.m. Friday.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Blanche Ackley Dies In Hospital

Mrs. Blanche Ackley, 63, a resident of Marin County for 51 years, died today at a local hospital after a long illness.

She is the wife of Arthur J. Ackley, an employee of the Tidewater Oil Co. in San Francisco. They lived at 112 I Street, San Rafael.

Mrs. Ackley came with her parents to San Quentin Village in 1909 from Sawyers Bar, Siskiyou County, where she was born. She married Ackley in San Francisco in 1918, and they moved to San Rafael where they since resided.

She was an active member of St. Raphael's Church.

She is survived by her husband, a son, Arthur K. Ackley; a sister, Mrs. Inez Stefani, and two grandchildren, all of San Rafael.

A Requiem High Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. at St. Raphael's Church, with the funeral cortege leaving Keaton's Mortuary at 9:15 a.m. Friday, July 15. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the morturay.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Hub Urged To Hike Its Garbage Franchise Fee

San Anselmo should be getting about $11,000 per year in revenue from the city's garbage franchise instead of the $2,700 now being received from Victor Vallerga, City Administrator Douglas Flautt reported last night after an analysis of garbage franchises in other cities.

City fathers asked the administrator to set up a meeting with Vallerga for sometime in September to see what can be worked out with the garbage service owner.

San Anselmo now gets an annual revenue of $2,700, under a 10-year contract which expires in October of 1964. Flautt reported that in almost every city he studied, the franchise revenue is based on a percentage of gross receipts rather than on a flat fee basis .

Other cities are getting from 2 per cent to 13 per cent of the gross receipts of the garbage firm, Flautt found. In San Anselmo, Vallerga's latest annual gross receipts totaled $115,000, which means the city is getting a revenue of just slightly over 2 per cent. "I suggest a rate of at least 10 per cent of the gross receipts as a fair amount," said Flautt.

"How did you arrive at the 10 per cent figure?" Councilman Arthur W. Smith wanted to know.

Flautt said that in other communities where the franchise rate is 2 per cent, the garbage collection charge per household is about $1 or $1.50. Where collection rates are as high as in San Anselmo, the cities get 10 per cent or more in franchise revenue, he reported.

Smith argued that if the city took 10 per cent of gross receipts, the garbage rates might go up even higher because Vallerga says he can scarcely make ends meet now.

"I'd be nearly willing to stake my reputation that we could take over the business and make ends meet," the administrator declared.

Smith and councilman Carmel Booth replied that the city should not go into the garbage business. "We'd be biting off more than we can chew," said Mrs. Booth.

Flautt hastened to explain he did not say the city should go into the garbage business.

Mayor William Franchini suggested that something can probably be worked out when the city officials meet with Vallerga in September.

In other actions, the San Anselmo council:

1. Approved the final map of Woodland Park Unit 3 off Butterfield Road north of Hawthorne Hills. The subdivision has about 32 homesites.
2. Approved the final map of Oak Springs Unit 3, a 11-lot subdivision on Oak Springs Drive on a portion of the Traxler Ranch.
3. Bought five new microphones for the council chamber that can pick up sound from a wider area. Councilmen must talk directly into the present microphones, but the new ones can pick up the voices from distances of a yard or more. The new microphones will cost $80 each.
4. Decided to spread city business among all three banks. Payroll deposits will be made at the First National Bank, all general funds will be deposited with American Trust, and surplus funds for short term investments or otherwise will go to the Bank of America.

City fathers accepted her resignation "with deep regrets," and voted her an official letter of commendation and regret.

The most glowing tribute came from Councilman Smith. "I think she has done a remarkable job and has an uncanny knowledge of city business and how to get things done," said Smith. "We are losing a very, very capable public servant. I wish her the best of luck."

That was when Mrs. Booth pulled out her hankerchief and broke down. She admitted she had once called Smith and other officials "gutless," but said she learned later that she was wrong about Smith.

"Art is a gentle and honest man, but not a gutless man," Mrs. Booth declared. She declared Smith will be a minority on the council hereafter, but said she is sure he will vote the way he feels and no one is going to sway his vote.

Mrs. Booth's resignation left vacant the post of director of civil defense. The council appointed City Administrator Douglas Flautt as the new director and asked Mrs. Virginia Hinshaw to consider the post of assistant. Mrs. Hinshaw announced she would talk to Flautt before deciding.

During the meeting, Mrs. Booth again made a pitch for retaining John C. Oglesby as part-time city engineer instead of setting up a department of public works. She also leveled a final salvo against state officials who set up the written examinations for city firemen.

She declared that no one can get the examination forms, even after they have taken the examinations, to see how they scored.

During intermission, city employees had a cake for Mrs Booth, with the inscription, "May your life bloosom beautifully in Lake County, Carmel and Jim."

The San Anselmo Civil Service Employees Assn. sent her a letter of tribute, signed by President Sam N. Serio.

No Meeting Tonight

A Strawberry Recreation District adjourned meeting scheduled for tonight will not be held. Directors will meet next on the regular date, July 20 at Strawberry School, Mrs. James W. Gowen, secretary, announced today.

ation of the district does not come up to expectations. The figure will not be known until sometime next month.

Although the trustees said they were making every effort to pare the budget without cancelling the transportation for pupils, Supt. Vaughn D. Seidel was instructed to notify the Patchett Bus and Transportation Co. that there is a strong possibility of no service next year—an item amounting to $6,000.

Budgeted, however, is $2,000 for operation of the district's own bus, which is capable of transporting kindergarten children to and from school.

Military Academy in San Rafael, followed by Menlo School and College at Menlo Park.

Since that time his interest in ham radio hasn't been marked. It played no part in his election to the state legislature in 1940 and subsequent reelection every two years since. When he retires from the legislature at year's end, he'll start operation as a Sacramento lobbyist—in which job maybe ham radio could come handy.

The present identification of one McCollister car is by "red emergency permit" which must serve until special W6BNK plates are made in Folsom Prison, likely to take three weeks to a month and costing an extra $3.

McCollister got his duplicate legislative plates in 1958. He represented that the originals had been mutilated, presumably enough to make them unusable. But both sets were noticed in use on two cars parked side by side yesterday.

Word of this observation seems to have got around fast and to have reached both McCollister and Watson.

McCollister went to the Motor Vehicles Registration bearing BDZ-297 plates issued to his second car, asking that they be replaced by radio ham plates. Watson, having heard that the second car was operating with the duplicate A7 plates, demanded that these be returned.

"We don't knowingly let anybody use two sets," Watson explained today. "So I cleared that up quick. They came back. As far as I am concerned the matter is closed now."

Butf rom a strict legal viewpoint, the law says that false statements under the State Motor Vehicles Code constitutes a misdemeanor punishable by six months in jail, $500 fine, or both.

No Meeting

The Belvedere Recreation commission did not meet last night because of lack of business, Chairman E. Allen Steinau said.

University of Nebraska and his doctorate in teaching from Columbia University Teachers College in New York.

Aside from an impressive record as both an educator and an administrator, Epler is also credited with originating the game of six-man football, rules for which he drew up while teaching high school in his home state of Nebraska. He also was a football and basketball player during his four years at Cotner, but minimizes his gridiron record.

It was a small school. Everybody made the team," he said modestly.

His 18-year-old daughter, Charlotte, will enter College of Marin next fall. A 20-year-old son, Stephen, will be a junior at University of California.

Although Mrs. Epler is a music teacher, he said she does not plan to teach at College of Marin. "I don't think I would like my wife being employed on the staff under me," he said. "I'm sure she wouldn't like it either."

Southerners Take Defeat In Platform

(See, also page 4)

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina elbowed his way to Rep. John Bell Williams standing under the Mississippi banner on the convention floor.

"It's okay, it's okay," Hodges said. "Barnett said it was all right. No demonstration."

"All right," Williams agreed quickly. "It's off."

Then Hodges, his face flushed and perspiring, moved quickly to another southern delegation bringing with him the word—the leaders did not want a demonstration.

Some, like Rep. Jack Flynt of Georgia, feared the demonstration might fizzle. But others feared a big demonstration could lead to what nobody wanted—a walkout.

"No, no walkout," Attorney General Joe Patterson of Mississippi said as he listened to the civil rights plank of the Democratic Party platform hitting against many of the traditions of the south.

"We'll stay, but they'll never accept this, they'll never accept this."

And everywhere it was the same. An Alabama delegate said "no walkout," and a South Carolina man said "I've come too far to walk out. I'm staying to see the whole thing."

Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi and Sen. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, veterans of many similar battles in the Senate, stared straight ahead and listened.

But Sen. James O. Eastland didn't. He walked around the rear of the convention floor, greeting friends. He, like Stennis and Johnston, had heard all the arguments on both sides.

They knew, like every delegate from the 10 southern states, that they were fighting for a lost cause.

The southerners and the others knew that one hour of oratory and a 3,000 word minority report would not change any part of the platform.

Hearing Set For Wealthy Belvederean

Belvedere millionaire Stewart B. Hopps must face a hearing Friday on his removal to Baltimore, Md., to face mail fraud charges.

He was arrested at his home at 2 Cliff Road on a federal warrant last night because of a Baltimore grand jury indictment charging him both with fraud and with using a fictitious name in an alleged mail fraud scheme.

This arose from his services as former consultant to the International Guaranty and Insurance Co. of Tangier, which was linked with various U.S. insurance and savings and loan companies, some insolvent.

Federal attorneys wanted Hopps' bond set at $25,000, but U.S. Commissioner Joseph Karesh set the figure at $10,000, which Hopps promptly posted to remain free.

Both California and New York insurance investigations last year brought charges that the Tangier company had insufficient assets to guarantee the American firms. International Guarantee operations in California were halted the preceeding year for lack of a state license.

Documents taken include some signed by an unidentified "E. S. Van Galder" which Nelle A. Martin, former Hopps employee, said was name often signed by herself and Hopps' son, Robert, at Hopps' direction.

In pressing for $25,000 bail, Asst. U.S. Atty. Donald Constine said investigations of Hopps were understood to be in progress in several juridictions. But Karesh said $25,000 seemed "unusually high for mail fraud" after Hopps's attorney, J. W. Ehrlich of Corte Madera described his client as a man "of good reputation."

Ehrlich was general counsel and a trustee of International Guaranty. Hopps said since the firm trust fund was seized, he's had nothing to do with the company.

Parking District Plan For Tiburon Blocked

The proposal for a downtown Tiburon parking district was blocked yesterday by the area's major landowner, Fred G. Zelinsky.

In a letter to the Tiburon Chamber of Commerce, read at yesterday's chamber luncheon, Zelinsky said: "The parking lot that the Northwestern Pacific Railroad is constructing and mine will take care of parking in Tiburon . . . The ones who favor this do not have land to release." He asked that the "parking district proposal be dropped since the major property owners involved do not favor it."

Parking committee chairman Felix M. Warburg said owners of 60 per cent of the area within the proposed district had to sign the petition to bring the district into existence.

"There are 23 pieces of land in the present temporary boundaries with 15 owners and they are all adopting a wait and see attitude . . . They're waiting for Zelinsky," said Warburg.

When asked about the Northwestern Pacific's plans for a parking lot, land agent William M. Ausseresses said, "I favor private enterprise over county activity in the business . . . This is not a final solution but a means of alleviating a difficult problem with temporary relief." He said plans were for a lot to hold 100 cars, with a fee of 25 cents for four hours to be charged.

County Planning Commissioner Margaret Azevedo took issue with Ausseresses when he said the commission would "start off with free parking and then when the costs go up, it will have to meter."

Snapped Mrs. Azevedo: "You keep making the assumption we will have meters. We will not . . . "A good practical solution is being blocked by you, and you are not even in the district."

Chamber members heard a proposal for a three-day downtown festival Sept. 3-5 to publicize Tiburon with races, shows and athletic events.

An explanation of the direct distance dialing system which will be installed on the Tiburon Peninsula in late summer of 1962 was given by a Pacific Telephone and Telegraph representative.

Art Entered In State Fair

A record number of paintings, sculpture and craft objects are entered in competition at the art show of the California State Fair to be staged this year from Aug. 31 to Sept. 11 in Sacramento.

Judging of the several thousand entries will be held July 16 and 17. Among the judges will be Richard O'Hanlon of Mill Valley, member of a panel to judge sculpture, and Victor Ries of Forest Knolls, one of the judges for crafts, mosaics, ceramics, enameling and textiles.

Hamilton Choir Gets $500 Award

The Hamilton Air Force Base Protestant choir has won a $500 award for its singing in an Air Force contest.

The choir competed by tape recordings with seven other Air Defense Command choirs. The tapes will be sent to Air Force headquarters for further competition.

Lt. Sheldon Sorenson is choir master.

Reed Board Conveys Plant Site

Reed Union School District trustees last night conveyed a portion of school property to the Tiburon Sanitary District as a site for a sewer ejector plant, following a public hearing.

Trustee Ahleen Tresnon's resignation was received by the board but not formally accepted. The request of Bel Aire teacher Miss Aloria Bryant to resign was referred to the professional relations committee.

MacLaury announced that applications for absentee ballots for the $525,000 bond election on Sept. 27 may be obtained at the Tiburon Boulevard district office.

Trustees set Aug. 2 as the date of the 1960-61 budget hearing.

Housewife Loses Driving Privilege

Mrs. Jo Borden McMillan Sharpley, 37, of 123 Birch Way, San Rafael, lost her driving privileges for 90 days and must pay $184 fine for her first drunken driving offense.

She was sentenced yesterday by Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court. She was placed on four months probation. Highway patrolmen caught Mrs. Sharpley on Highway 101 near Santa Venetia last Monday.

James Gibbons Poteet, 24, of 39 Nova Lane, Novato, an airman at Hamilton Air Force Base, drew six months probation and $158 fine. Poteet was caught last Sunday in Novato at Third Street and Grant Avenue.

Accordion Festival

Edward Sears, 10, a student of the Novato Accordion Studio, will take part in the Accordion Festival in San Jose on Sunday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sears, 1072 Eighth Street, Novato.

IN OFFICIAL CAR

Coast Guard Officer Drives Into Light Pole

A Coast Guard officer driving an official car rammed a light pole in front of the California Highway Patrol scalehouse near Terra Linda last night and was jailed on suspicion of drunken driving.

He is Raymond D. Meighan, 32, of Eureka.

Meighan was booked in Marin County Jail. Freed on bail, he is scheduled to appear in court tomorrow afternoon.

"He had a load on and wanted to get weighed," quipped a jail officer.

Farm Group Hikes Membership Dues

Dues for the 402 members of the Marin County Farm Bureau were raised to $20 yearly by directors at a meeting this week.

The 12 directors present voted unanimously for the raise from $15 yearly fee per family which had been in effect for five or six years, reported Donald McIsaac, president.

The bureau membership committee was to meet today at the West Marin School to plan the year's membership drive.

Dog Steals Meat

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP) — Police had to tug to get a thief to let go of his loot. A dog had swiped a 20-pound piece of frozen beef from a market. They finally retrieved the meat and returned it to the store.

AF Releases $585,000 For Hamilton Buildings

Three new flight line buildings will be constructed at Hamilton Air Force Base with $585,000 released yesterday by Air Force headquarters in Washington.

The one-story steel-reinforced, concrete buildings will be for an aircraft weapons calibration shelter, an aircraft engine inspection and repair shop, and an armament and electronics shop. The new buildings will replace too-small buildings, temporary or inconvenient existing facilities, base spokesmen said.

Word of the release of the funds came to the Independent-Journal in a telegram from Sen. Clair M. Engle's office in Washington.

Work is not expected to start for at least six months. Army engineers will design the buildings. Local civilian contractors will do the work.

The weapons calibration center will have 2,400 square feet, the engine shop and armament shop each 13,000 square feet.

Sale Approved For Larkspur School Bonds

Larkspur School District trustees last night authorized the Marin County Board of Supervisors to issue for immediate sale $255,000 in district bonds.

This would give the district the $201,000 necessary for state approval of construction of a fourth district school with assistance of state loan funds.

The school, estimated by the architect John Lyon Reid at $858,608, would be located on Paradise Drive east of Mariners Cove subdivision. Construction will start immediately following state approval, said Supt. Vaughn D. Seidel.

Vehicle Chased; Blaze Put Out

Richard Steel of San Francisco was driving his pickup truck over the Golden Gate Bridge to Marin yesterday when bridge attendants noticed smoke and flames from the bed of the truck.

A tow car gave chase. California highway patrolmen stopped Steel at the Spencer Avenue turnoff to Sausalito, where Sausalito firemen extinguished the fire in a cushion.

What's In A Name?

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—General Session Judge Tisdale J. Touart fined Marolyn Saucer, 28, $100 for speeding 105 miles an hour with the remark: "Your name should be Flying instead of Marolyn."

Blood Bank Scheduled; Carnations Due Again

The second stop on the month-long tenth anniversary celebration of the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank's coming to Marin will be Friday when the mobile unit is at the Elks Club at Fifth Avenue and B Street, San Rafael, from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Again a red carnation will be given to each donor, courtesy of F. C. Burns Florist. A drive is on to make this the largest blood bank ever held in Marin County.

A LOT OF HAY GETS IN THE HARNESS

Farmer Ernest Bures of Ravinia, S.D., adjusts the harness on his team of straw horses. His hobby is making parade floats out of corn stalks, oats, grasses and sweet clover. A power mechanism causes the horses to move their legs, toss their heads and switch their tails. (AP Wirephoto)

DR OTTO HALPERN
Honored At Last

U.S. Honors Inventor Of Radar Device

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A brilliant scientist today was to receive one of the nation's highest honors for an antiradar invention so vital that it is still classified as a top secret.

Rear Adm. Walter F. Rodee, commander of 11th Naval Dist. air bases, was to give Dr. Otto Halpern a special Defense Department medal in ceremonies at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The fact that Dr. Halpern had to fight for 18 years for his right to the honor is of no significance to him today.

"Wouldn't it be ungracious of me to complain," he said yesterday, "when the Defense Department is doing everything it can now to make up for those bitter years?"

A year ago Dr. Halpern was awarded $340,000 by the Defense Department in settlement of his 18-year court battle for recognition as inventor of a material that helped U. S. planes and ships evade enemy radar in World War II and the Korean conflict.

Dr. Halpern's invention is a thin, rubber-like coating containing tiny metallic flakes which is applied to ships, planes and ground installations to absorb radar waves.

Dr. Halpern, 61, currently a consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission's Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., lives in surburban Pacific Palisades.

At the end of 1958, there were 545,465 patients in state mental hospitals, a reduction of more than 13,000 patients since 1955.

OLDEST SWEARS IN THE NEWEST

Vernon Dwelly (right), oldest sergeant in the California Highway Patrol in years of service, yesterday read the citations of promotion to the two newest sergeants in the patrol, Robert Greer (left) and William Roberts. The two, who completed their service as patrolmen in Marin County, are being transferred to new stations. Sergeant Dwelly is acting Marin commander of the highway patrol during vacation of Capt. Supervisors Hear Proposals On Mental Health Program

More than 100 Marin County residents crowded a San Rafael courtroom last night to give the county board of supervisors their views on a proposal to expand the county's mental health program with aid of state Short-Doyle Act funds.

Most of them favored it: a smaller number voiced objections.

The meeting was a public hearing called by the supervisors before they make a decision on the Mental Health Advisory Board's recommendations for participation in the Short-Doyle program to enlarge present services "most economically and efficiently."

The mental health board was appointed a year ago to make a thorough survey of current facilities and services and make recommendations for better meeting the county's needs.

The board's report was made in May and read again last night by Dr. Joseph Gutstadt, chairman. Gutstadt noted that it was not a unanimous report; one member had opposed using Short-Doyle funds.

That member, M. J. Lamperti, urged last night that the county go ahead with its mental health program and enlarge it, but "let's do it on our own. We don't need Short-Doyle funds. They give you a dollar and it will cost you 50 cents for additional state reports. I'm against anything where you have the state come in and control it."

A woman who described herself as a Ross taxpayer told the board that as a state taxpayer, she would like to get back some of the money she had paid to the state. This could be done through the county receiving Short-Doyle funds, she said.

Dr. William G. Neal, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of California Medical School and member of the mental health board, said all the members except Lamperti were satisfied that regulation by the state would be about minimum.

The state's regulations essentially were to assure a "quality setup . . . to set standards we agreed were good," he said.

Supervisor Vera L. Schultz read a letter from a Mill Valley tax consultant, F. J. Grew, urging participation in Short-Doyle. Grew stressed that 100 per cent of the state's taxpayers were paying taxes into the state and 69 per cent were getting back substantial refunds under Short-Doyle. The remaining 31 per cent, including Marin residents, "are presenting some of our hard-earned money to this more astute 69 per cent," he wrote.

Walter Eager of Santa Venetia showed charts on the increases in San Mateo County's mental health budget and said he wished to point out the way a program of this type can grow beyond real need.

Another chart showed that there were 89 referrals to the Marin County medical department's psychiatric clinic in the 18-month period to July 1. "This leads me to believe there is no urgency," Eager said.

Dr. Gutstadt declared that even if the supervisors were inclined to spend $500,000 for mental health services, "I guarantee there would still be a need."

County Administrator D. A. Jensen reported in a letter to the supervisors that about $20,000 in the preliminary 1960-61 budget would be reimbursable under Short-Doyle provisions.

If the mental health program is placed under direction of the health officer, an additional $10,000 as a minimum should be appropriated to cover employment of a psychiatric social worker and administrative assistance to the health officer, Jensen wrote.

Dr. William Andrews, member of the Marin County Medical Society mental hygiene committee, said the society favored participation in the program. Several other physicians also spoke for the program.

A show of hands in the audience indicated the majority of those present wanted the county to expand its program with Short-Doyle aid.

Vacation Church School To End

A vacation church school, held for the past two weeks at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael, will end Friday with a family night program at the church.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m., and will be followed by a display of craft projects completed by students, said Mrs. H. D. Rothrock, church member.

Royalty Enchanted

Kern Loo, manager of the telephone exchange in San Francisco's Chinatown, will speak to the Mill Valley Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Mill Valley clubhouse.

Rock Foundation Held Boon To Civic Center

Though Marin's Civic Center sometimes shakes a bit on its political foundations, physically it will be firmly fixed.

Aaron Green, architect for the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation, brought this point out in a "progress report" to the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

He said everything is proceeding satisfactorily and that general site development work, including excavation, grading and fill, is 90 per cent complete.

When he said soil engineers have verified that everything has been "done properly and well," Supervisor William Gnoss said, "I understand they found a lot of rock in the soil tests."

"It is in our favor that we have such a stable foundation," said Green. Green said pouring of concrete for foundations of the administration building has started.

Supervisor William D. Fusselman questioned Green as to whether the Wright Foundation had formally recommended underground installation of utility lines. Green replied this was being done without such recommendation, "but if asked, we would recommend that Marin County and every other county avoid being blighted by exposed lines."

R. F. Wood, manager of Associated Plumbing Contractors, served notice that his group means to insist on inspection by the county public works department as well as Green.

"Our feeling is that up to this point we are satisfied, though we didn't recheck," said Public Works Director Marvin W. Brigham.

"We don't feel that Mr. Brigham or the man working so far is competent to inspect the plumbing and heating," Wood said.

The supervisors also:

1. Told Building Inspector Otto Meyer that, as soon as their equalization work is over they will set a time for consideration of a revised county electrical code, now ready for hearings.

2. Continued to 11 a.m. Aug. 9 a public hearing on establishing Flood Control Zone 5 at Stinson Beach.

3. Authorized the county counsel to prepare an agreement with the Unitarian Church in Terra Linda for 20,000 yards of fill from a knoll on church land to be provided at the Civic Center for 50 cents an excavated yard including spreading and compacting.

4. Agreed to offer the county counsel's services to opponents of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's abandonment of its Sausalito freight line but refused to appropriate any money for the fight. A. G. Schoonmaker Co. had asked for a county financial contribution to help finance the opposition to abandonment.

5. Took no action on a letter from the Meadowsweet Improvement Assn. charging that traffic hazards exist on a Highway 101 service road in front of Marin Joe's and on Meadowsweet Drive behind the Casa Buena apartments.

6. Read a letter from the Marin County Taxpayers Assn. backing a demand from the Engineering and Grading Contractors Assn. that the county award road maintenance contracts rather than allow county crews to do the work.

7. Appointed Livia Walker, typist clerk in the district attorney's office, $310 a month; Dorothy Pellini at $395 and Eva Grove at $458, social workers, county welfare department; James Fleming, deputy sheriff, $395; Edwin Koehn, jailer, $395. The board promoted Evelyn Ferested from intermediate typist clerk to intermediate account clerk in the tax collector's office, no salary increase; Francis A. Raymond, from fire warden 1 at $395 to fire warden 2 at $415; and Thomas B. Estes from deputy probation officer 1 at $458 to deputy probation officer 2 at $481; Betty Heinrich and Beverly Curley, key punch operators in the data processing bureau at $281 per month.

8. Accepted a final map of Golden View Heights and granted consent to Mill Valley to set up Scott Valley No. 1 assessment district.

Board Gets San Rafael Road Request

The City of San Rafael has asked the Marin County Board of Supervisors to acquire nine parcels of land along San Pedro Road "immediately" for widening between Embarcadero Way and the city limit line. But the board is going slow.

A letter received by the supervisors yesterday from Norris W. Rawles, San Rafael's department of public works supervisor, enclosed title reports and said the city council had asked action. Assessor's market value is $160,250, he said.

County Public Works Director Marvin W. Brigham told the supervisors that if they wish to proceed under the city-county "matching funds" agreement on roads held by both, he wished authorization to negotiate with the property owners involved.

Supervisor William D. Fusselman wanted to know about respective city and county holdings. Brigham said he'd have to check up. After moving for authorization, Chairman Walter R. Castro withdrew his motion.

Later, Brigham said seven parcels were in city limits and had assessor's valuation of $133,800, the other two being in unincorporated area with value of $26,450.

After discussion, the board authorized Brigham to secure another appraisal and report back, probably next Tuesday.

Grocery Chain Expansion Rapid In '50s

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The grocery customer—and who isn't?—finds His or Her store ever fancier these days and often more efficient.

Some of the supermarkets may lull you and accompanying small fry with piped in music or entice you with an ever wider variety of food products—and nonfood items.

But while the food chains go on spreading and copping an impressive share of total grocery sales, behind their suave fronts are increasing problems that the music—or even the cash register jingle — doesn't lull.

EXPANDED FAST

The grocery chains boast that in the 1950s they expanded faster than any other form of retail trade. But with that growth they face today a squeeze on profits.

Example: the largest chain (A&P) reports earnings in its latest quarter were off 4.5 per cent from the spring weeks of 1959 and its total net income last year was 1 per cent of sales volume. Safeway and National Tea also report profits this year lower than a year ago.

Other problems common to the lengthening chains are the threat of saturation, the debates over how big a supermarket can profitably be, what else besides food it should sell, and how to increase mechanization and processing without antagonizing the women shoppers who like to pinch and look closely at what they're buying.

Another worry is that while your income tends to increase, you are spending a smaller part of it on food than you used to, in spite of the rise in food prices over the years.

Food's share of the basic standard of living was 24.3 per cent in 1950 and 23.1 per cent in 1959. It's share may shrink a bit more this year, in spite of the Grocery Manufacturers of America's prediction that 1960 will see another record spending for food.

SALES RISE

In 1959, food chain store sales rose 5 per cent over 1958 to a record 19½ billion dollars, or 39 per cent of total grocery store sales. But profit margins of all but one of the 10 largest chains were under 2 per cent of sales.

Some food chain battles, like those over trading stamps and private labels vs. national brands, seem to be in the truce stage at the moment.

While some food chains still fight trading stamps, their wide acceptance is hailed by executives of the Trading Stamp Institute of America at its annual meeting in Atlantic City this week.

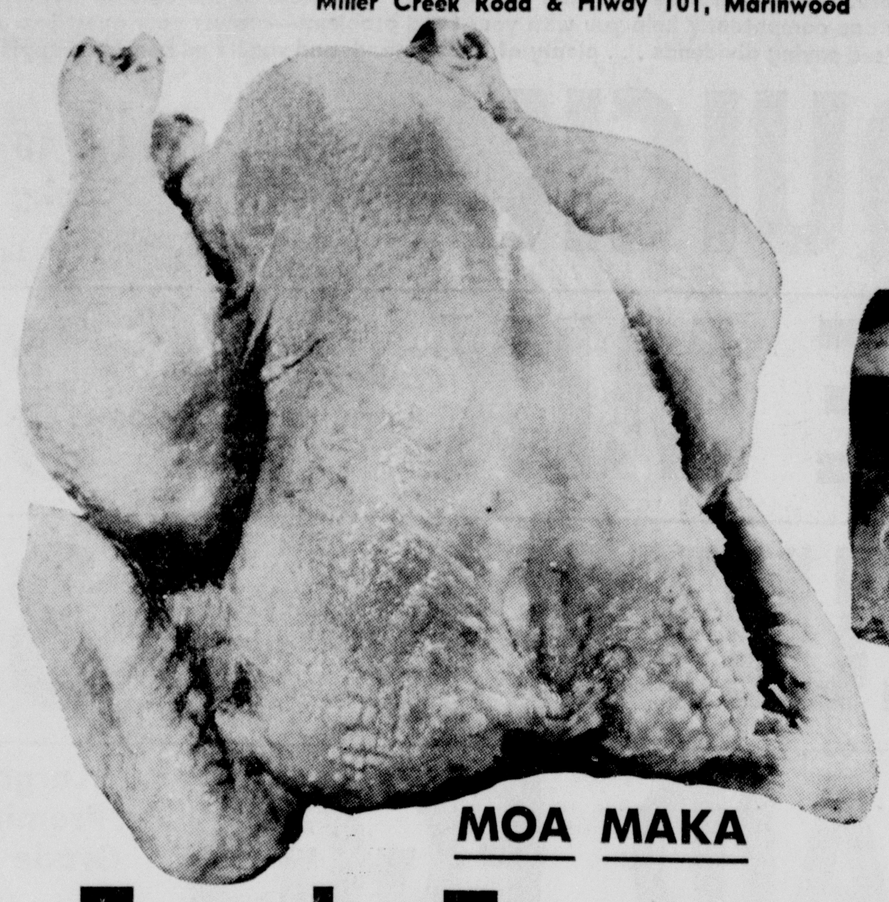

They report that last year saw a 10 per cent increase in the number of savers estimated at 39,437,000 families and a five per cent growth in the number of food chains and supermarkets using them.

Obstetrical Closing Sought By Hospital

San Rafael General Hospital wants to close its obstetrical department and only needs a release from a county contract to go ahead and close it.

Delivery of babies, which have averaged about 20 a month at the hospital, has been a money-losing operation, according to hospital administrator John H. Prescott. Space vacated by the obstetrical department could be used for much needed expansion of the medical records department and for a better employees' lounge, he said.

Yesterday the county board of supervisors appointed a committee to revise the county's contract with San Rafael General Hospital for care of indigent patients. The hospital cares for a half dozen county-paid obstetrical cases a month, Prescott estimated.

Closing of San Rafael General's obstetrical department will be "the beginning of the end to care of all county patients at a single hospital," Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy Jr., county medical director, observed regretfully in a letter to the supervisors.

It will leave Marin General Hospital as the sole place in the county for delivery of babies until the new Novato Hospital opens next January. The 30-bed Novato Hospital will have 10 beds available for obstetrical patients. Ross General closed its obstetrical department in 1953.

The supervisors' committee to revise the contract with San Rafael General Hospital includes Dr. Dufficy, County Administrator D. A. Jensen, County Counsel Leland H. Jordan, and Assistant Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

Special Meeting Set In Tiburon

The Tiburon Fire Protection district commission has set for Monday at 8 p.m. a special meeting to hire an additional fulltime paid fireman.

A closed session will be held first to consider the applications, commission secretary Kelly J. Wheeler said An open meeting will follow to announce the hiring. Wheeler said four applications have been received and he expects more.

Commissioners changed their regular monthly meeting date back to the first Monday.

Fire Chief Frank J. Buscher reported that all buildings in the Hilarita Housing project have been inspected following the recent rash of fires. He has asked that inflammable material be removed from under the buildings.

Light Disease List Reported In Marin

Communicable disease cases were light in Marin County last week.

The county health department reported nine new cases of measles, seven of mumps and three of gonorrhea as the only communicable diseases for the week.

HAFB To Observe Command Change

Col. George Ceuleers will will formally turn over command of Hamilton Air Force Base during ceremonies and a review Saturday.

Col. Harvey E. Henderson, who will become base commander, will fly from Washington, D.C. for the public review beginning at 11 a.m. He will fly back after the review and return to take command July 27. Col. Benjamin Cassidy, deputy base commander, will be the interim commander.

Approximately 1,500 troops will pass in review, in addition to 320 Air Force Academy cadets visiting the base. Air police dogs and their masters, WAFS, and the 573rd Air Force band will round out the marching contingent.

A flyby of jets will be led by Col. Louis Ford, commander of the 78th Fighter Group.

The review will be followed at night by a reception for Ceuleers at the Hamilton Officers' Club.

Ceuleers has been base commander and commander of the 78th Fighter Wing since June, 1957, coming from Portland (Ore.) Air Force Base.

His first duty assignment after his commission in 1942 was as a fighter pilot with the 84th Fighter Squadron of the 78th Group at Hamilton.

He flew 103 combat missions during World War II, downing eight German fighters and a German jet fighter and scoring three "probables." He held various commands following the war, in England and Germany, and was awarded the Legion of Merit for his work as base commander in Portland. Other decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Flying Cross with three oak leaf clusters; Air Medal with 10 oak leaf clusters and French Croix de Guerre.

New Commander Henderson is a member of the liaison and studies group of the weapons systems evaluation group in the office of the Director of Defense, Research and Engineering in Washington.

He was graduated from the Air War College and the National War College. Ceuleers is leaving to attend the National War College.

Henderson has been director of operations for the 10th Air Division in Alaska, commander of the 363rd Air Base Group at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C. and commander of the 66th Tactical Reconnaissance group in Europe.

Planners Start Survey Of Rental Units

The Marin County Planning Department today began a survey of rental units in the county to gather information that will help planners make decisions on new apartments and multi-family areas.

Samplings will be taken in Sausalito, Mill Valley, Strawberry Point, Greenbrae, Kentfield, San Rafael and Novato.

The planners want to know from the apartment dweller what he considers his greatest needs for community services and facilities at his disposal on the site of his apartment—private outdoor area, parking for guests, nearness to the highway, for example.

The planning department also wants to find out, for benefit of school officials, the family sizes in various types of apartments and the number of children in school, and whether apartment dwellers generally move into a house when children reach school age.

The planners also will ask whether the people who live in various types of rentals are living there permanently or temporarily until they can get located in a home of their own, or until their job moves them on.

In announcing the survey, the planning department pointed out that rental units in Marin are being created in many types of structures. Large homes are being converted to apartments, as are barges and other sea craft, garages, accessory buildings.

These types of units have brought up many problems and questions in the minds of planners and caused citizens to voice concern in many cases, the department said.

Miss Bennett will teach next term at Terra Linda High School.

Juvenile Hall School Named

The school at Lucas Valley juvenile hall yesterday acquired a new name: Loma Alta.

"What's it mean?" asked Supervisor William Gnoss.

"High hill," replied Chairman Walter R. Castro, who was on a committee to dream up a name.

"But the school's down in a valley," protested Supervisor William D. Fusselman.

In the end, the lyric qualities of the name overcame arguments of logic, and the supervisors voted that Loma Alta would do.

Police Say Foot Deadly Weapon After Kicking

A Sausalito soda jerk fought police so hard yesterday he was jailed on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon — his foot.

The foot of Lawrence L. Horstmann, 23, of 703 Bridgeway Boulevard, broke a blood vessel in the left hand of Police Officer Peter A. Lampros.

Struggling all the way, Horstmann was taken by Lampros and Officer John J. Higgins, first to the Sausalito police station and then to the county jail. Besides assault with a deadly weapon, he was booked for drunkenness, assault and battery, disturbing the peace and resisting arrest.

The fracas started at the Kettle Restaurant at 633 Bridgeway. At 2:27 a.m., Lampros saw a crowd of people milling around the restaurant entrance. Then out backed Horstmann, swinging and swearing.

It took the combined efforts of the two officers to jail the soda jerk. And Lampros went to Marin General Hospital for treatment of his injured hand.

Improvements Due In Inverness Water

Inverness residents can expect some improvements in their water system and no immediate change in rates under the new ownership of the Inverness Water Co.

Citizens Utility Co. of Stamford, Conn., took over operation of the West Marin firm yesterday. Its California general manager, Ted Chenault, began interviewing local residents for the position of manager in Inverness.

Chenault also was looking for an office for the water company. Larry Marks, the former owner, had operated the firm from his home in Inverness.

Chenault said Citizens Utility had acquired the property with the thought that "this was going to be a growing, expanding area," and was planning some improvements to the 60-year-old system.

The water company will be operated on generally the same policies, with the same rates, under a district office in Guerneville, he said. Chenault works out of the company's state office in Sacramento. Citizens Utility operates in 34 states.

Worker Catches Hand In Sweeper; May Lose Fingers

Manuel Santos, 64, of 120 McAllister Avenue, Kentfield, a county public works department employee, may lose four fingers of his right hand as the result of an accident at work Monday.

Santos accidentally caught his hand in the rotating chain of a street-sweeping machine as he was attempting to pull a broken broom handle out of the mechanism, reported Arthur Newton, superintendent at the county garage. The accident happened on San Pedro Road near China Camp.

At Marin General Hospital, it was reported four of Santos' fingers were smashed and may have to be amputated.

Young Whiz To Bolster Giant Staff

Juan Marichal Will Join S.F. Hurlers On Friday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An early harvest from the farm system, pitcher Juan Marichal, joins San Francisco Friday in a move to strengthen the skidding Giants.

The move marks the first player change for Tom Sheehan since he took over as manager June 18. He can only hope the Pacific Coast League strikeout king brings the electrifying change the addition of Willie McCovey did a year ago.

McCovey broke into the Giants lineup July 30 and blasted two triples and two singles. After seven games he had 14 hits in 30 times at bat and finished with .354 in 52 games.

With this year's Giants, including McCovey, in a big slump and tied for fourth place, the call went out for Marichal.

HIS SEASONING

Juan, 21, has had only two full seasons in the minors. In 1958, he won 21 and lost 8 for Michigan City of the Class D Midwest League. He also won two playoff games.

Last year, the youngster was 18-13 with the pennant-winning Springfield team in the class A Eastern League. Again he pitched two playoff victories. He also led the league with a 2.39 earned-run average.

Off to a blazing start with Tacoma this year, he compiled a 5-0 record through May 10. Since then he has won six while losing five for an overall 11-5 mark and a 3.11 earned-run mark.

LOTS OF STUFF

Juan throws an assortment of pitches from a variety of directions. His 123 strikeouts in 139 innings for Tacoma put him far ahead in that department. And he walked only 34.

Sheehan hasn't announced when the youngster will make his first start.

The Giants open a three-game series against Los Angeles on Friday night in Candlestick Park with Philadelphia following on Tuesday.

American Loop Delays Action On Expansion

COMBINED AP and UPI

NEW YORK — The American League, openly in favor of expanding, admitted today it cannot do anything about increasing its eight-team set-up without the full cooperation of the National League.

A spokesman for the baseball's junior circuit, in explaining why his league did not "officially" discuss expansion at yesterday's four-hour meeting here, said:

"What's the use? It would be foolish to come to a decision to expand and then find out the National League once again is against it.

"One league simply cannot expand without the other."

He added:

"We in our league are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the National League meeting in Chicago next Monday. I personally have reason to believe they (the National League) are less opposed to it than they were a year ago."

Major results from yesterday's two separate meetings of club owners and players during the all-star interlude were:

1 — Robin Roberts resigned his three player-representative posts after being a player spokesman for seven years.

2 — The American League "caught up" to the National League when it agreed to start its 1961 season on April 11. It also decided to have intersectional "openers" for the first time in major league history.

3 — The players aksd that managers be included in their lush pension fund that brings as much as $550 a month to retired players. The matter was referred to pension actuaries.

Giant Tax Bill

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Assessor Russell L. Wolden announced yesterday that the San Francisco Giants must pay $117,487 in municipal taxes this year.

FAST, RISKY ACTION AT VACA VALLEY

These action photos show why judges disqualified Ted Conrad of Sunnyvale (car 78) for reckless driving during Sunday's Vaca Valley Sports Car Races in Vacaville. Upper left he slams into car 33, a Porsche Carrera driven by Ernest Mendenhall of Belvedere. The accident damaged Mendenhall's rear wheel and forced him off the track. Until that time Mendenhall held first place and had turned in the fastest trap time and the fastest lap. Above right Conrad zips past a spinning Alfa Romeo. Conrad went on to win the race, but later was disqualified. (Photos by Rich Armor)

Paret To Give Argentinian Shot At Title

NEW YORK (UPI)—Welterweight champion Benny Kid Paret, who knocked out Sugar Hart in a non-title bout last night, will make his first defense of the 147-pound crown against Argentina's Federico Thompson at Madison Square Garden, Oct. 15.

Cuban Benny, 23, knocked out slender Hart of Philadelphia at 2:36 of the sixth round in their non-title bout at the Garden with a right to the chin.

LIGHTS OUT

It was such a hard right that 24-year-old Hart said: "When it hit me, the lights went out. And when they came on again, I found I had been counted out." The blow stretched him on his back.

Paret, weighing 152¾ pounds to Hart's 153¼, was so impressed with his own punching power at that weight he said he might campaign for the middleweight crown after defending the 147-pound title against Thompson.

HIS NINTH KAYO

The champion scored his ninth knockout and 32nd victory in 41 bouts against an opponent who had been promised the October title shot instead of Thompson if he knocked Paret out last night. The champion was favored at 13-5.

It was Hart's sixth defeat and fourth kayo in 37 starts.

Paret forced the action in every round. Nevertheless, Hart fought well. Going into the sixth session, the ring officials favored the champion, 4-1, 3-2 and 4-1.

Federal Hunting Rules Announced For 1960-61

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulations to govern the 1960-61 hunting of doves, band-tailed pigeons, rails, gallinules, Wilson's snipe and woodcock were announced today.

Waterfowl regulations will be announced later.

There were few changes from last year.

The basic frameworks for seasons and bag limits within which individual states may fix their own open seasons and other limitations are:

Doves and band-tailed pigeons—individual states will select the dates for their seasons within the period Sept. 1 through Jan. 15, conforming to conditions established for each management unit.

In the Western Management Unit, made up of Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington, the states may have seasons of 50 consecutive full days or two periods totaling 50 full days. Shooting hours will be from one half hour before sunrise to sunset. The daily bag and possession limits will be 10 and 20 except in Arizona and California, the bag and possession limits on mourning and white-winged doves will be 10 singly or in the aggregate of both kinds.

Seasons for hunting of white-winged dove are prescribed for certain counties in California. The date for the seasons in Imperial, Riverside and San Bernardino counties in California must conform to those fixed for mourning doves.

Band-tailed pigeon seasons of 30 consecutive full days are prescribed for California, with the state divided into two areas in which there may be different hunting dates. Shooting hours will be from one half hour before sunrise to sunset. The daily bag and possession limits will be increased to eight, compared with six a year ago.

Rails, gallinules, Wilson's snipe and woodcock — no season on gallinules was fixed for the Pacific flyway but a provision will be included in the waterfowl regulations later this summer under which the species may be taken with coots during the waterfowl hunting season. There is little hunter interest in rails in the Pacific flyway, the department said.

Sohners Win Two From Service Team

Behind the steady pitching of Rolly Piper and Jay Leatherwood, Sohner Tree Service won a softball doubleheader from the 666th Fighter Squadron last night at Hamilton Field. The scores were 9-8 and 5-2.

Piper hurled three scoreless innings in relief to tie down the win in the seven-inning opener. A two-run single by Art Donati and Piper's two-run homer highlighted a five-run fifth inning for the winners'. The San Anselmo nine had scored three times in the first on Earl Beyer's single, a triple by Donati and a double by Jack Phillips.

In the five-inning nightcap, Leatherwood fanned 11 and allowed only one hit to record the win. Catcher Mel Powell collected the lone safety for the servicemen Earl Beyer had two hits for the San Anselmo nine.

Sohner's next game is with the powerful Presidio Army team tomorrow night in San Francisco.

Li'l League Dads In Tiburon Game

Tiburon Peninsula Little League will meet tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Tiburon Boulevard main firehouse to plan the major league dads vs. minor league dads annual game in Tiburon Saturday at 1 p.m.

Minor league team manager will be Stanley V. Dick and major league dads manager will be Francis L. Hevern.

Registration will precede the game. Refreshments will be served.

Raiders Drill 3 Hours On Opening Day

SANTA CRUZ (AP)—There'll be no time wasted by Coach Eddie Erdelatz and his Oakland Raiders between now and the time they play their first game —July 31, against the Dallas Texans in San Francisco.

On opening day, the former Navy coach sent his squad through three hours of drills with two practices yesterday and two-a-day scheduled from now on.

Erdelatz soon will begin pairing down his squad of 76 to the final squad of 33 who'll play the American Football League schedule.

QUARTERBACK DUEL

The quarterback battle appears to be between former California signal caller Paul Larson and College of the Pacific passer Tom Flores.

Erdelatz greeted an old friend in end Ron Beagle, an All-America and Maxwell Trophy winner with Navy in 1954. Beagle got out of the Navy last month after serving four years.

A San Francisco 49er alumnus, Larry Barnes, returns seeking a job in the Bay Area with the rival Raiders. Barnes, after one year with the NFL club, was hurt during pre-season training last year.

KNEE HEALED

He says his injured knee is all right now. Larry checked into camp at a solid 235 pounds and may be used as a defensive end or linebacker.

Another ex-49er is Charley Powell, who quit pro football to try heavyweight boxing. He says now he will concentrate on football again.

Four of the players didn't work out yesterday because of minor injuries. Tackle Fred Fehn, from Monterey Junior College; end Walt Denny of Sacramento and former COP halfback Jack Larscheid have pulled hamstring muscles. Powell had an ailing Achilles tendon.

Pasadena Publinx Team Wins Title

HONOLULU (UPI)—Pasadena today held the Warren G. Harding Cup after winning the team title at the 35th annual Public Links Amateur Tournament with a 453 score.

With the team championship decided, today's spotlight was on match play with the 64 low qualifiers of the 150 starters teeing off in head and head competition.

Medalist honors over the 36-hole qualifying grind were shared by three men. Harlan Stevenson of the champion Pasadena team shot 74-72—146 over the par 71 Ala Wai course. Owen T. Douglas Jr. of Honolulu, Hawaiian amateur champ, scored 74-72 and Harry Hopwood of Phoenix fired 73-73.

This was nine strokes off the pace of last year's 137 medalist score, but golfers have been bothered by stiff winds and frequent rain squalls.

ONE STROKE BACK

One stroke off the pace came Felix Claveran of Stockton with rounds of 73-74—147. Grouped at 148 were four golfers: Jack Omuro and Hung Soo Ahn of Honolulu; Tom Dixon, Daly City, and 1957 champion Don Essig of Indianapolis.

Four days of stiff match play remain with the eventual winner having to shoot 180 holes of golf to obtain his championship—barring a sudden death playoff.

The victorious Pasadena team was comprised of Stevenson, Dick Clover (150), and Ray Swedo Jr. (153). This trio finished five strokes ahead of the Denver contingent, which took second place at 458.

S. F. PLACES THIRD

San Francisco took third with a 495, paced by Dixon (a meat buyer for United Markets and well known in Marin golfing circles) with his fancy 148. Vern Callison shot a 154 and Dick Lots a 157.

With 156 the cut-off score for those qualifying, Dixon was safely in the field and among the most respected contenders for the title. Defending champion Bill Wright of Seattle, just barely survived. He was among 14 players firing 156s and had to participate in a sudden-death playoff in near darkness which eliminated 11 of the 14. But Wright made it.

Upsets Mark Early Play In Women's Golf

CINCINNATI (AP)—Picking a favorite for the 1960 women's Trans-Mississippi Golf championship already has become all but impossible.

The kids — teen-agers and girls in their early 20s—ran into a peck of trouble in yesterday's first round matches, but by sheer numbers they had to be rated high.

On the basis of past play Curtis Cuppers JoAnne Gunderson of Kirkland, Wash.; Judy Eller, Old Hickory, Tenn., and Ann Casey Johnstone, Mason City, Ia., rate as major factors.

JoAnne and Judy are in the younger group. Mrs. Johnstone is a veteran and the defending champion.

Mrs. Johnstone today meets Barbara Slobe of Waukegan, Ill.

Miss Eller, 20, faced Mrs. R. E. Mueller of Cincinnati, one of the younger players. Miss Gunderson, national intercollegiate champ, opposed Mrs. James Pickrel, Dayton, Ohio.

Still in the running were such tournament veterans as Mrs. Paul Dye Jr. and Mrs. Jason Weiss, both of Indianapolis, and Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore, Md.

Yesterday's upsets brought defeat to Carol Mann, Flossmoor, Ill., tournament medalist, and Curtis Cupper Judy Bell, Wichita, Kan.

Curtis Cup alternate, Barbara Williams of Richmond took an easy 6 and 4 victory over Mrs. Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio.

Bat Leaders Mays, Gentile Hope History Will Repeat

NEW YORK (AP)—History doesn't always repeat itself, but Jim Gentile of the Baltimore Orioles and Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants are hopeful that it does by the end of the 1960 baseball season.

Gentile and Mays are the major league batting leaders at the All-Star break, Gentile topping the American League with a .328 average and Mays pacing the National loop at .353.

Ordinarily you'd expect them both to be looking ahead to the second half of the campaign. At the same time, however, you can't blame them for looking back at the batting races of last season.

At the first All-Star game break a year ago Harvey Kuenn, then of Detroit but now with Cleveland, and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee were leading their leagues in batting.

Kuenn was hitting .356, and he went on to win the American League title with .356. Aaron's .370 mark was high at the mid-season break, and he finished in front of the National League batsmen at .355.

But it doesn't always work out that way. In 1958, for instance, Nellie Fox of the White Sox and Stan Musial of the Cards were the batting front-runners at All-Star times. When the season ended, however, Ted Williams and Richie Ashburn were wearing the crowns.

In the 1957 season Aaron and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees were the pacesetters at the midyear break. But they faded as Musial and Williams came on to capture the batting crowns.

If Gentile goes on to win the championship, he will become the first rookie ever to lead the American League in batting. The last National League freshman to garner batting laurels was Pete Reiser of the 1941 Dodgers.

Mays is seeking his second hitting title, having won in 1954 with a .345 average.

Chicago's Al Smith and Boston's Pete Runnels, the leader a week ago, are tied for second in the AL at .321.

Mays lost ground during the week as his average decreased 18 points on three-for-23. The Giants' outfielder showed signs of coming out of his slump by delivering three hits in Monday's All-Star game at Kansas City.

Los Angeles' Norm Larker is runner-up to Mays with .340, followed by Chicago's Richie Ashburn in third at .330.

More Of Same In Store For Giants Unless They Pull Triple Magic

HANLEY

What's the outlook for the second half of the N.L. campaign that gets under way Friday following the four-day All-Star break?

Cold logic dictates a simple answer: More of the same, with the Pirates displaying no tendency to panic even if their present comfortable lead is substantially trimmed before the month is out.

Emotionally, loyal Giant fans have a feeling that the first half of the season ended with a good omen when Dave Philley surprised everyone by delivering a three-run pinch homer which sparked a 5-3 Giant win over the Cubs after being down 0-3 in the seventh.

Omens, however, cannot erase an 8½-game deficit. Only sound pitching, hitting and fielding can do that. Take pitching, for example. Through the first 47 games from April 12 to June 5, Giant starters completed 23 games; Mike McCormick 8, Sam Jones 6, Jack Sanford 5, Billy O'Dell 3, Johnny Antonelli 1. Through the next 31 games from June 7 to July 10, only four additional games were completed by the pitchers who started them: Sanford 2, Jones and O'Dell one apiece.

TAKE HITTING, for another example. Willie Mays is the only Giant batting over .300. Willie Kirkland, who ended the first half in an 0-17 slump, is at .287. Orlando Cepeda, leading the club with 53 strikeouts, is at .282. Perhaps it would be just as well to forget about Willie McCovey entirely, but for the record he finished the first half at .239.

What about fielding? Without going into painful details, the Giants hold the cellar spot here with 89 errors and only 62 DP's.

MAYBE SOME magical thing will happen to the Giants during their four-day rest, but it will have to have a triple effect—on pitching, hitting and fielding—to do any good. One practical move was made insofar as the pitching is concerned. A young fellow named Juan Marichal was brought up from Tacoma. His 11-5 PCL record is impressive, but it still remains to be seen how effective he will be against major league hitters.

The Pirates have plenty of good ones, five of them batting over .300, Dick Groat, Roberto Clemente, Rocky Nelson, Smoky Burgess and Bob Skinner. The Pirates also have two mound aces in Vern Law (11-4) and Bob Friend (10-5) with a couple of adequate throwers, Harvey Haddix (6-4) and Vinegar Bend Mizell (5-5) in back of them. And in back of all four starters is the remarkable forkball man, Elroy Face.

IN ADDITION to that potent offensive outfit, the Pirates can make the double play (76 of them in the first half) and keep errors to a reasonable amount (68 in the first half). Seven of those Pirate errors were made in one game — at Candlestick Park on May 8 when they lost the third straight of their first three games with the Giants.

Groat, captain of the Pirates, committed three of the boots that day. But the fighting little field boss didn't leave Candlestick with his tail between his legs. He said: "We'll be back." Of course, Groat and his men did come back and whipped the Giants three straight June 14-15-16 and two days later Bill Rigney was bounced.

The public will be invited to participate in a number of events, including swimming and a basketball free-throw contest.

The day's program will begin at 11 a.m. Food and refreshments will be sold.

Hamilton To De-Emphasize Grid Program

Football returns to Hamilton Air Force base this fall—but not on the big time scale of previous years when the Defenders were a top service team.

"It'll be strictly a base team," new Head Coach T/Sgt. Jim Russell reported. In previous years, Air Defense commands would funnel their best fodder to the Hamilton team.

The new base policy goes along with a new armed services policy to cut back big time sports to save money. College football stars prefer a six-month enlistment, which leaves time only for training, not building teams, officers have explained.

TRAVEL LIMIT

Air Force and Navy teams now are limited to away games within 500 miles of home bases, except for an occasional exception. Army and Marine teams often depended on the Air Force for transportation.

The new Defender coach, Russell, was backfield coach for the team last year when the Defenders had one of their worst season records and went through two coaches.

Russell said he will appoint Chief Warrant Officer Hal Meller as line coach, on Meller's arrival on the base later this month.

Russell and Meller worked together with Air Force teams in Germany. Russell was head coach of a team in England, which took the U. S. European Forces championship in 1954, '55 and '56. He was backfield coach when they were runners-up in 1953.

Russell also was backfield coach at Eglin AFB from 1949-53, and head coach of an Air Force team in Germany in 1956-57.

He attended Kent State University in Ohio where he was a halfback.

Top Hamilton players who will be returning this year are halfbacks Jim Small, Jim Blaylock and Johnny Cox; quarterbacks Skip Corly and Larry Nickels; ends Norm Collingsworth and Paul Lindsay; guard Jerry Bolden; center Rudy Milstead; tackle Charlie Eckerly, and fullback Eric Kugendahl.

The tentative schedule, for home games:

Sacramento College, Sept. 10; El Torro Marines, Sept. 17; Mitchell AFB, Oct. 1; University of California Jayvees, Oct. 15; Oregon Tech, Nov. 19.

Away games:

San Quentin Prison team, Sept. 3; Seattle Ramblers, semi-pro team, at Renton, Wash., Sept. 25; Idaho State College, Oct. 8; McClellan AFB, Sacramento, Oct. 22; Oct. 29, open; Eastern Oregon State College, Nov. 5; University of California at Santa Barbara, Nov. 12.

BOWLING

Greenbrae Lanes team in the North Bay All-Star Traveling League smashed a sensational total series of 3017 Sunday to cop top honors.

The team, which rolled games of 946, 981 and 1090, consisted of Mike Weddell, Willie Corda, Al Charney, Bob Curtin and Austin Crane. Curtin hit high series of 696 on games of 188, 255 and 253.

PAUL GOTTLIEB was king pin in the 540 Scratch League at Greenbrae last Friday with an 861 total on games of 198, 194, 224 and 245.

Ted Benson came in with an 801 total and Bill Rhodes had 800.

DIABLO Bowling Supply and Marin Felt and Needle Nook teams tied for the first half championship in the "Splitniks" women's league at Greenbrae.

During the first half the gals chalked up some mighty impressive marks, including a 534 series and 235 game by Evelyn Cusimano, 517 by Barbara Hettrick and 503s by Alverna Wark and Elioise Simpson. Virginia McDougall had a 193 game and Corina Bacigalupi hit a 191.

Marin Catholic Upsets Tam Five

Play opened in the Drake Recreation "B" Basketball League (high school age) with a tripleheader in the Drake High gym last night that was highlighted by a stunning 36-35 overtime upset scored by the Marin Catholic Boosters over the Tam Boosters.

The two teams wound up the regular four quarters of play knotted at 32-all. Marin Catholic won despite Conrad Hoetger's 20 points for Tam. Gary Reganti sparked the winners with 12.

In other games last night the San Rafael Boosters defeated First National Bank (Drake) 27-20 with Rich Robertson tallying eight for the victors, Sam Johnson 14 for the losers; and the Redwood Benchwarmers romped over the Novato Boosters 54 to 28 with Tom Gaffney and Bob Sparrow scoring 10 and nine points for their respective teams.

TRAFFIC FLOW INCREASES

Graphically illustrated in this Bay Area Rapid Transit District photograph is the dramatic five-year growth in the number of automobiles traveling each weekday between 6 a. m. and 9 a. m. into the Bay Area's central core cities. The total increase amounts to 23,000 additional vehicles in this peak period. Traffic flowing the other way—from the cities into the suburban areas—also has increased—by 88 per cent in Marin-bound traffic, for example.

4-Cent Tax For Retarded School Passed

An "over-ride" tax of 4 cents per $100 assessed valuation was levied yesterday by the county board of supervisors on 15 Marin County school districts to raise $10,000 to teach a new class of mentally retarded children in Tomales.

Children from any of the 15 districts—Fairfax, Ross, Lagunitas, West Marin, Tomales Union Elementary, Bolinas, San Quentin, Stinson Beach, Nicasio, Marshall, Union Joint, Burdell, Laguna Joint, Lincoln and Point Reyes—will be eligible to apply. A dozen children are expected to enroll in the new class when it opens in the fall.

The 1959 state legislature authorized school districts with fewer than 901 children in average daily attendance to be charged an "over-ride" tax in addition to its regular tax rate to finance classes for the mentally retarded, organized by the county superintendent. Larger school districts organize and pay for their own programs for mentally retarded children.

Novato Planners Reject 11-Acre Subdivision

The Novato Planning Commission Monday night turned down a proposed 11-acre subdivision and approved plans for a store-office building.

The subdivision proposal, by C. H. Wylie for an area south of San Jose Creek and Raphael Village, was turned down 6-0 because plans did not allow for realignment of San Jose Boulevard as proposed in the North Marin Master Plan.

The office-store, proposed by Andrew B. Talbot at Grant Avenue and Fifth Street, won commission approval of parking in rear, with a mall-like setting in the front. The question had been continued from a previous meeting when commissioners split 2-2 on whether parking should be in front or rear.

Planners tentatively approved construction of a nursery and sales building on the east side of First Street between Vallejo and Olive Streets, requested by Joseph D'Amato. Final approval will come from a committee appointed to work out architectural details.

A request for approval of development plans for Loma Verde Baptist Church on Calle Arboleda near Alameda Del Prado was continued to July 25.

Also set for that date is a public hearing on a request by builder Henry J. Kaehler for rezoning two lots on the north side of Olive Street at Second Street from single-family residential to multiple-dwelling status.

A rezoning request for 50,000 square feet of land at Diablo and Court Road from general retail to professional-administrative was set for hearing Aug. 8. George Schilling is the applicant.

Novato Woman Hurt In Accident

Mrs. Irene Hukoveh of 16 Joan Avenue, Novato, was reported in good condition in Marin General Hospital today after being injured in a one-car accident last night in Sausalito.

The accident happened at 7:25 p.m. in the Sausalito City parking lot across from Vina Del Mar Plaza. Sausalito police said that no details were available since a report had not yet been made.

Mrs. Hukoveh was treated for a severe cut on her head, multiple bruises on hands, knees and right leg.

NEW LODGING, FOOD GUIDE DUE AGAIN

The second printing of Marin's "food and lodging guide," published by the Marin Visitors Bureau Dept. of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce will be introduced tomorrow evening at the "Dollars for Drake" dinner at the Wye Club.

Speaker Benjamin Draper, of the television department of the California Academy of Sciences, will speak about Sir Francis Drake. The event will be the first of several in a campaign to purchase a large statue of Drake as a visitor attraction in Marin.

The new folder, in green and redwood-brown colors, lists 16 places to sleep and 30 restaurants.

Budget Reviewed In Mill Valley

The Mill Valley School District board adopted a budget of $1,243,919 Monday.

Another discussion of this budget is set for 8 p.m., July 25 in the district office, with public hearing and final approval on Aug. 1.

The operating budget remains the same as that previously approved, $1,108,500, according to Leo B. Edson, assistant superintendent.

Board Votes Juvenile Hall Ventilation

Mindful of recent criticism about ventilation and sanitary conditions at the Lucas Valley juvenile hall, the county board of supervisors yesterday approved $200 to install a louvered vent in the worst ventilated room and $185 to put a hand washing sink in the dining room.

Public Works Director Marvin W. Brigham estimated it would cost $2,522 for a dish washing machine and $2,090 to put louvered vents in 19 other rooms at juvenile hall. No action was taken to install these items.

"It seems a lot and much of the money would be going down the drain," Chairman Walter R. Castro commented.

"You don't have a kitchen to support that kind of equipment," Brigham said of the dishwasher.

Chapman Shoe Store In San Rafael Will Expand Into Adjoining Space

Thanks to the vacancy of adjoining premises, Chapman Shoe Store at 1236 Fourth Street, San Rafael, will be expanded by some 1,200 square feet within the next month. The spot was formerly occupied by Herbert and Rohrer jewelers who have moved to 1219 Fourth Street.

The additional store space will be utilized exclusively for men's and boy's shoes and connected to the present quarters by two doorways. Remodeling work is already under way by contractor Murray Baxter. The project should be completed by Aug. 5.

Proprietor Irving Chapman says that the space now occupied by the store will be devoted entirely to women's, children's and teen-agers' shoes. He expects to add many new lines and increase his stock substantially.

Chapman's Shoes has been at this location since 1954. Chapman purchased the M and S Shoe Store at 1226 Fourth Street in 1952.

A SMALL ITEM in this column July 4 about a new English product, the Augur safety ladder foot, led us, of all places, right back to San Rafael and only four blocks from this office where the Hopfeld Industrial Manufacturing Co. turns out one of the finest items of its kind we've seen—the Himco fiber glass safety ladder.

Henry Hopfeld, a resident of Marin County for 15 years, has spent half of that time perfecting a ladder which is so light that one man could carry four 12 foot extensions without catching his breath, and so strong that one rung will sustain a load of up to 1,600 pounds before breaking. The ladder is also non-conductive which makes it invaluable around high voltage power lines and equipment. Basically it is constructed of cinnamon wood imported from South America which is both strong and lightweight, bonded to an outer sheathing of fiber glass.

An automatic self-locking equalizer makes it immediately adjustable for use on slopes, irregular ground and steps. Other features insure against slippage and wear and tear. Maintenance and repair are negligible.

Unfortunately for the do-it-yourself home owner it has never reached the retail market. Utility and power companies, industrial firms and fire departments snap up the entire output so fast that Himco can't keep up with the demand.

Two years ago an article describing it appeared in Prefabrication and New Building Technique, a London magazine. Perhaps that's where the English got the idea for their version.

Himco is one of those Marin County "clean" industries with tremendous possibilities for expansion. It might go unnoticed if someone didn't call your attention to it.

NEW QUARTERS for Dill and Sederberg, Mill Valley plumbing contractors at 448 Miller Ave., will be ready for occupancy about the middle of August.

The firm which has been at this location for more than four years and long cramped for space will have a new office and warehouse at 290 Camino Alto, Mill Valley — about twice as large as present facilities.

The company is operated by Edward H. Dill who lives in Strawberry, and Donald E. Sederberg of Ross.

AUTO FACTS: In 1960 models, 26 per cent of all U. S. cars produced have been compacts . . . Recent high sales in new cars have been matched by output and factory deliveries . . . In 1961 the only dealer groups not to offer both compact and standard cars will be Rambler and Cadillac—unless, of course, the latter comes out with something called Cadillette, for the junior exec. . . . In California last year more than one million persons were licensed to drive motor vehicles—nearly 10 per cent of the country's total.

Five Greyhound Drivers Honored

Awards for perfect records of safe highway travel have been authorized for five Marin County drivers by Greyhound Lines.

Those honored are:

Rolf N. Stormer of 122 Tamal Vista Drive, San Rafael, with 15 years service over an estimated 525,000 miles of highway travel; Louis E. Brown of 270 Cardinal Road, Mill Valley; 10 years for 350,000 miles; Hymen Pollack of 47 Tamalpais Avenue, San Anselmo, 15 years and 525,000 miles, and, Mrs. Jerrine W. Doty of 118 the Alameda, San Anselmo, 15 years over an estimated one million miles of highway.

Meadowsweet Rezoning Turned Down

An application for rezoning which would have permitted construction of apartment houses and adjoining recreation areas in the Meadowsweet area was denied Monday night by the Corte Madera planning commission.

The application concerned approximately seven acres, now zoned commercial and low density residential and owned by J. H. and A. S. Wilsey and the Adgar Co. Inc. The owners asked for high density zoning for the entire area.

Opposing the application were about a dozen Meadowsweet residents.

A public hearing was set for Aug. 8 on rezoning of two parcels at Paradise and Harbor Drives owned by P. J. Tarrant and Edna Harris. An application to rezone the property from single family residential to high density residential was denied last month. The scheduled hearing will be on a new application to rezone the property to medium density residential duplexes.

The commission also instructed a committee made up of John Adlard, Walter H. Ehlers and new commissioner member Felix Pioli to draft an amendment to the town zoning ordinance which would permit off-site signs for business establishments. The committee was formed as a result of an application for a change in the ordinance by James Stockman, proprietor of the Edgewater Inn.

The committee will submit its suggestions at the next regular meeting of the commission.

Novato Sanitary Board Members Up For Election

Two members of the Novato Sanitary District board will be up for election Sept. 13.

The four-year terms of Carlos Rivamonte and Harry Overly expire. Both men will run again.

Overly was appointed to the board four years ago when there was on opposition to his election filing. Rivamonte had been appointed previous to the 1956 election, and also was appointed in that year when he filed for election and found no opposition.

Election petitions with five to 20 signatures must be filed with district secretary A. H. Tresch between July 15 and Aug. 4.

There will be four polling places in the Novato-Ignacio area.

A COLONIAL trick for cooler lemonade — use peppermint sticks as stirrer - straws to add flavor and coolness. Spicy Early American cookies make perfect taste complements for this traditional summer beverage.

Flavor Tricks For Hot Weather Fare

When it came to making tasty beverages, Early American women could pull some fine flavor tricks out of their reticules. Some of them are readily adaptable to our modern tastes and ways of living.

Mrs. Homemaker of 1815 used more spices and herbs than her 20th century descendant. In a day when ice was found more often under-foot than in a glass, peppermint was used to make summer drinks taste cooler and more pungent.

Here's a modern version combining that peppermint coolness with the most American of all beverages—lemonade. It makes a big occasion of the warm-weather cookie-and-lemonade break. The trick is to use peppermint candy sticks as stirrers . . . and pretty soon, presto-chango, they turn into straws! All the small-fry have to do is keep sucking on the end of the peppermint stick, and, slowly at first, the lemonade starts coming up the middle.

Another trick (with fun-type of educational overtones) is to serve it in an Early American way—in "Americana" glasses which feature highlights of our country's history. Andrew Jackson on horseback, Commodore Perry's flagship, and Independence Hall are shown on them in gold-on-black and gold-on-white medallions.

And don't forget the Early American cookies, prepared as follows:

CINNAMON SHORT CRACKERS

2 cups flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
Dash salt
1 cup butter or margarine

Combine and sift together dry ingredients. Use a pastry blender, or your hand, to mix in butter or margarine. Lightly knead mixture until it holds together; shape firmly into a thick roll about two inches in diameter. Wrap and chill several hours. Cut chilled dough into thick slices (about ¼") and place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Flatten slightly using the bottom of a glass dipped in flour, or pressing with the fingers; in either case, try to keep the cookie dough shaped in a round or oval. Use the tines of a fork to prick cookies all over. Bake in a moderate oven 350°, 15 minutes. Served plain, or frosted with a light confectioners' glaze; add a sprinkle of grated lemon rind, orange rind or finely minced glazed fruit, if desired. Makes about 3 dozen large cookies.

SWEET CHOCOLATE ALMOND CAKES

1½ cups finely ground blanched almonds
2 cups confectioners' sugar, sifted
1 egg white
Blanched almonds
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dash salt
1 square (1 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate, shaved.

Combine and mix all ingredients, except blanched almonds. Rub a clean cookie sheet with a piece of wax paper, then drop cookie dough by spoonfuls onto cookie sheet. Or shape dough into little balls, about a tablespoon each, and place on cookie sheet; press with a fork to make an even, thick round cookie. Bake in a moderate oven 350°, 15 minutes. Use a broad spatula to remove cookies from pan while they are hot. Makes about 3½ dozen cookies.

Havana Shake Tasty Drink For Summer

For a cool and refreshing warm day drink, serve this delicious "Havana Shake." Canned fruit cocktail and orange juice give this beverage its refreshing flavor and wonderful golden color. Ice cream is blended into this luscious drink, too.

You might serve this satisfying drink with bacon-tomato sandwiches for a warm day lunch. Or, serve it when friends come to call on a balmy summer evening. You're sure to receive compliments!

HAVANA SHAKE

1 (No. 2½) can fruit cocktail
½ cup syrup from fruit cocktail
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon rum extract
¼ cup frozen orange juice concentrate (partially thawed)
1 pint vanilla ice cream
Ice cream for garnish (optional)
Mint sprigs (optional)

Drain fruit cocktail thoroughly, saving ½ cup syrup. If desired, save a few tablespoons fruit cocktail for garnish. Combine remaining fruit cocktail, ½ cup syrup, salt, rum extract, orange juice concentrate and ice cream in electric blender; blend until smooth.* Pour into glasses and, if desired, garnish with additional ice cream, fruit cocktail and mint sprigs.

Makes 3 to 4 servings.

*This makes a very thick shake. If desired, it may be thinned with milk.

'HAVANA SHAKE' will become one of your warm weather favorite. This delicious drink is made with ice cream, canned fruit cocktail and frozen orange juice. Rich and good!

Teatime Is Honey Time When You Serve These Dainty Delights

Springtime may be early or late as far as the calendar days are concerned, but when cool winds lessen and the skies become blue, filled with fluffy white clouds, and May flowers show everywhere, we take a deep breath and declare that "Spring Is Really Here."

Your way of greeting the Springtime may be taking excursions into the country in a car, or on foot. You may be one who looks to new fashions which help you jump to bright colored garb, with a hat of flowers and bows, and with gloves so crisply white.

But what is better than celebrating the season by way of a very special tea.

Tea fare, by all rights should be pretty, dainty and tasty. Served from a table with your best china, silver and flowers, it is an occasion to remember.

The hostess does not regret the careful preparation, and the time spent, when the table in splendid grandeur matches the beauty and flavor of the dainy servings.

Teatime can be honey time when the tables boasts of such specialties as Honey Nut Bread, Tea Sandwiches, Orange Honey Cookies and Coconut Beehives. Tea and Coffee, Nuts and Mints complete the service.

Then the tea table will be in tune with Spring.

Pour into greased loaf pan, the bottom of which has been lined with wax paper. Bake at 325 F for 1 hour or until the loaf is nicely browned and begins to shrink from the pan. Yield: 1 loaf. Age two days before serving. Serve sliced bread spread with Honey Butter made by beating equal parts of Honey and Butter together.

TEA SANDWICH

1 egg, well beaten
2 cups flaked coconut

Combine honey, salt, and egg; stir in coconut. Drop mixture by heaping teaspoonfuls on a greased baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (325 F.) 12 minutes, or until slightly browned. Makes about 1 dozen confections.

MEALTIME IN MARIN

Cooks Have Wondered What To Serve For 6,000 Years

By BARBARA HOSMER

When you begin to cast around in your refrigerator to see what's on hand for the next sitting, stop for a moment and consider how it all began. For some 12,000 years ago during the New Stone Age men and women in an inventive mood made some changes in daily living, gradual to be sure, that have a profound effect today.

They began to sew seeds and keep animals, settling instead of wandering. They built shelters and they created pottery to store food and water, enabling them to find new ways of preparing meals.

Later the peoples of the rich Nile Valley began to corral animals in nearby canyons for a constant meat supply, and with newly invented means of irrigating, they grew fine crops. Without the constant need to hunt food, the Egyptians who lived over 6,000 years ago used their "leisure" time well. They observed the annual flood of the Nile and the phases of the moon and developed the calendar year of 30 days to each of 12 months. The five days "left over" they designated as feast days, when food was paramount.

With time on their hands the Egyptians busied themselves in making refinements and care in food preparation. So when you step to the refrigerator pondering what to serve, remember that mankind has been wondering what to have for dinner for over 6,000 years.

So with cognizance of this new kinship with Queen Nefertiti, you still wonder how to use up those scraps of meat and cheese on the shelf before you. A casserole will do it, but why not try something different, such as a substantial salad.

This salad is the result of leftovers that are served just as a regular tossed greens salad would be, and it combines well with toasted cheese buns, egg dishes or vegetables casseroles. The ingredients can be packed easily and combined at the picnic table, if you are so inclined.

CORNED BEEF SALAD

Tear lettuce into bite size and combine in bowl with corned beef, which has been shredded into thin strips with a fork. Then slice into the bowl an equal amount of cheddar cheese. The mild kind is best. Toss with a dressing made of mayonnaise, barbecue sauce and lemon juice, a touch of mustard, salt and pepper, just before serving.

Actually you can use any dressing with a mayonnaise base that the family prefers. Serve on lettuce leaf cup or in wooden bowls.

Here's another that uses crab and salami. Be wary of serving crab dishes with anything that tends to detract from its delicate flavor. It gets "lost" easily, but is a fine foil for salad greens and vegetables if the cook is restrained in the use of herbs or vegetables.

COSMOPOLITAN SALAD

Cup lettuce in individual salad bowls, then to each serving add chilled cooked hearts of celery, three quarters of firm peeled tomatoes, 3 large asparagus tips, either crab legs or other crab meat, and salami, sliced very thin.

Serve with a dressing of olive oil mixed with claret vinegar, salt and pepper, or with French dressing and mayonnaise. Garnish with ripe olives.

The Cosmopolitan salad recipe comes, thanks to Aline Merritt of Olema, from the North Beach families who fish the waters beyond the Golden Gate for the Pacific crab, and who are true authorities on how to eat it.

Hot salads make unusal supper dishes and can be prepared in short order.

MARYLAND SUPPER SALAD

1 can macaroni with tomato sauce and cheese
1 cup diced celery
2 cups cabbage, shredded fine
1 tbsp. minced onion
2 tbsp. chopped green pepper
1 cup sliced cooked shrimp
½ cup mayonnaise

Mix the ingredients lightly with a fork and serve with any greens. Serves six. Canned or frozen shrimp are suitable.

Hat Auction Provides Fun As St. Dismas Club Event

Rapidly growing in popularity among women as fund raising events are auction parties like the one given Monday afternoon by Mill Valley's St. Dismas Club.

Composed of a group of women of Our Lady of Mount Carmel parish, the club meets usually for luncheon and bridge on second Mondays of a month.

But this month, at the suggestion of Mrs. Sean Maloney, a hat auction was given in the Enchanted Knolls home of Mrs. John M. Kennedy Jr. as a benefit for the Mount Carmel Church's building fund.

Assisting Mrs. Kennedy as hostesses were Mesdames George Monardo and Kimball Palm.

After a sherry punch was served, members and guests gathered in the garden for the hat sale with Mrs. Paul Vogelheim acting as expert auctioneer and impromptu model.

As bidding began, reasons for the popularity of such an auction were evident. When hats are really good ones, as these were—many with high fashion labels—an unequalled opportunity to own an assortment is offered milady at the small cost of contributing a hat of her own, plus anything from 25 cents to $4.55 for another hat she likes. This was the price range from cheapest to most expensive.

Then, too, there was much hilarity as the bidding advanced a nickel at a time, especially when ownership of a popular little number was hotly contested by several women.

In the interest of a good cause, comments on exceptionally becoming qualities of some hats to prospective purchasers were freely given to stimulate that urge to buy.

Dessert and coffee served in the living room after the auction concluded the afternoon.

In addition to the hostesses and Mrs. Maloney, and Mrs. Vogelheim, members and guests attending were Mesdames Norman Hammersly, Fred Greenland, Donald Harper, Joseph Wittenmeier, J. D. Harrison, William Perka, Richard Kennedy, John Preisinger, Francis Walsh, Victor Reed, Stuart Leete, Wayne Speckmann, John Sowden, Paul Limont, Gerald Mertens, Charles Guichard, John Arbios, Robert Kohler, Mitchell Davies, and William R. Schmidt.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Wilmarie Anne LaViolette of Sausalito and Charles Ross Prchal of Phoenix, Ariz., was recently announced by her mother, Mrs. William A. LaViolette of Sausalito. A wedding is planned for next June.

St. Raphael Court Has Installation

Mrs. Daniel Saultry was recently installed as Grand Regent of Court St. Raphael, Catholic Daughters of America at an impressive ceremony at St. Raphael's Hall.

Installing officer, District Deputy Antoinette Cerasi, assisted by Mary Ricards of Court California, Oakland, presented Mrs. Saultry with the gavel of her office.

Also installed were Mesdames A. E. Schweighofer, vice regent; Angelo Colombo, prophetess; Ray Banahan, financial secretary; Irving Hobbs, historian; Charles Benton, treasurer; William Webb, monitor; J. L. Sittenauer, sentinel; John Webb, lecturer; Marian Leddon, organist; Harold Winter, William Slattery, M. E. Schwager, trustees.

Guests for the evening included those from Court St. Agnes, Fairfax; Court Vallejo, Vallejo; and Court Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Saultry thanked the Court for electing her to the position of grand regent, and expressed hope that a successful year would follow. Mrs. Saultry received a corsage, in the colors of the court, sent with congratulations by her husband.

After the installation, Rev. John Petroni congratulated the new officers. Mrs. Cerasi spoke to the large group attending and thanked all for their cooperation during her term of office as District Deputy which ends this year.

A gift and best wishes were extended to Mrs. William Slattery, outgoing grand regent, who has served Court St. Raphael for the past two years.

Mrs. Hobbs was chairman of the evening, and the table decorations were in pastel shades.

Court St. Raphael will recess for the summer months and reconvene in September, after a successful and busy year, which included an active study group, participation in the operation of the parish library and Mission Gift Shop, talent show, and a family supper for the court and members of their families.

Mom, Dad, Sis And Junior Can Shoot For Fair Cash

Mom and sis will be given an opportunity to prove what they've known all along—that they can cook and sew and are versed in all sorts of handiwork—at the California State Fair in Sacramento Aug. 31.

And they can collect hard cash for their efforts!

The State Fair has offered $2,600 this year in its home economics competition, according to Director Mrs. Buddie Shrier, with prize money to be doled out to a variety of winners from jelly to carved objects.

It will be strictly a battle of the homebodies. They won't be competing against articles prepared by commercial organizations.

Both men and women are eligible if they are residents of California but their exhibits must not have been on display at the State Fair in a previous year. All items must also have been made in the last two years.

Following divisions will be decided in this year's competition:

Food preparation — Jelly; novelty type jellies; jams, marmalades and preserves; home-canned fruits; pickles and relishes.

Baked Goods — Pies; cakes; cookies; bread; candy.

Handcrafts and Needlework —Ceramics; china painting; leatherwork; tatted articles; crocheted articles; hand painted articles; hand-knitted articles; hand-embroidered articles; sewing; rugs; quilts and miscellaneous including needlepoint work and wood objects carved other than furniture or picture; hand-made dolls; antique dolls; and antique quilts.

There is also a division for men only with $32 in prizes offered for crocheted and woven articles.

All of the items will be on display during the State Fair run here.

All entries must be received at the Woman's Building between Aug. 1 and Aug. 19 with the exception of pies, cakes, cookies, candy and bread. The latter are due Aug. 28.

Checks and money orders for entry fees should be made payable to the California State Fair and Exposition. Stamps are not acceptable.

Many other items of interest are on the agenda for women during the fair's 12-day run including fashion exhibits and shows, a chance to judge new products by taking part in the Consumer Reaction Council, horse show, horse racing and, of course, a chance to see the newest thing in household and community living items.

WILMARIE LA VIOLETTE TO WED CHARLES PRCHAL OF PHOENIX

Mrs. William A. LaViolette of Sausalito has announced the engagement of her daughter, Wilmarie Anne, to Charles Ross Prchal of Phoenix, Ariz.

Wilmarie's father was the late William A. LaViolette and her grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. LaViolette of San Leandro, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott of Yuma, Ariz.

Charles is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles J. Prchal and has two sisters, Sandra and Mallie. His grandparents are Mrs. Charles Prchal and the late Mr. Prchal of Omaha, Neb. and Mrs. Ross Perner of Phoenix and the late Mr. Perner.

Wilmarie, upon her graduation from Tamalpais High School next June, will continue on to college as will her future husband, who is at present on active duty with the Navy aboard the carrier, "Coral Sea."

A wedding is planned for next June when Charles' Navy duty will have been completed.

The formal announcement of the couple's engagement was made by Mrs. LaViolette at a recent party at her Sausalito residence that included Messrs. and Mesdames James Vadja, William Purdue, Joseph Stepman and Mr. Karl Wensler, of San Francisco and Judith Adams of Mill Valley.

Enlarge Your Table

For card games having more than four players, a simple way to provide a smooth, unbroken playing surface is to fit a panel of smooth plywood over two card tables.

Have your lumber dealer cut the panel to the exact size needed. The only other preparation needed is the beveling of the edges and slight rounding of the corners. Also, under each corner, rivet an elastic fabric band to slip over the corners of the card tables.

Decorate the surface with appropriate stencils or decalcomanias.

OWC Coffee Honors Two High Officers

A fond farewell was bid to Mrs. Charles Bond, honorary member of the Officers' Wives Club and to Mrs. George Ceuleers, honorary vice president, at the recent OWC coffee.

Mrs. Edward F. Hoover, newly elected president, presented Mrs. Bond with a silver cigarette lighter as she made her farewell. Mrs. Bond's husband, Brig. Gen. Charles Bond, former commander of the 28th Air Division, now heads the San Francisco Air Defense Sector. Mrs. Joe Lyle Jr., past president of the OWC, presented Mrs. Ceuleers with a silver mirror, brush, and comb set. Each piece was engraved with the letter "G". The Ceuleers are en route to Washington, where the former Hamilton commander will attend the Air War College. A farewell was also made to Mrs. Herbert A. Turk, Mrs. H. E. Sears, and Mrs. Richard J. Hansen.

Eleven newcomers were welcomed by Mrs. Charles I. Wells, newly appointed welcome chairman. Mrs. Richard Portello, wife of Lt. Col. Richard Portello, was the newcomer who was awarded an assortment of small garden plants nestled in a large glass brandy snifter. Mrs. Delmar Pullins, wife of Lt. Delmar Pullins, received a lovely yellow chrysanthemum plant which had decorated the serving table. Mrs. Joe Lyle received a gold and white perfume dispenser.

Other newcomers greeted were Mesdames Ben F. Mariska, Hilmer Nelson, Roy Adcock, Edward E. Sharp, H. C. Compton, Ernest Powers, Robert Andreason, Robert McCoy, and James R. Smith.

Mrs. Sara Hoover also extended her welcome to the newcomers and introduced the new council members and new committee chairmen.

The homes of many prominent people will be opened for luncheon and bridge. Also many homes will be opened in the evening for couples to meet, have dessert, dance and renew old acquaintances.

The committees are hard at work to make this five county reunion of the over 10,000 alumni an interesting and outstanding affair. This will be not only a day and evening of fun for all, but proceeds will go to aid students at the University.

Mrs. James A. Herbert and Mrs. William G. McCarthy are co-chairmen of the committee. Other members include Messrs. and Mesdames Leonard Powers, Francis Sommers, Frank Musso, John Crevelt, Kenneth Clark, Edward Gilligan, Robert Kelleher, Thomas Kunz, Lloyd Coyne, Richard Elson, Lou Arata, John Faliano, Richard Biava, William Grossi, Eugene Shortt, and Edward Battistini.

Mrs. Bessye Avery of Sausalito had as a visitor on Saturday her cousin, Mrs. Ethel Lindberg of Baltimore, Md. The two cousins who grew up together in Baltimore, had not seen one another for 38 years. Mrs. Avery returned to her home on Friday after a stay in San Rafael General Hospital.

Pointed Toes, Higher Heels Catching On In Men's Shoes

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The pointed toes and higher heels no longer are the sole property of the women. They're catching on in men's shoes.

BOOT AND SHOE RECORDER, a trade publication, reported that nearly every men's line at the semi-annual popular price shoe show had "more than just a sampling" of the extremely pointed or "missile" toes to offer buyers.

"The same displays were heavy with other narrow, slim and pointed shoes a little less drastic in design," said the publication. "There also was increasing interest in a higher heel, 8/8 or 9/8 . . ."

But that heel hardly puts the men in spikes. Each eighth represents one eighth of an inch, so the highest would be one and one eighth inches.

Standard heel height on men's shoes is five eighths.

New for small boys who take to puddles like a duck is a leather chukka boot, made waterproof by a new tanning process called secotan.

The process first was developed to give extra protection to footwear for sportsmen and plant workers. Leather industries of America said the process leaves a shoe light and supple as elastic, although watershedding. The manufacturer using the new type of leather for children's wear has styled the boots ankle high with a high-placed tongue for the laced front.

So many of the fashions of the 1960's hearken to the 1930's and '20's, it is no surprise to find the shingle bob and curling iron again on the scene.

One chain of salons (Charles of the Ritz) uses the curling irons to give "shadow" waves or slight dips to new short coiffures. But none of the deep crimp or groove waving like the marcel of old, say the stylists.

An the shingle isn't the mannish trim of earlier years. The hair ends in a soft cling at the nape of the neck. Some of the shingle styles have Dutch boy bangs.

It's a dull timepiece which does nothing more than keep time. The newest styles from Switzerland's watchmakers light up, alarm musically, or adjust to the jet age flight across time zones with the push of a button.

One manufacturer who for several years has made a man's light-up wrist watch this year produced one for women. The watch is suggested for finding keyholes in the dark, searching the labyrinth of a purse, or reading theater programs.

The alarm clocks which sound soothing music, mostly traditional tunes, instead of the traditional jangle, are suggested for travel because of their capsule size. Each is about the size of a filter cigarette.

The jet age watch moves ahead one hour with the push of a button; back one hour by pushing a second. Another, designed for airlines stewardesses, gives the date and time in any two zones simultaneously.

Watches for the purse swivel out of leather carrying cases.

RESEK PUPILS WELL-RECEIVED IN MILL VALLEY VOCAL RECITAL

More than a hundred people attended the recital presented Saturday night by vocal students of Mme. Bella Resek of Mill Valley at the Outdoor Art Clubhouse.

Participating were pupils from some having studied only a few months, such as Sally Champlin, Jan McCready and Susannah Lewis, to the more advanced ones like Janey Marsh, winner of one of last year's Music Chest Scholarships.

Arias from the operas "Tosca" by Puccini and "La Forza Del Destino" by Verdi were sung by Janey Marsh, and other operatic selections were sung by Lisa Mibach from the "Barber of Seville" by Rossini, Allan Maxey from "The Magic Flute" by Mozart, Kay Donovan from "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini and Ralph McGlothlen from "Faust" by Gounod.

Much applause was received by Miranda Forwood's and Cathleen Crain's songs from the musical "Brigadoon" and by duets sung by Kay Donovan and Allan Maxey, Lisa Mibach and Ralph McGlothlen, and especially the duet from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" by Janey Marsh and Ralph McGlothlen.

Konnie Klenk accompanied all of the singers at the piano.

Before the reception which followed the program, Mme. Resek, regal in a gray blue silk taffeta gown, was presented with a large bouquet of red roses. Attached to it was a red heart inscribed with the names of all students performing.

Refresher List For Your Guest Quotient

So you are going to be a guest again. For a weekend? A week? A short summer? If you were not aware of the guest mistakes you made last year, do some soul-searching now to see whether you were a good guest or a bad guest. It'll not only prove beneficial to your hostess, but perhaps she'll ask you back again. Here's a refresher list to determine your guest quotient:

1. Arrive on time or notify your hostess in plenty of time that you have been delayed. Don't wait until she's meeting the train you missed to get in touch with her.

2. Wait until the family tells you how the home schedule runs before you tell them of any plans you have in mind. If you have a friend who lives near, wait a while before you dash off to visit her.

3. Be prompt for meals. If there isn't any help in the house, ask how you can be of assistance, particularly at meal time. If you are delegated as table setter, be there in plenty of time to do the job.

4. Be cheerful. Nobody wants a sourpuss around. A gloomy type will not be invited back. And don't giggle yourself into guest oblivion.

5. Keep your room tidy. Make the bed, dust and remove any powder that has spilled on bureau or rug. Be easy on the towels.

6. Be aware of the little things. Don't take over the living room. If you want to read past a reasonable time, do it in your room. If there is a radio in your room, do not play it while others sleep, if it can be heard out of your room.

7. If the hostess expects you to observe a curfew, don't sulk. She is responsible for you during your stay.

8. Be prepared clothes-wise. Establish beforehand what clothes you should carry with you. Don't expect your hostess to have extra umbrellas, rain hats, sweaters. If you don't have these things on hand, borrow them from friends or buy them before you go on your trip.

9. Be diplomatic. If your hostess is the mother of your good friend and they have a squabble, ignore it. Don't assume that you must side with your friend.

10. Leave on the day appointed. Extend your leave if you are persuaded to do so in a sincere fashion. But don't put your hostess in the position of having to ask you to stay because you are reluctant to leave. If you leave as a good guest, she will be anxious to have you come again.

More Than One Way To Make A Bed

There's more than one way to make your own bed. If you're a do-it-yourself fan you can put together the metal frames, set the mattress and springs in place, attach a headboard and you have a complete unit with minimum cost.

The metal bed frames come in many lengths and widths which make it possible for you to construct a bed with dimensions of your own choosing, extra long, extra wide or otherwise. With headboards of many varieties on the market you can select any style for your bedroom you wish.

Make Vacation-Time Creative For Children

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

Children need something to do besides watch television and go to the movies during summer vacation. But, they need adult help and enthusiasm to get something going.

Projects that catch on with the youngsters must be creative. The thing that fires a child is something in which he uses his imagination, and expresses his feelings. It must be productive of some results, also it must not be too difficult—children become discouraged when the job seems beyond their capacity.

Several children in a family or a group from the neighborhood can work together in a project perhaps more successfully than a single child alone.

What to do? Arts or crafts are the time honored creative activities and they still hold much charm. But try to be a little different from the programs at school that do not have the flavor of "vacation."

How about planning an art show, will all ordinary paintings barred? Use twigs, leaves, feathers, sponges, shells, stones to make a picture. Glue them onto pieces of wood, bark, or blotting paper. Color them with paint or get effects with their natural colors. Make some flat like an ordinary picture or use a three dimensional technique.

Block prints can be made in unusual ways. Interesting leaves can be inked and the impression pressed onto paper or wood. Cut a large white potato in half, carve interesting shapes on the moist white surface, let it dry and then ink the surface and make prints.

Collections are always a source of interest. Artistically arranged, a collection of leaves, ferns, grasses or shells can be displayed in the art show. If you get really ambitious these collections can be worked into the basis of a tray or into a lampshade.

Getting projects of this sort going is not easy. It takes plenty of adult enthusiasm, interest and help. Set up a workshop on the porch or in the backyard. Get some equipment and try out new techniques yourself. (You might really enjoy it.) Above all express interest in accomplishments of the children. Planning to have the work exhibited is often a great spur. Make it a formal show, maybe even with tickets and certainly with lemonade and cookies. Invite in the neighbors, maybe a teacher, perhaps plan the show when grandma will come for a visit.

Cooking might be included in the children's creative accomplishments. A delicious batch of cookies, deliciously flavored punch is as much a work of art as a painting.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Apparently you're going to catch our dinner a mouthful at a time."

Cool Colors, Sleep Help To Combat Heat

Hot weather is here. Keeping cool involves air conditioners, fans, showers and the like, but there also is a psychological factor. In your room decorations, for instance, the blues and greens tend to make for a fresher atmosphere. A restful bedroom often contains these colors in the bedspreads, draperies and mattress tickings. Getting enough sleep also makes for a relaxed outlook on life, and helps one to cope and even enjoy summer heat. A good mattress is a prerequisite for restful slumber. If you've had your mattress longer than you can remember, chances are that it has lost its resiliency and support. The springs have probably seen their day, too. Get set for the heat by substituting worn out mattresses and springs for modern scientifically engineered bedding.

Plywood Playtable

Do the young fry in your home need a playtable? Have you an old door? You can make a table of just the height needed by removing the door hardware and installing old water or gas pipes for legs—or you can get commercially-made legs from your lumber dealer. Provide a smooth, splinter-free surface by attaching a panel of plywood with brads. If the door edges are rough, cover them also with the hardboard.

Lived-In Rooms Need Attractive Furniture

How much time is spent by members of the family in each room of the house? If such a survey as this were made it probably would reveal that the living room and the bedroom get a large proportion of use. It is known everyone spends a third of his or her life in bed. It follows that "lived in" rooms especially should have furniture that is comfortable and attractive to look at. The variety of headboards, covers, draperies and other bedroom accessories make it easy to have the bedroom pleasing to the eye. As for comfort, the mattresses and springs found in furniture and department stores offer comfort and support unknown in other times. A good rule to follow is to get the best you can afford.

WCTU Meet Set Friday

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet Friday at the home of Miss Irene Barstow, 824 E Street, San Rafael.

The topic for the month is "Citizenship Highway." Special phases of the work of the Christian Citizenship Department are to stimulate recognition by all Christians of their stewardship of the ballot and their responsibility to vote at every election; to help correct evils in their community; and to cultivate the interest of foreign-born neighbors.

The business session will begin at 11:30, followed by noontide prayer and luncheon. Afternoon session opens with devotions led by Miss Barstow.

Mrs. H. R. Soderstrom and Miss Barstow will sing a duet, "The Lord Is My Shepherd." Mrs. A. C. King will review a chapter on narcotics from the Study Book, "Really Living."

Topics for discussion will be on the issues in local and national elections and cost of the liquor traffic to our town and state.

Sunny Side Up

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Edwin Gangwer, food service manager at the Virginia State Penitentiary here, faced with the giant job of frying more than 2,000 eggs each morning, solved it with his own invention.

Gangwer came up with a device consisting of a set of 12 stainless steel rings mounted in a frame of the same metal. A stainless steel cup is suspended over each ring. Eggs are broken into the cups, then the unit is set onto a hot grill. At the flip of a single lever all the cups tilt simultaneously and empty the eggs into the rings resting on the grill surface.

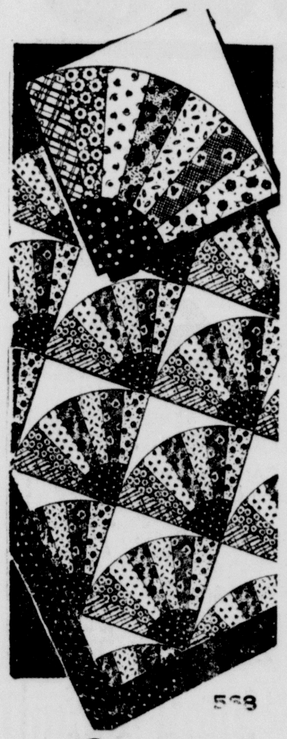

Rainy Day Painting

Any home can have its children's art classes, with mother as tutor, even though she's unskilled. (This is a wonderful rainy day idea.)

For an easel, obtain a 20" x 30" panel of plywood and lean it against a chair when "class time" comes. On the floor in front of it place a similar panel, large enough to serve as a seat and a holder for wax paper palette on which inexpensive poster paints are daubed.

For canvasses, obtain a sheaf of news print and attach it to the easel by means of two large spring-clips. When one "painting" has been completed, remove it and there'll be another paper ready for the next masterpiece.

Summer Is Season For Festive Shower

By VIVIAN BROWN

America is noted for its showers. There are the traditional engagement showers, bridal showers, baby showers. Each year we try to find new ideas for the shower at hand, with some surprises. Perish the thought that one party shower should resemble another in the same social set.

One idea is obvious in 1960 shower circles. There is more emphasis on formality, without dampening the spirit of the occasion. Time was when the hostess was put to the task of achieving the utmost in conviviality by employing the least stress on formal accoutrements such as silver, damask and lace.

Roses and lace can set the theme for today's bridal shower—an elegant idea that could have been "old hat" a few years ago, but is just right for now. At one such shower, a bright crimson umbrella was covered with a large round white lace table cloth which fell in little swags around the umbrella, looking for all the world like a bridal headdress. Roses were placed at each spoke of the umbrella, the charming idea carried out with roses on the palette-shaped milk glass snack sets used for buffet food and on the table silver.

All the shower gifts were put under the umbrella. Lace scarfs were used to border the table and carry out the theme of the shower, roses and lace.

Whenever possible plan a shower with a theme to achieve the coordinated look that ties a party idea together. If you don't want to decorate an umbrella, make an enormous rose out of pink material and a round lace cloth. Just gather up the lace and wind it around in a rose shape. Take a flexible reed or wire and wind green satin ribbon around it to form a stem. A piece of buckram rolled into tube shape will serve to carry out the stem idea. Suspend the rose from the ceiling so that it falls almost to the table. Or use it in the center of a table with real roses or petals and packages spilling out of it.

Put honeysuckle around the cake or decorate the aspic plate with it. It is fun to wind honeysuckle around tall candlesticks. If you can't locate honeysuckle, decorate the cake with a couple of roses and scatter petals at serving places.

A fun idea for a bridal shower is to put small nosegays for each guest on the buffet table. Take a couple of roses and run them through any available large green round leaf. Put the rose stems through a small lace paper doily. Wind the stems with florist tape. Roses, honeysuckle and lace have been compatible for ages. You can't go wrong using that theme.

Mary Hart Engaged To Leland Moon

Mrs. E. N. Hart of San Rafael is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Mary Belle, to Leland E. Moon of Fairfax. Mary, daughter of the late Edwin N. Hart, has been recently graduated from St. Joseph's College of Nursing in San Francisco. She is also a graduate of Marin Catholic High School.

Leland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Moon of Fairfax, is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. He has one brother, Lloyd. Employed by the Pacific Telephone Company, he is also enrolled at the Heald's Business College in San Francisco.

Plans are being made for a November wedding.

Beneath It All

NEW YORK (UPI)—There is plenty mentionable about what a girl spends on unmentionables.

One poll of New York career girls showed the annual spending on lingerie at $150 per year. A lingerie manufacturer talked to hundreds of women along "advertising row"—Madison Avenue—and found also that the average working girl owned four girdles, six bras, 10 pairs of panties and 12 slips. In sleepwear, the average was six nightgowns, three pairs of pajamas, two robes and one bed jacket.

Comfortable Furniture For Summer Cottage

Don't look now, but summer has crept up on us and it's time to start thinking of that cherished vacation. If you already have a cottage by the sea, a chalet in the mountains, a cabin in the woods, put your decorating plans in order. Stores are now filled with all types of suggestions on how to make these hide-a-ways pleasant places to live in during the warm months.

Furniture in a vacation retreat should be comfortable and functional at the same time. If it's a one room cabin, the dual purpose sleep-sitting style is ideal for saving space and providing relaxing sleep. The sleek designs in many types of woods and fabrics offer an almost unlimited selection to the vacation buyer.

Should your cottage have a bedroom—one word of caution. Don't be satisfied with worn out mattresses and springs. Just because it's your vacation is the most important reason why the bedding should offer the utmost in support and slumber comfort. Many good nights of sleep are major ingredients for that "wonderfully relaxed feeling" you hope to have when you return to the city.

For Safety's Sake

NEW YORK (UPI) — In case of fire, follow these survival steps suggested by the National Board of Fire Underwriters:

At home—quickly get everybody out of the house; call the fire department immediately. At public gatherings—walk, do not run, to the nearest exit; call the fire department; keep calm.

Brain Lift

NEW YORK (UPI)—An Oxford University scientist recently told the New York Academy of Sciences that the pleasure of smoking is in part derived from the release of norepinephrine from its store in the brain by nicotine.

Dr. J. H. Burn said the release gives an increased feeling of cheerfulness and a sense of relief from fatigue.

BORA BORA SHEATH . . . Cocktail time in the tropics finds this simple sheath of dazzling white a popular choice.

TEMPLE SET . . . The delicate art of ancient Cathay is retained in this design, patterned after ancient Chinese brocades.

TAHITI DRESS . . . Popular fabrics of Tahiti feature stylied designs stencilled in dazzling white on solid color.

Hawaii Is Rapidly Becoming International Fashion Center

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii, long famed for its sun-drenched beaches, softly swaying palms and comfortable pace, is rapidly becoming an international fashion center for casual wear.

"In the not too distant future," says Richard T. Goodwin, "it will be a source of international fashion similar to the popularity Italy acquired after World War II."

Goodwin, styling director of Alfred Shaheen, Hawaii's leading house of fashion, garment manufacturer and exporter, believes Hawaii some day may even outrival Paris, New York or Rome in fashion.

"The accent of women's wear in Hawaii is casual — and the trend is toward further informality," Goodwin says. "Suburban living—the trend all over the United States today as well as several foreign countries—requires functional casual wear."

Fashion today ranks third after sugar and pineapple among Hawaii's exports. The industry, growing at a rate of about 15 per cent annually, reached 15 million dollars last year. Gov. William F. Quinn predicts it will top 70 million dollars in 10 years.

Over 4½ million dollars worth of clothes—sundresses, lounge costumes, sarongs and women's as well as men's beachwear—were sent to the United States mainland and several foreign countries in 1959.

Goodwin, a 36-year-old bachelor from Belfast, Ireland, who once was destined for a British foreign service career, says his main job is to develop a fashion in the smart casual field. A cross-roads of the Pacific and the melting pot of exotic Eastern cultures, Hawaii has proved a fertile field for fashion.

"Inspiration for design is drawn from the various Oriental cultures blended here with a touch of Polynesian mixtures," says Goodwin. "It's a tremendous field. You have the great arts and crafts of Asia and Australia, the South Sea islands, the Pacific Ocean itself and Hawaii's own Polynesian archipelago."

Shaheen, who first set up a textile print plant in a quonset hut in 1951, today is the only garment manufacturer in Hawaii to do its own fabric printing. Among their designs are "Canton," "Luau," "Kyoto," "Joss Sticks," "Rolling Surf," and "Geisha."

The 'Canton" fabric is heavy on plum branches with bright blossoms and soft shadows. "Luau," as the name indicates, is a native Hawaiian feast complete with roast pig, tropical fruits, fish, nets and torches drawn in bold line and colors on backgrounds of red, turquoise, grey or yellow. "Kyoto," a bit of old Japan, has a white chrysanthemum motif. Chinese ceremonial incense wands enhanced with Oriental calligraphy are blended into "Joss Sticks." And "Rolling Surf" depicts graceful little fish swimming through breakers of the great barrier reef off Australia.

Goodwin says the "Geisha Set" outfit, popular for casual entertaining, can best be described as a contemporary American function.

"Inspiration of the cut came from the Japanese," he says. "The flower motif print is Hawaiian, and treatment of the print design a Van Gogh. It's a box top with long pants."

Popular among Honolulu women for casual entertaining are the "Bora Bora Sheath" — a simple sheath of white; "Temple Set," box top and long pants patterned after ancient Chinese brocades; "Tahiti," a strapless top with a full skirt; and "Port of Paradise Sarong," the traditional garment of the Polynesian woman.

Lately, a fitted version of the "muu-muu" called "Holomuu" has been worn at formal dinners. The muu-muu is a shapeless, loose-fitting, night-gown-like dress, usually worn floor-length that originated in the 1820s when missionary wives ou Mother Hubbards over the Polynesians to cover their nakedness.

Costume Designer Often Mistaken As Elizabeth Taylor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Elizabeth Bregman is growing used to people mistaking her for Elizabeth Taylor.

One day, Mrs. Bregman joked, she might be so famous as a costume jewelry designer that the movie queen will be mistaken for her.

The designer is at least on her way. In three and one-half years her firm has grown from a staff of one (Mrs. Bregman) and a couple of New York outlets to 25 production and office employees and sales in better stores nationally.

Mrs. Bregman is about the same age as the actress and remembers as a teen-ager seeing Miss Taylor in her first big movie hit, "National Velvet."

"Even then," said Betty Bregman, "people said we looked alike."

Today, the resemblance is striking enough for fans of Miss Taylor to ask for Mrs. Bregman's autograph and for fans of Debbie Reynolds to treat her as if she had taken Eddie away from Debbie. Several have hissed, "home-wrecker."

The designer has the same blue eyes, heavy arched brows and jet dark hair as the actress.

Her figure may be a little less voluptuous. She weighs 110 pounds, stands five feet four inches in her stocking feet, and measures 37, 25 and 37.

When Miss Taylor was in town recently to do some scenes for her new movie, "Butterfield 8," dozens of New Yorkers asked for Mrs. Bregman's autograph.

"I just tell 'em, 'You've got the wrong gal'," she said.

The designer created quite a stir when she and her husband, Martin, an insurance company executive, went to see the movie "The Rat Race" which stars Miss Reynolds.

"You could hear the buzz in the theater," laughed Mrs. Bregman. "I guess a lot of people thought, well, Miss Taylor's got a lot of nerve to do that."

Every Girl Needs Room Of Her Own

By VIVIAN BROWN

Every teen-ager should have her own room. It is not always possible, of course, particularly if the family is large and rooms in the home are at a premium. But it is something to think about, because it will pay off in many ways.

How can you have your own room, even if you must share it with one or more sisters?

One way is by partitions, so that each has an area she can call her own, even if the space is tiny. This can be achieved in a number of ways, but the folding screen that runs on a ceiling track is the most convenient method of acquiring privacy. This can be pushed aside when you feel in the mood for company.

Other possibilities are shoji screens or other folding screens. The disadvantages of these could far outweigh the advantages, however, as they are likely to clutter up a small room. Bamboo shades are inexpensive, can be hooked to the ceiling and raised and lowered at will. Many young girls like that idea.

The girl who has her own room is likely to spend more time in it studying, reading or concentrating on hobbies. The proper screen arrangement will permit the playing of records without annoying others in the room, if the room is being shared.

A girl's room should be attractively and cozily decorated, whether for one or more persons. Some girls like the truly feminine bedroom, with dainty colors—blue, pink, yellow and hyacinth. Other girls prefer the bed-sitting room with contemporary furniture and a tailored look with bright, off-beat colors.

Either type can decorate her room inexpensively these days. An enchanting girl's room can be decorated with matching fabric and wallpaper, with the addition of fillip of wallpapering the window shade.
